465 SAVED FROM SHIP STRANDED IN PACIFIC

Excursionists on Steamer Bound From San Francisco to Los Angeles in Holiday Mood as They Take to Boats.

VESSEL GOES AGROUND IN FOG

Hits Sands Near Point Arguello, 'Graveyard of the Pacific'—Passengers Board Steamship, Later Transferred to Cruiser.

By the Associated Press.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., May 30.—On a sandy spit near Point Arguello, "the graveyard of the Pacific," the coastwise steamer Harvard went aground at 3:30 a. m. today, but all of her passengers, 465 holiday excursionists, were rescued without mishap.

The steamer, bound from San Francisco to Los Angeles, struck the treacherous off-shore sands of the point in a fog, as she proceeded with sirens blowing and engines turning at half speed.

Soon after the steamer struck, S O S messages were sent out.

Three United States Coast Guard cutters, two freighters, the steamship San Anselmo and the steamship Marsodak and the U. S. Cruiser Louisville, newest of the Navy's fighting craft, picked up the call and raced to the rescue.

The passengers left their berths and walked to the decks. There was no panic or excitement. Capt. L. B. Hillsinger, in a radio message said his passengers "kept their shirts on and enjoyed themselves immensely."

Passengers Transferred Twice.

Eighteen lifeboats were quickly filled and the passengers were lowered into calm sea, where Capt. Hillsinger ordered members of the crew manning the boats to stand by and await the rescue ships. The rocky shores of the point made any attempt at landing unsafe.

The lifeboats were roped together and with the festive spirit of a holiday prevailing among all, the passengers sat and waited, laughing and joking while the dark waters off one of the most dangerous points along the coast lapped the boat hulls and wreaths of dense fog swirled over the heads of the passengers.

With the arrival of the San Anselmo, the passenger were taken aboard and a short time later the Louisville, the sea foaming from its prow as it sped toward the Harvard at a 30-knot pace, hove alongside at 7:50 a. m.

Shortly before 11 o'clock, the passengers transferred once more, this time to the decks of the naval cruiser.

The Louisville arrived at San Pedro at 6:10 p. m. Disembarking of the rescued passengers of the Harvard began at once.

Crew Stays on Board.

The crew of the Harvard, 119 men, remained aboard to await the arrival of a tug and high tide late today for an attempt to refloat the steamer. The extent of damage to her hull cannot be estimated until she has been pulled clear.

The fire room was flooded purposely to keep her on an even keel and a line was thrown ashore to anchor her.

The Harvard is a 3800-ton vessel in service 25 years and during the war was used as a transport.

Officers of the Los Angeles Steamship Co., owners of the vessel, said she went aground about 800 yards off the point. Not far away, one of the worst sea disasters of the Pacific Coast occurred in September, 1923, when seven destroyers, speeding through a heavy fog, hit the jagged rocks and piled up.

Although without an official report, company officers thought the fog was responsible for the accident. The prow of the ship was facing shoreward, and when she grounded a low tide was running.

French Aviators Killed in Crash.

By the Associated Press.

BARCELONA, Spain, May 30.—Jean de Permangle and Marcel la Luette, French aviators, who were on their way from Paris to Africa, were killed this afternoon as their plane fell near Villanueva y Geltru, on the outskirts of Barcelona. La Luette was the pilot of the plane which King Carol of Roumania used to fly from Paris when he attained the throne.

WILKINS' FAT STEWARD CROWDS THROUGH 30-INCH ICE DRILL

Proves His Right to Go to Pole When He Contracts His 45-Inch Girth.

(Copyright, 1931.)

NEW LONDON, Conn., May 30.—Harry Rothschild, gargantuan steward of the Nautilus, today proved his right to go to the North Pole by squeezing his 45-inch girth through the trans-Arctic submarine's 30-inch ice drill. Only those who can climb through the drill may go on the expedition, because at the pole this may be the only method whereby they can pierce the Arctic ice crust.

Sir Hubert Wilkins, over the radio, recently expressed misgivings over Rothschild's ability to do it. But his waistline is elastic, despite his 250 or more pounds.

As he disappeared under the drill in the Nautilus' hull, Chief Electrician Frank Blumberg waited at the top. Chief Engineer Shaw was there with a pair of clippers. Others bore hoisting gear in case Harry failed, but, to the astonishment of all, his ruddy face emerged wearing a triumphant grin, and he explained happily: "It will take more than an ice drill to keep me from the North Pole."

ACCUSED OF TRYING TO EXTORT $40,000 FROM W. P. CHRYSLER

Three Men in Topeka Charged With Attempt to Blackmail Auto Manufacturer.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., May 30.—Three men charged with blackmail were arrested here today on a complaint alleging an attempt to extort $40,000 from Walter P. Chrysler, president of the Chrysler Motors Corporation.

The men arrested said they were Richard A. Swallow, member of the editorial staff of a Topeka morning newspaper, Fred S. Clark, Meriden, Kan., and Ralph Ulrich, alias Ralph Chrysler, Topeka.

Gordon Ross, a representative of Chrysler, who signed the complaint, said the three men threatened to circulate libelous stories concerning the late Henry Chrysler, father of the automobile manufacturer.

VETERAN, 84, IN FIRST PARADE

Allowed to March When Cleared of Desertion Charge.

By the Associated Press.

BELOIT, Wis., May 30.—Carlton C. Olin, 84 years old, marched in the Memorial day war parade today for the first time in the 60 years it has been held. He had been barred from marching with his comrades as a deserter, but by a special act of Congress last session he was cleared of the desertion charge.

Olin served with credit in the Fourth United States Infantry. At the end of the war an officer sent him to a Missouri town for his baggage. Unable to find it, he left for home, and was subsequently listed as a deserter.

Lad Struck by Wheel After Billy Arnold Crashed.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 30.—The accident that deprived Billy Arnold of victory in the 500-mile speedway race this afternoon was far more costly to an 11-year-old boy working at a concession stand several hundred feet away.

The wheel that flew off Arnold's car, causing the crash, shot over the retaining wall and struck Billy Brink. The boy died tonight from the injury.

THREE CAUGHT IN SWIMMING POOL

Youths Ordered Out When Slayer's Pistol Dropped to Ground — Victim's Head Crushed.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 30.—A 13-year-old school boy admitted tonight, police said, that he had slain Policeman Edward Smith when he and two companions were surprised by the officer while swimming in the pool at the John Marshall High School.

"I thought the 'cop' was going to shoot me, so I shot him first," police said the boy, Varner Corry, told them.

Varner, his brother, Earl, 11, and Schuyler Pearson, 13, were arrested soon after the shooting on information furnished police by Leonard Zylch, 13, the son of a policeman, who lives near the school. Smith was the father of four children.

Ordered Out of Pool.

"We were swimming in the pool when a woman and the policeman ordered us to come out," the Corry boy said, according to police. "He said he was going to take us to the station. I got out and started to put on my clothes. My .22 caliber pistol dropped out of my pocket and the policeman saw it. I though he was going to reach for his own pistol and shoot, so I shot him first."

Smith had been assigned to the school to watch for vandals. He and Mrs. Mary Crabtree, the caretaker, started to search the building this afternoon after she had discovered the office had been ransacked. They found the three boys in the pool. The shooting occurred when she went to telephone for a police patrol.

The younger Corry and the Pearson boy denied they took part in the shooting. Officials said the policeman had been shot three times and his head and shoulders crushed. A blood-stained baseball bat was found near the body. All the boys denied having beaten the officer.

Boys Flee, Leave Clothing.

When she returned to the pool, Smith lay dead by its edge, shot three times and his head and shoulders crushed with the baseball bat. The three boys had fled, but left part of their clothing and trinkets.

A short time later the Zylch boy volunteered to help catch the policeman's slayer and gave information which led to the capture of the three.

Young Corry, police said, told them he stole his pistol a week ago when he and a group of boys broke into the school and ransacked the office and lockers.

The three boys were questioned by Chief of Detectives John Norton and assistant State's Attorney Ferrari. Robert Varner Corry, Sr., paced nervously back and forth waiting to see his sons.

Father Sees Sons and Sobs.

"I can't understand why he did it," he said. "He always was a good boy. He liked to read and was quiet at home—and he never was in any serious trouble before. He was a boy scout and had taken his first class scout examination."

When the father was admitted to the room with his sons, he was too overwhelmed with emotion to speak for a moment. Then he asked:

"Varner, why did you do this?" As the boy hung his head and cried the father broke into sobs. "I'll see you later, boys," he said and left the room.

Ferrari said the boys would be made to re-enact the killing tomorrow, and that a Coroner's jury would be asked Monday to hold them to the grand jury on murder charges.

Alfonso and Queen Wed 25 Years.

By the Associated Press.

FONTAINEBLEAU, France, May 30.—Former King Alfonso XIII and former Queen Victoria will celebrate their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary tomorrow in exile in a little hotel here. The celebration tomorrow will be a quiet family affair, in contrast to the brilliance of the wedding 25 years ago. They will dine at the hotel with no special preparations for the dinner and with only the members of the former royal family present.

QUARRIES WRECKING PILOT KNOB, BATTLE PLACE OF CIVIL WAR

Complete Decapitation of Missouri Town in Few Years Forecast at Park Conference

By the Associated Press.

VAN BUREN, Mo., May 30.—Destruction of the famous Pilot Knob, Civil War battle point near Arcadia, by mining granite from the peak, was decried by many members of the National Conference on State Parks, who Friday saw this place while on a tour of Missouri's Ozarks.

At the present rate the quarrying is being done they pointed out, only a few years will see the complete decapitation of this historic point. Although no stop at Arcadia was scheduled on the tour, the fifty national and State park executives in the motorcade stopped along the highway long enough to observe the peak. The gradual removal of the mountain crown is very apparent.

By the Associated Press.

BRANSON, Mo., May 30.—Greatly impressed with the possibilities of the Missouri Ozarks as a recreational and wild life conservation center, members of the national conference on state parks expressed opinion today that more funds are needed to properly develop the state park system. Admittance charges should be made at the parks, they advise, and this money be used for further development.

The tourists arranged to visit Roaring River State Park Saturday night and to go Sunday to Bennett Spring State Park, Bagnell Lake and the State Capitol.

331 DIVORCES IN FIRST MONTH OF NEVADA'S NEW LAW

Total of 517 Suits Filed; About $200,000 Spent in Reno in May by Petitioners.

By the Associated Press.

RENO, Nev., May 30.—In the first month of Nevada's new six weeks' residence law 331 divorces have been granted and 517 suits filed. Attorneys anticipate at least 200 new suits will be filed each month.

It is estimated that at least 1000 more divorces will be granted annually in Reno under the new law than under the old. Last year there were 2109 divorces and annulments in Washoe County; in 1929 there were 2150 and in 1928 there were 2141. The total this year will run close to 3000.

The Reno Evening Gazette estimated today that the local divorce colony paid out nearly $100,000 in attorney's fees in May and probably as much more for rent and other expenses, The average attorney's fee in each case is $250.

PLANE UNABLE TO RISE FOR JAPAN-U. S. FLIGHT

The Pacific's Gasoline Load of 1020 Gallons Too Heavy, Supply to Be Returned.

By the Associated Press.

SAMUSHIRO BEACH, Japan, May 31.—The monoplane Pacific, piloted by Thomas Ash Jr., of America, made a run along the beach here today at 7 a. m (4 p. m. Saturday, St. Louis time), but was unable to rise for the flight across the Pacific to Seattle, Wash., because of motor trouble.

Ash ordered 20 gallons of gasoline, weighing 130 pounds, taken out of the plane, and said he would make another attempt to take off. The Pacific had failed to lift its capacity load of 1020 gallons into the air.

Ash announced this afternoon the proposed 4400-mile solo flight would be attempted tomorrow.

Ash indicated later today that he may not attempt trans-Pacific flight, but may content himself with a 2600-mile hop to Dutch Harbor, Alaska. He explained that the forced reduction of his fuel supply would make it almost impossible for him to reach the coast of Washington.

HOOVER FOREGOES CAMP TRIP

Decides to Stay at White House In Spite of Heat.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—For the first time in several weeks, President Hoover decided today to spend a week-end in the Capital.

The decision was reached after the Chief Executive returned to Washington this afternoon from Valley Forge, Pa., where he delivered a Memorial day address earlier in the day. He had planned to go to his Rapidan camp to escape the heat here but decided after reaching the White House he would not make the trip.

HOOVER SAYS U. S. CAN END BUSINESS ILLS WITH SPIRIT OF VALLEY FORGE

President Cheered by Throng in Memorial Day Address — Emphasizes "We Are Still Fighting War of Independence."

"SOURCE OF WISDOM LIES IN THE PEOPLE"

Effort Now, He Continues, Is Against Deadening Influences of Government and for Preservation of American Initiative.

By the Associated Press.

VALLEY FORGE, Pa., May 30.—President Hoover told a vast Memorial day audience here today that the nation would find its way out of its economic difficulties through the same resourcefulness and steadfastness which carried Washington and his troops through the bitter winter of 1777.

With a blazing sun beating down on him, Mr. Hoover spoke with earnestness and feeling as he likened the country's present economic depression to another Valley Forge.

"If those few thousand men endured that long winter of privation and suffering, humiliated by the despair of their countrymen, and deprived of support save their indomitable will, yet held their countrymen to the faith, and of that holding held fast the freedom of America, what right have we to complain?" he questioned. "God grant that we may prove worthy of George Washington and his men of Valley Forge."

Crowd Cheers President.

The great crowd, spread out on a natural hillside amphitheater, cheered vigorously as the President declared the source of all wisdom was not in government but in the people and that the common sense of the common people would meet the challenge.

Characterizing Washington's experiences at Valley Forge as the "most glorious moment" of the war for independence, Mr. Hoover declared, "We are still fighting this war of independence."

The fight now, he said, was against the deadening influences of Government and for the preservation of the initiative and resourcefulness which has become a tradition of the American people.

"Although sirens still sing the song of the easy way out," he added, "the memory of Americans who fought at Valley Forge all tell us the truth for which our ancestors fought and suffered, the truth which echoes upward from this soil of blood and tears, that the way to the nation's greatness is the path of self-reliance and steadfastness in times of trial and stress."

Has Military Escort.

The President came to Valley Forge from Philadelphia amid all the ceremony usually accorded the chief executive. The first troop, Philadelphia city cavalry, members of which escorted President Washington, rode ahead of his automobile and from behind a nearby hill the guns of a national guard artilley unit boomed out a 21-gun salute.

At Philadelphia last night the President was the guest of the Union League Club, where an impromptu speech was received with enthusiasm. The league presented him with a portrait of himself painted by Pilides Costa, Greek artist.

An hour was spent after the conclusion of the President's speech here inspecting the rolling country around Valley Forge. It is now preserved as a State park and the President officially was the guest of the park commission on his visit. After the inspection, which included a visit to Washington's headquarters, the President boarded his train for Washington.

Dressed in formal morning wear, the President suffered from heat during his address. Perspiration formed on his forehead and ran down his face. Several persons were overcome by the heat and received attention from the emergency medical corps on the camp ground.

At the conclusion of the speech the crowd called for Mrs. Hoover who came to the front of the speakers' platform to receive an ovation to which she responded with a wave of her hand.

TEXAS GUINAN TO BE SENT BACK TO U. S.

Night Club Hostess and Troupe Barred From Entering France.

By the Associated Press.

HAVRE, France, May 30.—Texas Guinan and her party of girls and musicians will be sent back to the United States on the steamer Paris, sailing next Wednesday, a spokesman for the French Immigration Bureau said tonight.

An officer of the immigration bureau here said the decision not to permit the American night club hostess and her party to enter was made on the ground that Tex has "no working permit or contract."

The bureau officer said: "We have been criticised because others slipped through the ports without contracts and we refuse to let Miss Guinan do it. It is sometimes possible to let in one artist to compete with French amusement talent, but she is trying to bring in a whole troupe."

The immigration bureau had heard about parties conducted by Tex and her party on board the steamer Paris.

"The second-class passengers told us about these parties," he said, "and I don't think her type of amusement is our type."

The bureau's decision was made after, and in spite of, the receipt of cables from American Legion officials asking that Tex and her troupe be admitted because of her service as an entertainer of the soldiers in France during the World War.

Tex was forced to interrupt a luncheon at the Hotel Frasiati today and to return hurriedly to the Hotel Transatlantic because the girl members of her troupe began to break down under the strain.

Anne Boleyn, one of the troupe, became hysterical and ran out of the hotel when a newspaper man attempted to question her. A member of the troupe brought her back, but other members then began to shed tears, wailing: "We'll never get to Paris. I want to go home!"

Tex herself said that she had not yet given up hope of reaching Paris.

"There are lots of strings to my bow yet," she said. "I am not licked. Channing Pollock, the author, offered me the use of his house while I was in Paris. His secretary telephoned today asking when I would come. I told him 'I can't say yet. I will draw a couple of more cards first.'"

FAILS TO RUN RAPIDS OF NIAGARA IN BARREL

"Red" Hill Caught for Three Hours in Whirlpool—Succeeded Twice Before.

By the Associated Press.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., May 30.—William (Red) Hill failed today to negotiate the lower rapids of the Niagara River in a barrel, but was brought out alive. His contraption was caught in the vortex of the whirlpool after passing out of the first reach of the rapids and was whirled around for nearly four hours.

Four times his big red, white and blue oak barrel went around the huge circle of the whirlpool, and seven times it was carried around a minor eddy far out in the stream. On the last two swings around the whirlpool Hill opened the manhole, stuck an arm out, and yelled: "Thow me a rope, the barrel is filling up with water."

No boat was handy and it was impossible for anyone to go to his aid for an hour and a half after his cries for help were heard. The barrel bobbed up and down in the rush of white water, every now and then sinking from sight in the swirl.

Finally, the huge barrel struck the outer eddy of the whirlpool and was carried to within 50 feet of shore. Hill's 17-year-old son, William Jr., with a rope around his waist, swam out into the whirlpool, grabbed a ring in one end of the barrel, and pulled his father to safety.

"I'm glad to get out," he said as he stepped ashore, much bedraggled and bruised, "that kid has got more nerve than I have."

Hill suffered several cuts and bruises in the trip down Swift Drift, the rapids from the lower steel arch bridge, to the whirlpool. One bad cut was on his left forefinger. When he was pulled out at the whirlpool Dr. J. H. Davis of Niagara Falls, Ont., tried to persuade him not to complete the journey to Queenston, but he was obdurate until Mrs. Hill arrived on the scene, and thereupon Hill decided to postpone the second, and more hazardous half of his trip until tomorrow.

Hill entered his barrel from the American side and was towed to midstream above the lower bridge, below the falls themselves, at 2:20 p. m. His barrel shot through the foaming rapid at a dizzy pace to be caught up by the whirlpool within five minutes.

regularities Under Stephens.

e Bank of Aurora for many s had been a depository for e funds. There was evidence how that under the administra- of Brunk's predecessor, C. Eu- e Stephens, there had been ir- ularities in the payment by the k to the State of the proper ount of interest, and that these gularities in payment continued r Brunk took office.

Under the law it was the duty of the bank to remit to the State Treasurer each month interest on the State's deposit figured at the rate of 2.98 per cent. Instead the interest was figured at 2.75 per cent, an arbitrary monthly deduction varying from $87 to $200 was made from that, and the balance forwarded to Brunk's office. A clerk in the office regularly sent receipts.

From the time Brunk became State Treasurer until the Bank of Aurora was closed by the State Finance Commissioner in June, 1930—a period of about 18 months—$4900 of State interest money was diverted from the State Treasury.

"Brunk Rent Account."

The testimony of Ed R. Adams, president of the bank, and of Mrs. Catherine M. Gardner, an employe, was that Magnus T. Easley, the cashier, either personally or by direction to employes diverted a portion of the interest money from the State each month, at first placing a part of it in an account known as the "contingent fund" which later was changed to the "Brunk rent account."

From this account amounts were taken from time to time to take up part of Brunk's indebtedness, to pay the taxes on the property he had mortgaged to the bank and for other purposes.

Adams testified that he first discovered the Brunk rent account in August, 1929, when he returned to the bank after an absence of several months caused by illness. At that time it had a balance of $750. He immediately drew two checks against it, one for $500 and one for $150, applying the amounts as credits on Brunk's notes.

The outstanding question in the case was that of Brunk's knowledge of the interest shortages and of the application of a part of the money to pay his notes and to pay the taxes on his property. While it was shown that regularly every month the State was defrauded of interest, there was no direct evidence that Brunk personally had knowledge of the fact that the interest payments sent to his office were short. It was shown that the work of checking interest payments was a routine matter in the office and was handled by an employe, not by Brunk personally.

Adams Showed Credits to Brunk.

Two witnesses, however, gave circumstantial evidence, introduced by the House Committee to show that Brunk had information that his debts were being paid and that he had no legitimate account in the bank from which they could have been paid. Adams testified that he exhibited to Brunk the two notes on which he had entered the credits obtained by the $650 he took from the Brunk rent account and John E. Cahill, Deputy Finance Commissioner, testified that after he took charge of the bank Brunk came into the bank and had in his possession a list of the notes he owed, and that the balance shown to be due on the notes on Brunk's list corresponded with the balance as shown by the bank's books to be due, the books showing the credits from the Brunk rent account.

Bank examiners checking over the bank's records after it was closed discovered the Brunk rent account and the interest shortages and reported the matter to Gov. Caulfield. Prior to the closing of the bank L. J. Mulligan, an investigator for the Governor, wrote to the bank calling attention to a law requiring the bank to make monthly reports to the Governor of the interest account, reports which the bank had not been making.

That the bank was desirous of avoiding making these reports and that it thought Brunk could aid in having the demand withdrawn was evidenced by a letter written by Easley to Adams in May, 1930, at a time when Adams was in Kansas City. This was offered by the prosecution in an effort to trace a knowledge to Brunk. In the letter Easley said to Adams: "I just want to jog your memory about the trip over to Jefferson City. Call the Treasurer's attention to this last check, and also tell him about the letter from the Governor's office to making these reports, and if that is the case, we will not be able to help him any more. Find out if we have to make these reports."

After the closing of the bank and the completion of the investigation for the Governor, Brunk was called into the Governor's office for an explanation. He denied knowledge of the existence of the Brunk rent account and denied that he knew the interest payments were short.

Features of the St. Louis Observance of Memorial Day

He called Adams to Jefferson City, Adams going first to Brunk's office, and walking together to the Governor's office on the same floor of the Capitol. Adams testified that on the way, Brunk inquired as to what Adams intended to tell the Governor, and Adams replied that he intended "to tell the truth." "If you tell the Governor that I knew of the account," Adams testified Brunk said, "you will ruin me."

Adams testified that he told the Governor that he thought Brunk had knowledge of the account, but that he did not know positively.

A feature of Adams' testimony which came as a surprise was that in conversation with Easley, Easley discussed a plan carried out in the bank to deceive State bank examiners. He said that when examiners were coming it was the custom to remove from the note case, notes to which the examiners would have objection, and that to make the books balance, the amount of the balance of the State deposit or other large deposits was reduced to the amount of the notes taken out. When the examiners were gone, he said, the notes were restored and the balances put at their former figure.

Adams testified that Easley told him that Brunk knew of this scheme and offered no objection to it.

When the bank was closed by the State Finance Commission four large accounts were found to be short for a total of $94,000, the shortages having occurred in carrying out the scheme Adams outlined. One of these was the State's account, which was $49,000 short. The bank being then closed by the examiners or insolvent there was no opportunity to replace the notes and restore the balances.

Says Easley Complained.

Adams also testified that Easley complained because he took money from the rent account to apply on Brunk's notes, demanding to know why he "was monkeying with the account." Easley said, according to Adams, that he was in no danger of getting into trouble over the matter as he "had it fixed."

Robert J. Mitchell, vice president of the bank, testified that in January, 1929, soon after Brunk became State Treasurer, he asked Easley whether something could not be done "to put Brunk's notes in better shape," and that Easley replied: "We have a little arrangement with Larry (Brunk) by which we are going to take care of that."

Asked whether anything was done, Mitchell replied that money was taken from State interest, placed in the Brunk rent account and then applied on Brunk's notes.

The second of the three principal charges in the articles was that Brunk entered into a conspiracy with J. Kenneth Edlin, president of the Provident State Securities Co. of Chicago, and William H. Norwine, a salesman for the company, to aid in the sale of Pierre Chouteau apartment house bonds to State depositories.

There was evidence from several country bankers that Norwine called on them, representing himself to be "from the treasurer's ofice" and endeavored to induce them to sell their Government bonds and buy Pierre Chouteau bonds.

Under the law, real estate securities are eligible for deposit as security for State funds in State depositories only in case they represent not to exceed 50 per cent of the value of the real estate.

Attorney-General Shartel testified that Norwine called to see him to inquire whether real estate bonds on Illinois property representing a bond issue of not to exceed 50 per cent of the value of the property, and guaranteed by two surety companies having assets of $5,000,000 would be eligible as security for State deposits.

Shartel said he informed Norwine that he would have to get his information from the State Treasurer, and that, at Norwine's request, he telephoned Brunk and made an appointment for Norwine. Later, he said, Norwine appeared with a written request from Brunk for an opinion, which he then gave, holding that only Missouri real estate bonds could be accepted. Soon afterward the Pierre Chouteau Missouri bonds appeared. Norwine sold them and Brunk accepted them as security for State deposits.

There was evidence of several meetings between Brunk and Norwine, including a Chicago hotel register showing they were guests at a hotel on the same day and of the appearance of Norwine at several banks, Norwine in attempting to sell the bonds telling the bankers there was no question that the treasurer would accept them as security, and that Brunk would permit them to have a larger amount of State money than their contracts called for.

One banker, Otto J. Busch of the Cole County Bank of Jefferson City, testified that he talked to Brunk about the matter, and that Brunk told him the bonds would be accepted. He testified that Brunk told him he could have additional State money, and that Brunk directed his attention to the fact that the State's account in his bank, which already had purchased some of the Pierre Chouteau bonds, had not been drawn upon, while drafts had been made on other banks.

There was a sharp controversy as to whether the Pierre Chouteaus were eligible as security for deposits. It was shown that over Brunk's protest Gov. Caulfield and Shartel—these three being members of the State Fund Board—had voted to reject the bonds because the prospectus for their sale showed the total issue of $650,000 exceeded 50 per cent of the cost of the Pierre Chouteau apartments. In cross-examining witnesses, Madden disclosed that his position was that the valuation in the prospectus was not the full value.

$10,000 Loan From Edlin.

The prosecution offered evidence of $10,000 which Brunk obtained from Edlin in the form of a loan after the bank closed. The defense contends this was a legitimate loan, while the prosecution contends that, as it was made without security, it was in the nature of reward to Brunk for services performed in the sale of the bonds. Brunk applied the $10,000 on his unsecured indebdedness in the Bank of Aurora.

The third chief subject of the impeachment articles was in connection with Brunk's bank account. Records showed that in his first two years in office Brunk deposited in the First National Bank in Jefferson City and in the Commerce Trust Co., in Kansas City, approximately $42,000, and that his income from salary and fees, including amounts he received from the State for reimbursement for expenses, was less than $14,000. The deposits included the $10,000 from Edlin. The State showed that at this time Brunk was not making any payments on his notes in the Bank of Aurora, was not paying the taxes on his mortgaged property, and was not paying the interest on his notes, except as payments were made by the bank officers from the Brunk rent account, and except the $10,000 payment made after the bank closed on the unsecured notes.

This is the substance of the evidence brought out by the prosecution, and it is on this that the Senate will decide whether a prima facie case has been made, or whether the evidence is not sufficient to carry the case to a verdict in the usual way.

CITY OBSERVES MEMORIAL DAY WITH EXERCISES

Veterans in Short Parade, Followed by Ceremonies at Jefferson Barracks — General Holiday.

Military parades, ceremonies by patriotic organizations in honor of the soldier dead, and a general closing of business houses marked yesterday's observance of Memorial day.

In the downtown section it was a quiet holiday for the most part. Except when the stillness was broken by the sound of bands and bugles just before noon, the streets took on the atmosphere of an uneventful Sunday afternoon. Banks, stock and grain markets, all large stores and wholesale establishments were closed, as were all City and Government offices. Courts were not in session and the postoffice made no deliveries except special and hotel deliveries.

Few persons or automobiles were to be seen on the streets, many downtown workers having taken advantage of the two-day holiday period to journey into the country for picnics and outings.

At Jefferson Barracks, however, and in several cemeteries in and around St. Louis, there were scenes of greater activity. Particularly at the Barracks and in the adjacent National Cemetery, exercises were of an impressive character with several hundred veterans, old and young, participating.

Patriotic Organizations Parade.

Formal observance of the day began with the short parade of patriotic organizations in Twelfth boulevard at 11 o'clock. The marchers, some in uniform, but most of them in civilian clothes, comprised representatives of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Veterans of the Spanish-American War and Italian Veterans of the World War. Accompanied by two bands, they marched north in Twelfth from Market street to Washington avenue and east in Washington to Fourth street, where they boarded street cars and automobiles for Jefferson Barracks. Only a few hundred were in line, requiring three minutes to pass.

At the Barracks the marchers assembled for another procession, which led from the parade ground to the National Cemetery. It was headed by the the Sixth Infantry band and detachments from the post garrison, and with it rode about 100 veterans of the Civil War in automobiles. The ranks of these warriors are growing thin now. In St. Louis, a scant 100 comrades of the G. A. R. and only 15 veterans of the Confederate Army are left to answer the roll call.

Blue and Gray Decorate Graves.

The various organizations separated for exercises of their own at the cemetery, the Confederate veterans decorating the graves of 2000 of their fallen comrades and the G. A. R. survivors placing tokens on graves of men who fought for the Union. Acting Mayor Neun was the principal speaker and short addresses also were delivered by John L. Pierson of Blair Post No. 1 of the G. A. R.; Lieut. Edward O. Harrs of the American Legion and John W. Lanley.

The Spanish War Veterans placed a wreath on the Minnesota monument after their exercises, which included addresses by H. O. Hendrick, state commander; Alberto Aurem, Cuban Consul; Mrs. Minnie Stahl, Maj. J. B. B. Prosser, Jesse W. Barrett and Probate Judge Holtcamp.

Planes Drop Flowers.

In the forenoon, exercises were held on the Municipal Bridge in memory of American sailors and marines killed in various wars. A detachment of Naval Reserves fired a salute and airplanes from Scott Field circled above the river, the pilots dropping flowers. A brief address was delivered by the Rev. Frank G. Beardsley of the Sons of Union Veterans.

At Webster Groves veterans, accompanied by the high school band, paraded from the City Hall to Memorial Park. Exercises at the park included music, a salute by a firing squad and addresses by several clergymen.

At Maffitt place two large flags, donated to the Maffitt Place Improvement Association by D. H. Cohen of the Governor's staff, were raised on 40-foot standards after an address by Forrest C. Donnell.

In East St. Louis there was a parade headed by seven G. A. R. survivors in automobiles. Exercises also were held in City Hall Park with Congressman Charles A. Karch as chief speaker.

Both in St. Louis and East St. Louis observances will be continued today by churches and patriotic organizations. In Luxemburg, exercises will be held at the high school grounds under the auspices of the County Executive Committee of the American Legion. A parade from Lemay Ferry and Weber roads also will be held this morning, followed by speeches and a luncheon.

500 Army Planes End Fortnight's Maneuvers With Review at Capital

Greatest Peace Time Air Operation Concluded at Washington Before Secretary of War Hurley.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—A salute to the military dead in Arlington and a thundering review down the Potomac today closed the two weeks' maneuvers of the First Air Division which held up as its greatest victory the safe operation of more than 600 planes.

Completing an estimated total of more than 2,000,000 flying miles, the winged force rode the skies before high-ranking Government officialdom and thousands of spectators on its last movement before demobilization.

More than 500 planes formed the column that rendezvoused over Quantico and swung over the reviewing stand on Arlington Memorial Bridge from the north in a clear sky from which the sun beat down on the spectators.

It was the first time the stately span over the river, to be dedicated next year as part of the George Washington celebration, had been used officially.

War Secretary Present.

Secretary Hurley, accompanied by Mrs. Hurley and their children, was among the first to take his seat. In the party were Secretary Adams, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff; Walter Newton, secretary to President Hoover, representing the White House; Senator Reed, Pennsylvania; Senator Bingham, Connecticut, a World War flier, and other officials and military attaches of foreign embassies.

A combat demonstration by 39 planes opened the show at 11:30 o'clock with bombers rumbling over the river, attack ships coming in low, and 18 pursuit planes screaming down from above to drive them away.

Lieuts. George Price and Irvin Woodring looped in a spectacular two-plane dogfight and, as the main division column came into view, the pursuit ships cleared the sky after describing the wide rings of the Lufberry Circle.

As the planes headed for their bases, Brigadier General Benjamin D. Foulois, commander of the massed flotilla, said: "The first air division has concluded successfully the largest air maneuvers ever assigned to the air corps in peace times. Operating over an area bounded by Chicago, New York and Washington, with its far-flung reconnaisance extending from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic seaboard, and from Maine to Virginia, the division carried out its mission.

Praise by Officials.

"On Monday the division breaks up, its units returning to their respective stations throughout the United States. With them they will carry the thought of successful performance carried out in accordance with the traditions of the army. To these officers and men who have so loyally performed their duty under my command I extend my congratulations and appreciation."

Secretary Hurley, Secretary Adams, and Gen. MacArthur added "well done" while F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War for Aeronautics, said "the record of the past two weeks stands as the highest possible tribute to the personnel and equipment."

"It could not have been accomplished,' he said, "but for the superior equipment produced by the American aircraft industry, the excellent staff work, careful training, and rigid discipline. Furthermore, all this has been done without the additional cost of one penny to the taxpayers of the United States."

Only two minor mishaps marred perfect operation of the planes over Washington. One attack pilot made a forced landing at an emergency airport while a pursuit flier nosed over at Bolling Field after the demonstration but escaped injury. Twelve planes during the two weeks were forced out of commission.

Demobilization will be officially under way Monday noon, all of the planes being in the air by that time on their way to home ports. Some, however, will start tomorrow, the 102d observation group leaving Langley field for Raleigh, N. C., and Pope Field; the Twenty-second observation squadron winging from the same base for Augusta, Athens, Atlanta and Maxwell Field; the Eighty-eighth observation squadron coming from Langley to Washington; the Fifteenth and Ninety-first observation and 208th bombardment squadrons following it to gas up at Bolling Field before starting for Dayton, O.; and the 204th attack leaving Baltimore for Dayton.

IDENTIFIED AS G. W. E. PERRY

Man Held in San Francisco for Wisconsin Murder to Fight Extradition.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—Frank J. Moran was identified here today for the fifth time as George W. E. Perry, accused in Wisconsin of the murder of one of the women he married.

Today's identification was made by W. H. Parker, resort owner of Lac Flambeau, Wis., who arrived here with Wisconsin officers who intend to return Moran to be tried for the murder of Mrs. George Hackett a year ago. Moran, who denies he is Perry, said he would fight extradition.

MEMORIAL DAY SERVICE IN CITY OF ITS INCEPTION

Carbondale, Ill., Observes Custom Started There 65 Years Ago for Union Soldiers.

By the Associated Press.

CARBONDALE, Ill., May 30.—Ralph T. O'Neill, national commander of the American Legion, made the principal Memorial day address here, as the town for the first time officially celebrated an observance founded here 65 years ago.

It was in Woodlawn Cemetery, the scene of today's ceremonies, that 219 veterans gathered long ago for the inception of Memorial day services for Union soldiers on the last Sunday of April, 1866. Gen. John A. Logan, commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, ordered the services and made a speech.

On May 5, 1868, Gen. Logan issued his order No. 11 changing Memorial day to May 30, to insure warmer weather and plenty of flowers for decorating of graves.

Historians of Carbondale Teachers' College a year ago came upon a Bible first owned by James Green, a cousin of Gen. Logan and sexton of Woodlawn Cemetery. It had remained in the families of Logan's relatives and its yellowed leaves bore scribbled notes which said Capt. E. J. Ingersoll presided at the services and the Rev. L. W. Layn, a Methodist preacher, offered prayer.

On that occasion, the notes say, Gen. Logan said, "Every man's life belongs to his country and no man has a right to refuse it when called." The book now belongs to John Williams, of Carbondale, a descendant of the General.

Commander O'Neill termed the sacrifice of the nation's war dead as "the highest and most sublime."

STUDENT KILLED IN 60-FT. FALL

COLLEGE PARK, Md., May 30.—Fred Burnheim, 20-year-old freshman at the University of Maryland, was killed tonight in a 60-foot fall from a cornice on the boys' dormitory. The possibility that the youth was the victim of his own playful prank developed with statements by other students in the dormitory that they sometimes went to the roof and threw wet towels at pedestrians. Burnheim went to the roof alone with a bucket of water shortly before he apparently lost his balance and fell, students said.

STREET CAR MEN O K DAY-OFF PLAN TO SAVE 134 JOBS

Regular Motormen and Conductors Tell P. S. Co. in Petitions They Are Ready for Sacrifice.

ONLY 17 OF 2700 REFUSE TO SIGN

Union President Says This Shows Members Do Not Have to Be Compelled to Take Time Off.

Proof that the regular motormen and conductors of the Public Service Co. are willing to sacrifice one day's pay in eight, in order to keep 134 extra men on the payroll, was presented to officers of the company yesterday by the Car Men's Union in petition form.

Harry M. Nelson, union president, said only 17 of the 2700 regular platform men refused to sign the petition, which reads as follows:

"We, the undersigned, urgently petition and request the St. Louis Public Service Co. to arrange schedules that will provide every eighth day off, in order to prevent the laying off of our fellow employes."

The sheaf of petitions, bearing nearly 2700 signatures, was presented at the company offices.

"No Compulsion Indicated."

"Mr. Clarke (president of the Public Service Co.) has stated as his reason for refusing our proposal for one day off in eight that the company will not compel its employes to take time off with resultant loss in wages," Nelson said. "These petitions do not make it appear that our members have to be compelled to take time off. The company has also tried to mislead the public by posting a statement to the effect that the union contract entitles the men to one day off in seven, and it is up to the men to take it if they want it.

"The working agreement does not specify a day of rest, but the time a man will be excused is decided by the company. The present system, or lack of one, is not workable. To be effective, the company must co-operate to the extent of arranging schedules so that the men will know in advance when they are to be off. Under the present arrangement 50 men may ask oft at one shed on a certain day, and 10 will be excused. The other 40, whose plans have been upset, probably do not ask off again for weeks. There is no system, and as a result the thing does not work."

Nelson asserted the dismissal of the 134 men is in retaliation for the union's refusal to accept the proposed 10 per cent reduction in wages, contingent on the company's earning its interest requirements.

Tells of Thursday Meeting.

"Mr. Clarke and General Manager Greenland showed their hands at a meeting with myself and other union officers last Thursday," Nelson declared. "Clarke said, 'If you will accept the 10 per cent wage cut we will give everybody a day off in eight.' Greenland then added, 'You have been hollering from the housetops about company officers, and have refused to help the company, so why should the company help you?'

"We replied that what we were asking was only a distribution of work, without additional cost to the company. We also asked Clarke how he, as a member of the Citizens' Committee on Unemployment, could throw more than 100 men, many of them with families, out of jobs. He did not answer that, and I then told him that a corporation that would do such a thing at this time without apparent cause is more despicable than the ambulance chasing lawyers the Public Service Co. is complaining against so bitterly."

The company has announced that the extra men, who are guaranteed $100 a month, will be stricken from the payrolls today. If the company refuses to withdraw the order the discharged employes plan a demonstration some time this week, and will parade through downtown streets carrying banners appropriately worded. Union officers plan to continue the fight for retention, or re-employment of the extra men, and will take steps to protect their seniority rights.

Arbitration of the wage differences between the company and the union will go the State Public Service Commission by agreement unless former Mayor Kiel and Edward J. Miller, president of the St. Louis Screw & Bolt Co., the arbitrators selected by the union and the company respectively, succeed in selecting a third arbitrator before 12 o'clock tonight. Kiel and Miller took a holiday from their deliberations yesterday, but plan to meet for the last time this afternoon.

100,000 ATTEND PRUSSIAN "STEEL HELMET" EXERCISES

Demonstration Near Polish Border Witnessed by Former Crown Prince.

By the Associated Press.

BRESLAU, Prussian Upper Silesia, May 30.—In answer to the recent Polish commemorative exercises at Katowice, in Polish Upper Silesia, the "steel helmet" organization of former German soldiers is conducting a series of patriotic exercises here, less than 40 miles from the Polish border. The promoters of the celebration, which is to last three days, claim an attendance of 150,000, but other estimates reduce this to 100,000.

The directors of the "steel-helmets" denied the movement has "rightist" tendencies, but it was noted that former Crown Prince Wilhelm, Crown Princess Cecilie and their son, Louis Ferdinand, were present today, and also former King Friedrich Auguste of Saxony and members of the minor princely homes of Germany. Also present were some of the Generals of the old Imperial Army, such as August von Mackensen, Oscar von Hutter, Hans von Seeckt, former chief of the German Republican Army, and his successor, Gen. Wilhelm Heye. The old imperial colors of black, white and red were seen everywhere.

At his nearby castle the former King of Saxony took the salute of 5500 Saxon "steel-helmeters," mounted on horseback. He accepted an honorary membership in the organization.

When a truckload of the steel-helmeters overturned near here today one was killed and 15 were injured.

EMBALMER OF GRANT AND GARFIELD DIES HERE AT 87

Felix A. Sullivan, Formerly of Ireland and England, Aided at Victoria's Funeral.

Felix A. Sullivan, 87 years old, a teacher of embalming for many years, died yesterday of the infirmities of age at his home, 4209A Olive street.

Oscar J. Hoffmeister, undertaker and one of his pupils, said Sullivan originated the arterial system of embalming and embalmed the bodies of Presidents Grant and Garfield. He said Sullivan assisted also in conducting the funeral of Queen Victoria, coming to this country after teaching in England, Ireland and Germany.

Sullivan came to St. Louis about 10 years ago, establishing a school of embalming and retiring in 1926.

Besides his widow he is survived by two sisters. Funeral services will be conducted Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock at the New Cathedral. Burial will take place in Calvary Cemetery.

STREET CAR MEN O K DAY-OFF PLAN TO SAVE 134 JOBS

Regular Motormen and Conductors Tell P. S. Co. in Petitions They Are Ready for Sacrifice.

Union President Says This Shows Members Do Not Have to Be Compelled to Take Time Off.

Proof that the regular motormen and conductors of the Public Service Co. are willing to sacrifice one day's pay in eight, in order to keep 134 extra men on the payroll, was presented to officers of the company yesterday by the Car Men's Union in petition form.

Harry M. Nelson, union president, said only 17 of the 2700 regular platform men refused to sign the petition, which reads as follows:

"We, the undersigned, urgently petition and request the St. Louis Public Service Co. to arrange schedules that will provide every eighth day off, in order to prevent the laying off of our fellow employes."

The sheaf of petitions, bearing nearly 2700 signatures, was presented at the company offices.

"No Compulsion Indicated."

"Mr. Clarke (president of the Public Service Co.) has stated as his reason for refusing our proposal for one day off in eight that the company will not compel its employes to take time off with resultant loss in wages," Nelson said. "These petitions do not make it appear that our members have to be compelled to take time off. The company has also tried to mislead the public by posting a statement to the effect that the union contract entitles the men to one day off in seven, and it is up to the men to take it if they want it.

"The working agreement does not specify a day of rest, but the time a man will be excused is decided by the company. The present system, or lack of one, is not workable. To be effective, the company must co-operate to the extent of arranging schedules so that the men will know in advance when they are to be off. Under the present arrangement 50 men may ask off at one shed on a certain day, and 10 will be excused. The other 40, whose plans have been upset, probably do not ask off again for weeks. There is no system, and as a result the thing does not work."

Nelson asserted the dismissal of the 134 men is in retaliation for the union's refusal to accept the proposed 10 per cent reduction in wages, contingent on the company's earning its interest requirements.

Tells of Thursday Meeting.

"Mr. Clarke and General Manager Greenland showed their hands at a meeting with myself and other union officers last Thursday," Nelson declared. "Clarke said, 'If you will accept the 10 per cent wage cut we will give everybody a day off in eight.' Greenland then added, 'You have been hollering from the housetops about company officers, and have refused to help the company, so why should the company help you?'

"We replied that what we were asking was only a distribution of work, without additional cost to the company. We also asked Clarke how he, as a member of the Citizens' Committee on Unemployment, could throw more than 100 men, many of them with families, out of jobs. He did not answer that, and I then told him that a corporation that would do such a thing at this time without apparent cause is more despicable than the ambulance chasing lawyers the Public Service Co. is complaining against so bitterly."

The company has announced that the extra men, who are guaranteed $100 a month, will be stricken from the payrolls today. If the company refuses to withdraw the order the discharged employes plan a demonstration some time this week, and will parade through downtown streets carrying banners appropriately worded. Union officers plan to continue the fight for retention, or re-employment of the extra men, and will take steps to protect their seniority rights.

Arbitration of the wage differences between the company and the union will go the State Public Service Commission by agreement unless former Mayor Kiel and Edward J. Miller, president of the St. Louis Screw & Bolt Co., the arbitrators selected by the union and the company respectively, succeed in selecting a third arbitrator before 12 o'clock tonight. Kiel and Miller took a holiday from their deliberations yesterday, but plan to meet for the last time this afternoon.

100,000 ATTEND PRUSSIAN "STEEL HELMET" EXERCISES

Demonstration Near Polish Border Witnessed by Former Crown Prince.

By the Associated Press.

BRESLAU, Prussian Upper Silesia, May 30.—In answer to the recent Polish commemorative exercises at Katowice, in Polish Upper Silesia, the "steel helmet" organization of former German soldiers is conducting a series of patriotic exercises here, less than 40 miles from the Polish border. The promoters of the celebration, which is to last three days, claim an attendance of 150,000, but other estimates reduce this to 100,000.

The directors of the "steel-helmets" denied the movement has "rightist" tendencies, but it was noted that former Crown Prince Wilhelm, Crown Princess Cecilie and their son, Louis Ferdinand, were present today, and also former King Friedrich Auguste of Saxony and members of the minor princely homes of Germany. Also present were some of the Generals of the old Imperial Army, such as August von Mackensen, Oscar von Hutter, Hans von Seeckt, former chief of the German Republican Army, and his successor, Gen. Wilhelm Heye. The old imperial colors of black, white and red were seen everywhere.

At his nearby castle the former King of Saxony took the salute of 5500 Saxon "steel-helmeters," mounted on horseback. He accepted an honorary membership in the organization.

When a truckload of the steel-helmeters overturned near here today one was killed and 15 were injured.

EMBALMER OF GRANT AND GARFIELD DIES HERE AT 87

Felix A. Sullivan, Formerly of Ireland and England, Aided at Victoria's Funeral.

Felix A. Sullivan, 87 years old, a teacher of embalming for many years, died yesterday of the infirmities of age at his home, 4209A Olive street.

Oscar J. Hoffmeister, undertaker and one of his pupils, said Sullivan originated the arterial system of embalming and embalmed the bodies of Presidents Grant and Garfield. He said Sullivan assisted also in conducting the funeral of Queen Victoria, coming to this country after teaching in England, Ireland and Germany.

Sullivan came to St. Louis about 10 years ago, establishing a school of embalming and retiring in 1926.

Besides his widow he is survived by two sisters. Funeral services will be conducted Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock at the New Cathedral. Burial will take place in Calvary Cemetery.

Mussolini Orders Catholic Action Society Suppressed

upon that which is dear to us—the Catholic Action.

"Naturally we have the right and duty to have recourse to the treaty and concordat and steps are already being taken. But nothing can prevent the Bishop of Rome from raising his voice.

"One may demand one's life, but not one's silence. We tell you, to induce you to pray for the plans of the Pope and especially for those of these days."

Eucharistic Congress Canceled.

Relations between church and state, strained by anti-Catholic disorders of the last few days, became even more critical today when police closed all the Catholic clubs of Rome and Pope Pius canceled the Eucharistic Congress which was to have been held next week.

The Government also closed three playgrounds financed by the American Knights of Columbus, and the pontiff revoked the appointment of Cardinal Michel Lega as papal legate to the centenary celebration of St. Anthony of Padua. The Pope's action was explained on the ground that "since there can be no assurance that the pontiff is free from insult in Rome itself, there is none that his personal representative will be immune from insult outside Rome."

Situation Suddenly Strained.

This sudden tension came after a lull in which the two sides conducted diplomatic negotiations looking to a settlement. The papal nuncio visited Foreign Minister Dino Grandi yesterday and it was assumed he filed the Pope's protest against anti-Catholic demonstrations by Fascist students earlier in the week.

The pontiff contends his inviolability is guaranteed by the Lateran treaty and the conference yesterday was expected to result in an exchange of views of a more peaceable nature.

The situation assumed such proportions today, however, that Vatican City was guarded at all entrances and those who sought to enter were submitted to close questioning.

Knights of Columbus.

It is thought that the closing of the playgrounds operated by the American Knights of Columbus was ordered on the theory that the Knights of Columbus were engaged in activities as a part of the Catholic Action organization, Fascist opposition to which has resulted in disorders over the last few days.

The Knights of Columbus are under the direction of Papal Count Edward Hearn, who was out of town today. The American organization introduced the idea of playgrounds here and financed their operation for the benefit of the youth of Rome.

What Catholic Action Is.

Catholic Action was founded by the Holy See in 1922 with the idea of unifying and developing Catholic youth coming into young manhood and womanhood.

At that time the Pope was still a "prisoner" in the Vatican as negotiations for settlement of the Roman question, which were about to be completed with Premier Orlando during the Paris peace conference suddenly failed because of the defeat of Orlando in the Italian Parliament.

The Pope's idea then, as now, was to give Catholics definite contact with the church in their daily lives in addition to the religious control which it had over them.

The governing body of what eventually developed into six branches is composed of the chief officers of each dependent organization. Its president is Augusto Ciriaci.

The Pope considered the organizations of the highest importance and had them recognized under the name, Catholic Action in the Lateran treaty.

Fascists say that after the dissolution the popular party—a definitely anti-Fascist group which had a large representation in the chamber of deputies and hoped eventually to gain control—many of its members filtered into the Catholic Action organization.

The popular party was an organized political group outside the church, headed by Don Sturzo.

Political, Fascists Say.

The Fascist contention is that Catholic Action grew steadily into a political group through the influence of these men and that many of them became leading factors in Catholic Action organizations.

The Pope and all Vatican authorities have steadfastly maintained that Catholic Action has remained a religious body necessary to Catholic activities outside the church and always within the limits established by the Lateran treaty.

There are 300 Catholic Clubs in Rome and more than 10,000 in Italy.

The Government is said to believe that pressure has been brought to bear on Catholic Action to assist in the suppression of Protestant propaganda in Italy, against which the Pope has made public protests.

In Government circles these objections to Protestant activity are interpreted as tending toward the suppression of religious liberty guaranteed by the treaty.

It is said the Vatican has suggested that church activities other than Catholic should be regulated by law, but Premier Mussolini has steadily refused to impose religious restrictions of any kind.

NAUTILUS MAKES SUCCESSFUL RUN WHILE SUBMERGED

Polar Submarine Meets All Tests—Ready Tuesday or Wednesday to Start Across Atlantic.

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS

(Copyright, 1931.)

NEW LONDON, Conn., May 30.—Abreast the Bartlett lightship the Nautilus prepared today for her first submarine run. The ship dived to 50 feet, came up, broke water and dived again, continuing on an even keel submerged at 30 feet for miles. Everything was in order and everything worked successfully.

Great credit is due to Capt. Danenhower and his crew, who have been working day and night to prepare the ship.

It was a great thrill for me to climb into the observer's conning tower and watch the water creeping slowly above the superstructure.

First one eye port went beneath, then the other, and finally the special ports for scientific observation were covered.

We were no sooner down than a school of small fish about a foot long came swimming by, wiggling their tails and leaving a stream of air bubbles behind them. Some half turned as they went by, others hurried past the boat.

Conditions Comfortable.

We took their greetings for a good omen and hoped we might operate as successfully as they in their medium when we get into the Arctic area.

The motion of the boat in diving and rising was steady and conditions on board in each compartment were comfortable.

Simon Lake and his assistants were busy with pendulums and slide rules, calculating the stability and trim. They found to their delight that, although there are many new contrivances on this submarine that have never been tried before, everything worked successfully.

The severest tests were tried. First we increased ballast in one tank, then another. The crew moved from compartment to compartment, testing every detail, and as each test was passed successfully the face of Capt. Danenhower and Lake showed broad smiles.

Preparing to Cross Atlantic.

They might well be proud of their work. Although I have been many times in submarines as a passenger and passenger observer, the thrill today was greater than even on my first submersion, because the plans for this operation have been gradually developed in my mind for 17 years and we have spent nine months in actual preparation.

We have waited anxiously for the day to arrive when the boat would prove herself. Our preparations could not have gone forward without support of our many generous friends.

There are a few more details in connection with the ice drill and the conning towers. This will be attended to Monday. The last few gallons of oil will be put aboard and by Tuesday or Wednesday the ship will be ready to start across the Atlantic.

Shaw Calls Joan of Arc's Death Soldierly Homicide

Dramatist, in Second Radio Address, Compares French Heroine of 500 Years Ago with Suffragettes of Present Time.

The second radio address George Bernard Shaw ever broadcast in this country, delivered yesterday on the 500th anniversary of the burning of Joan of Arc, followed the lines of his "Saint Joan" even to a suggestion of Joan's cry, bringing the play to an end:

"O God that madest this beautiful earth, when will it be ready to receive Thy saints."

Shaw described his address as a "chat," and it was a grave and quiet talk, without any such witticisms as those which amused listeners to his first radio address to this country last October, when he introduced Prof. Albert Einstein at a London dinner.

It was, characteristically, a social sermon thoroughly unchurchly in tone. Shaw found occasion to compare Joan with the suffragettes, to deal with modern prison sentences in connection with her choice of the stake rather than imprisonment and to express his abhorrence of war in connection with the "soldierly homicide" charged against her in the Bishop's court 500 years ago.

Talks for 30 Minutes.

"I am sitting here in London quite comfortably and I shall say anything about her that comes into my mind," he said as a dramatist. So much came into his mind that his 20-minute "chat" extended to a full half hour.

His listeners in St. Louis were somewhat handicapped by his apparent failure to maintain a constant distance from the microphone. Static in the short-wave leg of the trans-Atlantic broadcast was little more noticeable than the usual local interference to downtown radio reception, but sometimes, inevitably, drowned the "key" words of a sentence. The speech was broadcast here by KMOX.

As well known, Shaw has refused to visit this country and his voice has been heard here only in the two broadcasts, in the first of which he made no mention of his American audience. Yesterday, however, he did refer directly to it, employing the words, "You can take it from me," and spoke of "our American friends at Hollywood," to demonstrate the moving-picture asset of "sex appeal."

Joan's execution was not remembered for 500 years because she was burned at the stake, since thousands had been likewise burned, he remarked, nor because she was a young girl, because many of those thousands were young girls and children.

Refers to Christ's Death.

"A parallel case is very well known throughout Christendom," he continued. "It is that of the Founder of Christianity, Himself."

He suggested the Cross as "not an emblem of what the Romans called justice—and I'm very sorry to say that we still have exactly the same sort of thing by the name of justice."

As in the play, he emphasized that Joan was tried—though not sentenced—by a tribunal representing Christianity, in "a very fine way, a very careful and conscientious trial, and found guilty on every one of the counts against her."

"And she was guilty," he added, "according to all the ideals of the people who tried her—and, probably, according to the ideals of a great many of the young men and women I am now addressing."

Citing the charges of wearing man's clothing, he remarked that this was "a horrible thing in those days," and would probably shock "one or two" in his modern audience.

"To us it is a shocking thing for a woman to go out and kill," he said, referring to the charge of taking up the sword. "I happen to think it a shocking thing for anyone to go out to kill."

"Chose Being Burned."

"Joan chose being burned," he emphasized. "She tried to escape being burned by recanting. But when she found, after she had signed a recantation, that she was to be thrown into prison, she deliberately withdrew the recantation, put on her men's dress again, and reaffirmed her faith in the Voices.

"I recommend that thought to all of you who are listening in England, France and America," he added earnestly, "because in almost all criminal codes we are almost ready to condemn some young people to long terms of imprisonment, sometimes solitary—and we are using a crueler form of punishment than burning, by the judgment of this woman who had the choice between them."

"Although the burning of Joan was inexcusable," he said, describing her military and parliamentary genius, "the question arises whether she was not, in that day, a dangerous person. That question still arises when people become able to distinguish such unusual abilities."

"Marshal Foch, [illegible] the last war, replied, 'He would have fought it magnificently, superbly—but what would you have done with him afterwards?'" Detailing Leon Trotsky's services to Russia, he said "but when the question arose, what was to be done with him 'afterwards,' Russia banished him to a country not unlike St. Helena."

"Inquisition Not Dead."

"The Inquisition is not dead," he declared, and cited secret tribunals to try "heresies" against dictatorships.

"If you want to know what a woman like Joan of Arc would do in modern times, read what happened to the Suffragettes," he suggested.

"None of them were exactly like Saint Joan, but I believe every one of them underwent experiences somewhat like Saint Joan's, and I believe if you study them you will understand more of her personality."

"I've stolen nearly 10 minutes," he concluded. "I should have taken 20 minutes, but I have talked for half an hour. Just like me, isn't it."

revived at the speakers' stand when a group of veterans of '61 gathered around to shake the hand of the President. Of the 20, one was a Confederate soldier. Mrs. John T. Myers, who shood hands with Lincoln at Gettysburg was on the platform.

Isaac R. Pennypacker, chairman of the Valley Forge Park Commission, introduced Mr. Hoover. The Right Rev. Francis M. Taitt, Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania, offered the invocation and Dr. Frank Aydelotte, president of Swarthmore College, the benediction.

Text of Hoover Address.

The text of the President's address follows:

“We are upon the eve of the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington. It is, therefore, appropriate that our observance of Memorial day should this year be at this place, so intimately associated with the moral grandeur of the Father of Our Country.

“This national shrine needs no description; the events enacted here require no recounting to the American people. The very name, Valley Forge, swells within us a pride of nationality. These peaceful fields hold a glory peculiarly their own. The sufferings of Washington's army in that dreadful winter of privation have made this place famous among all men.

“It was not the glory of battle for which these fields are remembered. No great battle was fought here. It was not the pomp of victory, for no martial triumph was won here. It was not the scene where peace was signed by which independence of a great nation was won. It was not the tombs of courageous men who, facing the enemy, gave the supreme sacrifice for their country to which we bow in reverence. A thousand other fields mark the courage, the glory, the valor, the skill, the martial triumph of our race. Yet the instinct and the judgment of our people after the abrasion of the years has appraised this place as a foremost shrine in the War of Independence and in our Nation. It is a shrine to the things of the spirit and of the soul.

“It was the transcendent fortitude and steadfastness of these men who in adversity and in suffering through the darkest hour of our history held faithful to an ideal. Here men endured that a nation might live.

Chose the Steadfast Way.

“George Washington and his men at any moment could have accepted the counsels of an easy path to an easy end of their privations. They could have surrendered their ideals to the widespread spirit of despair and discouragement. They could have abandoned their claims to freedom. They could have deserted their hopes and forsaken their faith. Instead, they chose the harder way of steadfast fortitude and for many of death.

“Here Washington and his little band of hungry and almost naked patriots kept alive the spark of liberty in the lowest hours of the Revolution. They met the crisis with steadfast fortitude; they conserved their strength; they husbanded their resources; they seized the opportunity, which, with the turn and the tide of war, led on to victory.

“It was a triumph of character and idealism and high intelligence over the counsels of despair, of prudence and material comfort. This was one of those moral victories that are the glory of the race. Without such victories the life of man would descend to a sheer materialism for “where there is no vision the people perish.” Lacking these high inspirations mankind could claim no distinction higher than the beasts of the field, that sing no songs, dream no dreams, inspire no hope and grasp no faith.

Spirit We Commemorate.

“It is this high spirit that we commemorate when we pay our yearly tribute of reverence to those who in all wars have stood steadfast and those who have died in the service of our country. Our citizens in every war have flocked to arms at the call of country. They have responded willingly, because in every emergency they have had up before them an ideal of liberty and freedom of their country. Some wars in history have been instigated by old and cynical men for cruel or selfish reasons. Some wars have been fought for power and possessions. The ends of some wars could have been more nobly won and more wisely won by patience and negotiation. But war for liberty has endowed the race not alone with the most precious possessions of freedom but has inspired every succeeding generation with that idealism which is the outpouring of man's spiritual nature.

“An ideal is an unselfish aspiration. Its purpose is the general welfare not only of this but of future generations. It is a thing of the spirit. It is a generous and humane desire that all men may share equally in a common good. Our ideals are the cement which binds human society. They provide the mainspring of progress. Idealism was forged into the souls of the American people by the fires of the Revolution. It is this quality of spirit which has made possible the success of our great democratic experiment. It has tempered our acquisitiveness, has strengthened our sense of civic responsibility, and has made service to fellow man a part of our national character.

The Valley's Significance.

“This peculiar significance of Valley Forge in our American annals should strike us all with especial force in this particular moment of our national life. The American people are going through another Valley Forge at this time. To each and every one of us it is an hour of unusual stress and trial. You have each one your special cause of anxiety. So, too, have I. The whole Nation is beset with difficulties incident to a world-wide depression. These temporary reverses in the march of progress have been in part the penalty of excesses of greed, of failure of crops, and the malign inheritances of the Great War and a storm of other world forces beyond our control. Their far-reaching effects have fallen heavily upon many who were in no wise concerned with their causes. Many have lost the savings of a lifetime, many are unemployed, all know the misgivings of doubt and grave concern for the future.

“No one who reviews the past and realizes the vast strength of our people can doubt that this, like a score of similar experiences in our history, is a passing trial. From it will come a greater knowledge of the weaknesses of our system, and from this knowledge must come the courage and wisdom to improve and strengthen us for the future. Numerous are the temptations under the distress of the day to turn aside from our true national purposes and from wise national policies and fundamental ideals of the men who builded our Republic. Never was the lure of the rosy path to every panacea and of easy ways to imagined security more tempting.

Alluring Substitutes.

“For the energies of private initiative, of independence, and a high degree of individual freedom of our American system, we are offered an alluring substitute in the specious claim that everybody collectively owes each of us individually a living rather than an opportunity to earn a living, and the equally specious claim that hired representeatives of a hundred million people can do better than the people themselves, in thinking and planning their daily life.

“The Revolution, of which Valley Forge was the darkest but perhaps the most glorious moment, was fought not alone for national independence but to retain our freedom to continue unhampered the most promising social experiment in all human history. Our American ideals had already been in process of development for a century when the War for Independence began.

“Our Government was an experiment in securing to a people the maximum of individual freedom. Amazing success has proved it is no longer an experiment. Under it has grown a social and economic system new in the world and distinctly our own. Human initiative has been inspired, human energies released, local co-operation has solidly knit together communities into self-governing democracies, and the human spirit has blossomed in an atmosphere of a new independence and self-respect. It brought America to a greatness unparalleled in the history of the world.

The Fight Must Continue.

“We must ever continue that fight. Amid the scene of vastly growing complexity of our economic life, we must preserve the independence of the individual from the deadening restraints of government, yet by the strong arm of government equally protect his individual freedom, assure his fair chance, his equality of opportunity from the encroachments of special privileges and greed or domination by any group or class.

“We are still fighting this war of independence. We must not be misled by the claim that the source of all wisdom is in the Government. We know that the source of wisdom is in the people; that the people can win anew the victory. But that wisdom is not innate. Rather is it born out of experience, and most of all out of precisely such experience as is brought to us by the darkest moments—the Valley Forges—of our individual and national careers. It is in the meeting of such moments that are born new insights, new sympathies, new powers, new skills. That is precisely why the wisdom of the few instead of the many fails to build an enduring government or an enduring people.

Present Battle of Faith.

“Such battles as we are in the midst of today can not be won by any single stroke, by any one strategy sprung from the mind of any single genius. The necessary multitude of individuals and group adjustments to new conditions is altogether too vast and too complex for that. Rather must we pin our faith upon the inventiveness, the resourcefulness, the initiative of everyone of us. That can not fail us if only we keep the faith in ourselves and our future, and in the constant growth of our intelligence and ability to co-operate with one another.

“Sirens still sing the song of the easy way for the moment of difficulty, but the common sense of the common man, the inherited tradition of an independent and self-reliant race, the historical memory of Americans who glory in Valley Forge even as they glory in Yorktown—all these tell us the truth for which our ancestors fought and suffered, the truth which echoes upward from this soil of blood and tears, that the way to the nation's greatness is the path of self-reliance, independence, and steadfastness in times of trial and stress.

“Valley Forge met such a challenge to steadfastness in times and terms of war. Our test is to meet this challenge in times and terms of peace. It is the same challenge. It is the same test of steadfastness of will, of clarity of thought, of resolution of character, of fixity of purpose, of loyalty to ideals and of unshaken conviction that they will prevail. We are enduring sufferings and we are assailed by temptations.

Writing a New Chapter.

“We, too, are writing a new chapter in American history. If we weaken, as Washington did not, we shall be writing the introduction to the decline of American character and the fall of American institutions. If we are firm and far-sighted, as were Washington and his men, we shall be writing the introduction to a yet more glorious epoch in our Nation's progress. We have seen many precious fruits of the sturdy pioneering virtues that have made our country first free and then strong and now proudly in the fore-front of the world. If, by the grace of God, we stand steadfast in our great traditions through this time of stress, we shall insure that we and our sons and daughters shall see these fruits increased many fold.

“Valley Forge has come indeed to be a symbol in American life. It is more than the name for a place, more than the scene of a military episode, more than just a critical event in history. Freedom was won here by fortitude, not by the flash of the sword. Valley Forge is our American synonym for the trial of human character through privation and suffering, and it is the symbol of the triumph of the American soul. If those few thousand men endured that long winter of privation and suffering, humiliated by the despair of their countrymen, and deprived of support save their own indomitable will, yet hold their countrymen to the faith, and of that holding held fast the freedom of America, what right have we to be of little faith? God grant that we may prove worthy of George Washington and his men of Valley Forge.”

TO SUE INSURANCE COMPANY FOR $12,750 ACCIDENT VERDICT

Counsel for Injured to Make Claim in Case of Peter Paradise.

Judgments by default totaling $12,750 allowed last week by Circuit Judge Killoren against Peter Paradise, 715 Carroll street, for injury of three persons in an automobile accident will form the basis of a claim against a surety company which Hyman G. Stein, representing plaintiffs, said yesterday he is preparing to file.

The judgments are held by George J. Fueller, a cigarmaker, 127 Etta avenue, St. Louis County, for $4750; his son, George, 9 years old, for $7500, and a daughter, Virginnia, 14, for $500. It was alleged that on the night of Dec. 20, last when they were standing in a safety zone at Jefferson avenue and Lynch street, they were struck by an automobile driven by Paradise, who did not stop.

Judge Killoren was told that Paradise was pursued to California and Lafayette avenues by the driver of another car, who obtained Paradise's license number.

Paradise, a disabled World War veteran, carried a $10,000 automobile liability insurance policy, but the company disclaimed liability on the grounds Paradise had not notified the company immediately after the accident.

CONVICT SHOT TRYING TO ESCAPE MARYLAND PRISON

Guard Beaten Unconscious When Three Make Break; Penitentiary ‘One of Worst in East.’

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, May 30. — A convict was critically wounded and a guard beaten into unconsciousness today when three prisoners, serving terms for robbery, tried unsuccessfully to escape from the Maryland State Penitentiary here.

Irvin D. Limper, 27 years old, sentenced last year to 20 years for a series of Baltimore holdups, fell in an exchange of shots with a wall guard, armed with a shotgun. One of the three in the escape attempt fired the pistol seized from the beaten guard.

Physicians said Limper's wounds probably would be fatal. It was the second unsuccessful attempt to escape from the prison, near the downtown section, in recent months.

The beaten guard, Terrence Cox, said he was called to James' cell with a request that he hand some packages through the bars. As he did so Limper and another convict leaped from adjoining cells, which were unlocked, seized the guard's gun, beat him over the head and locked him in a cell with his own keys.

The penitentiary was called “one of the worst in the East” in the report of a prison survey committee recently.

SHOT TO DEATH IN ROOM

William Milan Leaves Note Saying He Had Decided to “Call It Off.”

William Milan, 58 years old, was found dead in a room at his home, 1423 Deer street, yesterday morning, with a bullet wound in the left side of his head and a rifle with one discharged cartridge on the floor beside the chair in which he sat.

The body was found by a relative, Mrs. Etta Brueggman, 1415 Hills terrace, who went to his home at about 10 o'clock. A note which was found in the room and turned over to the police, said that for several months Milan had been “unable to get around,” and announced his intention to “call it off.”

CREDITORS GARNISHEE DROUTH RELIEF FUNDS

Department of Justice Is Asked to Seek Injunctions to Stop Practice.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Acting on complaints that creditors have been garnisheeing Government drouth relief loans in the drouth regions, particularly in Arkansas and Alabama, Elton R. Marshall, solicitor of the Department of Agriculture, has requested the Department of Justice to instruct Federal District Attorneys in those regions to start injunction proceedings to protect the Government's loans.

The Department of Justice has not yet acted on the request.

Solicitor Marshall was unable to say how many complaints had been received by the department, but explained that while they were numerous enough to require Government action they did not represent a wholesale drive. The complaints, he said, had come from virtually every state in the drouth area but most of them were from Arkansas and Alabama. The exact number, he continued, was not known because the loans were handled through regional offices. Most of the complaints of garnishee actions, he said, were made to these regional offices.

The money in question was lent out of the $65,000,000 fund appropriated at the last session of Congress for the purchase of seed and fertilizer for spring planting as well as for feed for animals. When the farmers deposited the money from the loans in the banks their creditors on previous loans filed liens against the new deposits.

"Our purpose in requesting the Department of Justice to act," said Marshall, "is two-fold. First, it is to protect the Government's interest in the money since the farmer, to obtain the loan, gave the Government a crop mortgage. Unless he is able to buy seed with the money he will have no crop and the Government will have no security. Second, we wish to protect the farmer, because if he is unable to plant a crop this spring all his prospects for a livelihood for another 12 months disappear."

Marshall said that the loans made from the drouth relief funds were for a specific purpose and that the Government had the right to enforce specific performance of the contract. Thus, he argued, the Government had the right to halt by injunction proceedings any interference by any person seeking to divert the funds to other purposes.

TAXICAB DRIVER ROBBED OF $11 AND AUTOMOBILE

Elmer Tobin's Machine Later Found Abandoned; Confectionery and Oil Station Held Up.

Elmer Tobin, a taxicab driver, 2718 Sullivan avenue, was robbed of $11 early yesterday by two men who entered his machine at Delmar boulevard and Laurel avenue. The cab, which they also took from him, later was found abandoned at 2400 North Taylor avenue.

Charles Williams was held up in his confectionery at 2917 Lawton boulevard by one of two Negroes who entered and asked for cigarettes. Drawing a revolver, one of them forced Williams to give up $51.

At a filling station at 1000 St. Louis avenue, East St. Louis, Edward Verbeck, the attendant, was locked in a washroom by two men who took $22 from his pockets and ran out of the place.

FRISCO TRAIN HITS BOULDER; SERIOUS DAMAGE AVERTED

Prompt Action by Engine Crew of the "Meteor" Prevents Possible Injury to Passengers.

Prompt action by the engine crew of the "Meteor," fast Frisco train from Oklahoma and Texas points, averted serious damage and possibly injury to passengers when the train crashed into a large boulder at 7 a. m. yesterday near Mincke, Meramec River station.

The boulder, 20 feet long and about 10 feet in diameter, had fallen from a cliff that overhangs the track. Fireman Sam Yanskey sighted it as the train rounded a curve at about 45 miles an hour and shouted a warning to Engineer W. J. Donohoe, who applied the emergency brakes.

The engine struck the boulder at reduced speed, splitting it and throwing it to the side of the tracks where it raked the steps from several of the train's 16 cars. No one was injured. The locomotive, disabled, was replaced by another and the train arrived at Union Station at 9:30, two hours late.

FARMER AND SON KILLED

Neighbor Sought After Shooting Near Winchester, Kan.

By the Associated Press.

WINCHESTER, Kan., May 30.—Charles Richardson, a farmer, and his son, Charles Richardson Jr., were shot to death today. William Hunsucker, a truck farmer, was sought as the slayer.

Marvin Mallory, a farm hand, said the killing followed a quarrel of the Richardsons with Hunsucker about leaving gates open.

$300 HOLDUP IN FRUIT STORE

Men Draw Revolvers as Proprietor Turns Back.

George Mathews, proprietor of a fruit store at 2912 North Vandeventer avenue, was robbed of $300 yesterday by two armed men.

Entering the store, they asked for cigarettes. As Mathews turned to serve them, they drew revolvers.

FOUR MEN CONVICTED OF HOLDUPS IN WEEK

One Gets 20 Years as Habitual Criminal—17 Other Felony Sentences.

One trial held in the criminal division of Circuit Court last week resulted in the conviction of Francis W. Foley, 26 years old, 2009 Martha place, charged with robbery under the Henry law and as an habitual criminal. Foley's punishment was fixed at 20 years in the penitentiary by a jury which, under the Court's instructions, might have assessed life imprisonment.

Foley was found guilty of holding up and robbing Joseph C. Alsbury, 3402 Lucas and Hunt road, St. Louis County, as he was seated in his automobile with Miss Edna McCombs in front of her home, 4714 Maffitt avenue, on the night of May 6, 1930. Alsbury lost $46 at the point of a pistol. Both he and Miss McCombs positively identified Foley, who was picked up by police on description. Foley previously had been convicted of the larceny of an automobile in 1927, for which he was sentenced to a year in the City Workhouse.

Three Robbers Plead Guilty.

Three others entered pleas of guilty to robbery charges and received penitentiary or reformatory sentences.

Harry Wolf, 23, 3741 Ohio avenue, who held up the drug store of Robert R. Peek, 3861 Kennerly avenue, on last Feb. 28, when $155 was taken from the cash drawer and customers, got 10 years in the penitentiary.

Paul Johnson, 30, who told police he had no home, received concurrent terms of seven years in the penitentiary for holding up two taxicab drivers for $7 on the night of April 7.

Raymond Debert, 17, who assisted another youth to rob a Public Service Co. conductor, was given 10 years in the penitentiary, commuted to four years in the Boonville Reformatory.

Others charged with felonies who received penitentiary or reformatory sentences were: Homer Vishion, two years at Boonville for burglary, and Dayton Turner, two years in the penitentiary for automobile theft.

Lighter Sentences.

Those charged with felonies who pleaded guilty and not less than penitentiary punishment were: Rocco Millusi, petit larceny, six months in City Workhouse; Willis Naylor, manslaughter and leaving scene of injury to a person, concurrent terms of one year; Harry Hemphill, malicious trespass, six months; Sam Johnson, petit larceny, six months; Floyd Jones and Gilbert Lancaster, carrying concealed weapons, $100 and costs; Norman Liebig, feloniously leaving scene of injury to a person, $100 and costs; Thomas Bear, forgery in fourth degree, six months; Emmett Brooks, malicious destruction of property, six months; Charles Russell, larceny of motor vehicle, six months; Charles Jackson and Dave Sanders, petit larceny, 30 days; Thomas Moss, driving automobile while intoxicated, 90 days; James Smith, malicious destruction of property, six months; Fred H. Ullrich, passing a bogus check, 60 days; Lester K. Judd, petit larceny, one year, and Lawrence Hollman, turning in false alarm, $50 and costs.

Charges of manslaughter against Edward O'Toole and of false pretenses against Claude T. Brewer and Alexander C. Kirby were dismissed by the Circuit Attorney's office for insufficient evidence.

NEW TELEPHONE BOOKS OUT

June Edition Carries 62,000 Changes; Deliveries Begun.

Delivery of the June edition of the telephone directory, in which there are more than 62,000 changes of addresses, names and telephone numbers, began yesterday, with men recruited from employment relief agencies doing the work.

Nearly 250,000 copies of the book will be delivered in St. Louis and suburbs. Delivery men are being paid a bonus to bring back the old books which are made obsolete by the new edition.

Peru Suspends Debt Payments.

LIMA, Peru, May 30.—The Junta Government today suspended payment on all debts, including the national loan, until Dec. 31, owing to the decreased national revenue, which was attributed to the prevailing economic depression.

a signed statement today, she said Davis had friends "plant" a quantity of whisky at Graham, Tex., at the home of her husband, Gus Anderson, former professional wrestler, and then called the Sheriff to arrest Anderson.

Anderson reached Dallas today and went to a hospital to see his wife. He expressed the hope she would recover. He said he had tried to persuade Davis to let his wife alone.

"Why, he even took her diamond ring I had given her and pawned it to buy a saxophone," Anderson said. "One time I met him with her in a room and gave her a chance to choose between us. She chose me and I told him to go his way. We shook hands and I thought he would be man enough to keep his promise but he kept on bothering her."

STANLEY CLARK TO SPEAK

He Will Discuss Proposed Unification of New York Transit Lines.

Proposed plans for the unification of the New York rapid transit lines will be discussed by Stanley Clarke, president of the Public Service Co., at the luncheon meeting of the St. Louis Electrical Board of Trade Tuesday at Hotel Statler.

The New York plan has been drafted by Samuel Untermyer, special counsel for the New York Transit Commission, and provides in general for municipal ownership with operation by an existing transportation organization on a contract basis. Tuesday's meeting will be the last of the weekly meetings of the Electrical Board of Trade this season and officers will be elected.

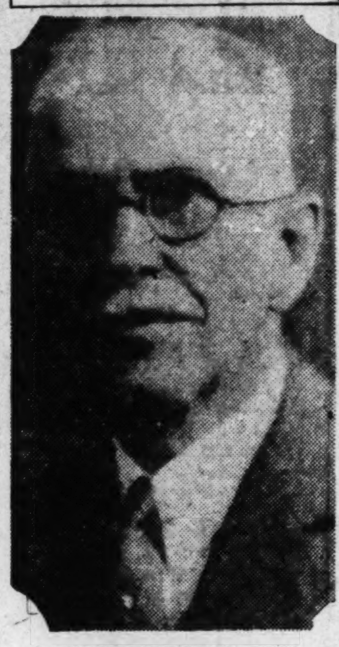
Glenn H. Curtiss' Estate.

MIAMI, Fla., May 30.—Personal holdings of the late Glenn H. Curtiss, pioneer airplane developer, who died last July, were valued at $2,667,258 in an inventory filed for probate here yesterday. In a will filed last August, Curtiss' widow and son, Glenn Hammon Curtiss Jr., were named as principal beneficiaries.

Frisco Conductor Retires Today After 54 Years

W. Lafe Heath, 70, With Same Road for 32 Years Never in a Wreck and Only Two Persons Hurt by His Trains.

RAILROAD VETERAN



W. LAFE HEATH.

When W. Lafe Heath, 70-year-old Frisco conductor, leaves the "Meteor," crack Oklahoma train, at Union Station this morning, he will have completed 54 years of railroading. Of that time, 48 years have been spent as a conductor, and he will retire on a pension as all employes of his age and position on the road do.

At the station to meet him will be old friends on the Frisco, members of his train crews, and his wife and family. He has three sons, one of whom is Chauncey P. Heath, St. Louis real estate dealer, and former champion 10-mile swimmer, and two others, Frederick L. Heath and Russell Heath, Chicago business men, and a daughter, Mrs. Vernon Baker of Wilson, Kan. In addition, he has an adopted son and daughter, John and Anna Heath, who live at home.

Ahead of him will be retirement with pay, which he calls "the event of a lifetime." He and Mrs. Heath make no denial of having looked forward to the day, holding it to be a goal of good service. There are two things he plans to do—spend a short time travelling by automobile, and then get busy on scrapbooks about his 32 years with the Frisco and 22 years with the Burlington before his Frisco service.

Never Had a Wreck.

At his home at 221 Baker avenue, Webster Groves, he has books filled with material for his scrapbook, pigeon-holes of his desk stuffed with it, and there are even framed documents on the walls.

Some facts of his career are unusual. He has never had a train wreck, he has never testified in a damage suit involving the railroad, and only two persons—a brakeman and a passenger—have been injured by his trains. He was made a conductor when he was 22, five years after he had started "braking" for the Burlington.

In 1889, still one of the youngest conductors in service, he was placed in charge of the International Congress Special, a train bearing South American diplomats on tour, and directed it over his division, where the entire line was cleared and flagmen placed at every road crossing along the route. "It was Pennsylvania engine No. 1053," he tells you, without looking at the yellowing orders he received. "That train was the first electrically-lighted train west of the Mississippi."

He grew up at Laclede, Mo., with Gen. John J. Pershing, and has several personal letters from the World War commander, one congratulating him on the service of his two sons in the war. In his youth, he knew Howard Elliott, later president of the Northern Pacific as a chairman with railroad surveyors, and W. C. Brown, later president of the New York Central, as a telegraph operator. Letters from them, both of whom are dead, are in his collection.

He is president of the Frisco Veterans' Association, made up of all who have been with the road more than 20 years, and is a member of the board of managers of the Railroad Y. M. C. A. From 1918 to 1923 he was general chairman of the Committee of Adjustment for conductors of the road, and from 1926 to 1930 service agent for the railroad in personnel work, retaining in each case his rank as conductor.

Recounting the story of his railroading, he tells how he married a girl who used to watch his train go by from her father's orchard at Pulaski, Ia., and how he told her his name by writing it on a card he threw off the train in a rolled newspaper.

Incidentally the house at 221 Baker avenue, is a few rods away from the Frisco station, on a spot he picked out as he went by on the train, and the same roses he admired for years as he rode by are in the yard now. Even the inside of his garage is papered with covers from Frisco company magazines. The whole story is railroad.

20 AMERICANS TO SHARE IN IRISH SWEEPSTAKES

Those Whose Names Were Drawn in Dublin Have Thereby Won at Least $4000 Apiece.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, May 30.—More than 20 residents of the United States and several in Canada figured in the drawing today for prizes of the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes on next Wednesday's Derby, to be run at Epsom Downs.

Each of those whose names were drawn already have won more than $4000 by virtue of the drawing. Drawing for minor prizes will be made Monday and Tuesday.

Five pretty Irish nurses dipped their hands into huge revolving drums to pull out the tickets which represent nearly $10,000,000 in prizes.

There is a new system this year which will give no winner the colossal fortune which some have collected in past sweepstakes. Instead, there will probably be 20 prizes running from $150,000 to $10,000 and hundreds of smaller awards. The hospital receives one-fifth of the subscriptions, the balance covering cash prizes and expenses. The total subscriptions are $13,948,480 and the prize fund $9,502,720.

So keen was the interest in the drawing that thousands waited in the streets outside the Mansion House before the ceremony began, and remained there to hear the results as announced through a loudspeaker. Thirty-three horses were drawn today.

WAR MOTHERS' SERVICE AT SEA

Wreaths Dropped Into Water in Memorial Day Exercises.

S. S. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, May 30.—Two hundred and eighteen gold star mothers and widows who lost their sons and husbands at sea during the World War participated today in impressive Memorial day services while this ship was carrying them to Europe. In a ceremony conducted by Capt. Theodore Van Beek, the pilgrims dropped wreaths over the side.

Mrs. James Walsh, 81 years old, of Cheyenne, Wyo., lowered a huge floral piece in the form of an anchor surmounted by a gold star. It was the tribute of the United States Government.

There are 12 young women in the graduating class, which will be presented by the Rev. Thomas M. Knapp, Chancellor of St. Louis University, and regent of the corporate colleges, of which Maryville College is one.

POPE PIUS XI TO CELEBRATE HIS 74TH BIRTHDAY TODAY

He Will Say Mass In His Private Chapel In Presence of Relatives.

By the Associated Press.

VATICAN CITY, May 30.—Pope Pius XI will be 74 years old tomorrow. The vigorous head of the Catholic Church, who once an Alpine mountain-climber, still retains much of the strength of his youth, intends to celebrate his birthday quietly in the midst of a few relatives and the papal court.

Tomorrow will see the papal flag, yellow and white with the Tiara and crossed keys in gold in the center flying from all the edifices of this city. The flag of the Swiss guards will wave from their station near the great bronze door to the right of St. Peter's. The Swiss, together with the Palatine guard and the papal gendarmes, will wear full dress uniforms.

The Pope will celebrate mass in his private chapel in the presence of several relatives, including his niece, Marchesa Persichetti Ugolini, wife of the Minister of Santo Domingo to the Holy See.

Pius XI is in the tenth year of his reign.

$2,000,000 LEPROSY FUND

NEW YORK, May 30.—The Leonard Wood Memorial Committee announced today it had completed its goal of a $2,000,000 endowment for the eradication of leprosy. The campaign was started in 1927 on the appeal of the late Gen. Wood, then Governor-General of the Philippines, and was carried on after his death as a memorial to him.

Contributions were received from 50,000 persons, and the amount raised totals $2,031,000. The active chairman of the committee was Gen. James G. Harbord and the honorary chairman, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson. Although the fund-raising effort has just been completed, the committee has been carrying on its work in the Philippines for several years. A new leprosarium on the Island of Cebu, nearly 400 miles south of Manila, is nearing completion. It consists of 55 buildings of reinforced concrete with a capacity of 780 persons. At Culion a modern laboratory and homes for the nursing staff and physicians are under construction.

Crushed to Death Under Piano.

By the Associated Press.

BECKLEY, W. Va., May 30.—Thomas E. Walker, 61 years old, a member of the Town Council of Lester, was killed today. A piano, used at a church social was being carried on a truck to return it to the owner. Walker climbed in to steady the piano. The truck bed was jolted loose and fell to the ground. The piano fell on Walker, crushing him to death.

EYE AND EAR CLINICS TO BE OPENED JULY 1

$40,000 Equipment Being Installed in Units of McMillan Hospital.

Opening of the clinics of McMillan Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Hospital, described by authorities as the finest in the world, has been authorized by the board of directors for July 1.

Oscar Johnson Institute of Research in Ophthalmology and Oto-Laryngology, which also has quarters in the $1,500,000 co-ordinated building at Kingshighway and Euclid avenues, was opened in January. Equipment now is being installed in the hospital clinics.

The ear, nose and throat clinic will occupy 8000 square feet on the ground floor, and the eye clinic will have 9000 square feet on the first floor of the 14-story building, with an entrance at 517 North Euclid avenue. As the $40,000 equipment, which includes such innovations as the only ear microscope in the United States, is completed, the clinics will be moved in from the Washington University dispensary, immediately north of the hospital and institute building.

Opening of the clinics, making available to the poor of St. Louis the highest developments in its specialties, will place in operation all the functions of the combined institution, which altogether has a $4,000,000 endowment for research, teaching, personnel, building and maintenance, except the hospital floors and main operating rooms. These are to be opened gradually whenever congestion appears in Barnes and Children's hospitals, now providing hospital space for patients in the two special branches, probably early next year.

As announced in the Post-Dispatch a year ago, the board decided then to complete the building on a scale adequate to demands for the next 20 years, although the Community Fund was unable to aid under conditions then. It sought the additional endowment of $1,200,000 required for maintenance, and decided to place the various divisions in operation from time to time, as finances were soundly completed and the facilities were required.

In line with that decision, the board has followed a conservative policy. It is requiring six months to place the institute laboratories in smooth operation, soundly organize budgets and equip the hospital clinics, and it is expected that at least a similar period will be required, for similar reasons, before the hospital proper is opened.

So far the hospital and institute have obtained $700,000 endowment for maintenance, plus $15,000 annual pledges which, capitalized, make a total maintenance endowment of virtually $1,000,000. Additional funds still are needed to open the hospital on the sound basis desired by the board, and, persons in authority stated today, it was considered unwise to throw extra hospital beds on the community in a period of depression which seriously affected hospitals already in operation. Especially when patients can be taken care of in Barnes and Children's hospitals without inconvenience to the institutions or themselves.

5000 at New Airport Dedication.

EFFINGHAM, Ill., May 30.—The new 120-acre airport here was dedicated today with ceremonies attended by about 5000 persons. Stunt flying and maneuvers by 22 airplanes were a part of the program.

WOMAN, 85, KILLED WHEN AUTO SKIDS, UPSETS IN DITCH

Mrs. Christina Geiss, St. Louis, Victim of Accident Near Carlyle, Ill., on Memorial Day Trip.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CARLYLE, Ill., May 30.—Mrs. Christina Geiss, 85 years old, 3021 St. Vincent avenue, St. Louis, was killed today when an automobile in which she was riding skidded on a paved road and overturned in a ditch.

The accident occurred seven miles east of Carlyle. The car was driven by Mrs. Geiss' son, W. H. Geiss, wso suffered minor injuries. Mother and son had been on their way to Centralia, Ill., to visit friends.

Chauffeur Injured in Head-on Collision With Street Car.

Elmer Marrah, a chauffeur, 4405 Nebraska avenue, suffered a fractured skull last night when his automobile, southbound, collided head-on with a street car at Broadway and Malt street. He was taken to City Hospital.

After the collision Marrah lost control of his car and it careened into a filling station and stopped when it struck the concrete base of a gasoline pump.

Jeff Hart, 1634A Park avenue, a chauffeur, was seriously injured by an automobile at Fourteenth street and Lafayette avenue, in front of the City Hospital. The driver fled. Policemen who were taking other patients into the hospital stopped to pick up Hart and carry him in. Hospital physicians said he probably had suffered a fracture of the skull. The police, were unable to get any description of the machine which struck Hart.

George Hale of 4909 Lansdowne avenue, was knocked down at Grand boulvard and Arsenal street, last night by an automobile driven by Walter Barnes, a mail carrier, of 1219 Jones street. Hale suffered cuts about the head and a possible fracture of the skull. He was taken to City Hospital.

St. Louis Woman Injured in Accident Near Fulton, Mo.

FULTON, Mo., May 30.—Mrs. Otto Schetter of Mascoutah, Ill., was injured fatally and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Clarence R. Schetter, 4004 Labadie avenue, St. Louis, was hurt in an automobile accident on U. S. Highway No. 40, seven miles northeast of Fulton, at 2 o'clock this morning. Their husbands were injured slightly.

The family was driving to Sweet Springs, Mo., to attend a birthday celebration. Their car overturned after skidding on a patch of mu on the concrete pavement.

Mrs. Otto Schetter, who was 65 years old, died at the Callaway County Hospital here. Mrs. Clarence Schetter was treated for a fractured shoulder blade.

to place the institute laboratories in smooth operation, soundly organize budgets and equip the hospital clinics, and it is expected that at least a similar period will be required, for similar reasons, before the hospital proper is opened.

So far the hospital and institute have obtained $700,000 endowment for maintenance, plus $15,000 annual pledges which, capitalized, make a total maintenance endowment of virtually $1,000,000. Additional funds still are needed to open the hospital on the sound basis desired by the board, and, persons in authority stated today, it was considered unwise to throw extra hospital beds on the community in a period of depression which seriously affected hospitals already in operation. Especially when patients can be taken care of in Barnes and Children's hospitals without inconvenience to the institutions or themselves.

WOMAN, 85, KILLED WHEN AUTO SKIDS, UPSETS IN DITCH

Mrs. Christina Geiss, St. Louis, Victim of Accident Near Carlyle, Ill., on Memorial Day Trip.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CARLYLE, Ill., May 30.—Mrs. Christina Geiss, 85 years old, 3021 St. Vincent avenue, St. Louis, was killed today when an automobile in which she was riding skidded on a paved road and overturned in a ditch.

The accident occurred seven miles east of Carlyle. The car was driven by Mrs. Geiss' son, W. H. Geiss, wso suffered minor injuries. Mother and son had been on their way to Centralia, Ill., to visit friends.

Chauffeur Injured in Head-on Collision With Street Car.

Elmer Marrah, a chauffeur, 4405 Nebraska avenue, suffered a fractured skull last night when his automobile, southbound, collided head-on with a street car at Broadway and Malt street. He was taken to City Hospital.

After the collision Marrah lost control of his car and it careened into a filling station and stopped when it struck the concrete base of a gasoline pump.

Jeff Hart, 1634A Park avenue, a chauffeur, was seriously injured by an automobile at Fourteenth street and Lafayette avenue, in front of the City Hospital. The driver fled. Policemen who were taking other patients into the hospital stopped to pick up Hart and carry him in. Hospital physicians said he probably had suffered a fracture of the skull. The police, were unable to get any description of the machine which struck Hart.

George Hale of 4909 Lansdowne avenue, was knocked down at Grand boulvard and Arsenal street, last night by an automobile driven by Walter Barnes, a mail carrier, of 1219 Jones street. Hale suffered cuts about the head and a possible fracture of the skull. He was taken to City Hospital.

St. Louis Woman Injured in Accident Near Fulton, Mo.

FULTON, Mo., May 30.—Mrs. Otto Schetter of Mascoutah, Ill., was injured fatally and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Clarence R. Schetter, 4004 Labadie avenue, St. Louis, was hurt in an automobile accident on U. S. Highway No. 40, seven miles northeast of Fulton, at 2 o'clock this morning. Their husbands were injured slightly.

The family was driving to Sweet Springs, Mo., to attend a birthday celebration. Their car overturned after skidding on a patch of mud on the concrete pavement.

Mrs. Otto Schetter, who was 65 years old, died at the Callaway County Hospital here. Mrs. Clarence Schetter was treated for a fractured shoulder blade.

ODESSA, Mo., May 30.—Miss Bearl Raye, 24 years old, and H. P. Moore of St. Louis; E. Allen of East St. Louis, and W. Burgess and P. Doolan of Kansas City were injured in an automobile collision on U. S. Highway No. 40, two miles west of here, last night. Miss Raye, who suffered a fracture of the right arm, was accompanying Moore to visit her sister in Kansas City.

Moore attempted to drive around a truck and his car collided with one approaching from the west, which was occupied by the three other men. Allen suffered a severe head injury and possible in-

SEES BENEFIT TO AVIATION IN 10-MILE ASCENT

Prof. August Piccard Also Hopes His Flight Will Aid Rocket-Motoring in Stratosphere.

By the Associated Press.

OBERGURGL, Austria, May 30.—Prof. August Piccard told Europe over the radio tonight it was his "fervent hope" that his 10-mile-high balloon flight would "bear practical results for aviation and for rocket-motoring into the stratosphere."

Electrical storms over the Tyrolean Alps and elsewhere interfered somewhat with the broadcasting of the scientist's account of his record-making ascent of last Wednesday, but thousands throughout the continent heard him tell of the results of his adventure.

The Swiss-born physicist said he regarded it of prime importance to have proved that man can ascend into the stratosphere and live. The construction of his balloon, he asserted was perfect for that purpose. He concluded by giving "sincere thanks to all who helped find and rescue our balloon."

Prof. Piccard was followed at the microphone by Charles Kipfer, the assistant who made the ascent with him.

Then Herr Falkner, the school teacher who was first to find Piccard and Kipfer on the Gurgl glacier, described how he almost missed the scientists on the mountain.

Having no idea that the two had ascended into the stratosphere and returned to earth alive, he thought, when he heard someone calling the morning of the rescue, that they must be tourists and paid no further attention. However, when he reached the balloon on the glacier and read the messages left there by the scientists, he and his companions immediately retraced their steps.

The party had some trouble in locating Piccard and Kipfer, both of whom were in a weakened condition when they finally were found. Then Falkner shot into the valley on his skis, carrying telegrams, while others of the rescue party followed slowly with the scholar-adventurers.

The deflated bag of Piccard's balloon was brought down from the Gurgl glacier today, but the aluminum ball in which Piccard and Kipfer rose into the isothermic layer was left where it lay. It was found almost impossible to move it, and the salvage party "dedicated" it as a memorial to the flight, leaving it there on the ice for the summer tourists to admire.

JOAN OF ARC HONORED BY CHURCH AND STATE

One of Most Imposing Processions in France Since Armistice Marks Anniversary.

By the Associated Press.

ROUEN, France, May 30.—St. Joan of Arc, five centures to a day after her execution, today received the solemn homage of all her countrymen and of the entire Catholic world.

Over the city in which she was burned at the stake for heresy hydroplanes and airplanes soared, church bells pealed a tribute, a salute of 21 guns from a battery of France's famous 75's boomed while bugles and drums sounded the French army's famous call "To the Fields," and all the sirens in port were blown at noon, the hour of the maid-of-Orleans' death. At the same moment bells throughout France rang in unison.

Imposing Procession.

Before the statue that marks the spot of her martyrdom there passed one of the most imposing processions of ecclesiastical and civic dignitaries witnessed in France since the armistice. Headed by the English Cardinal Bourne, Archbishop of Westminster, the Pope's own legate on the occasion, four other wearers of the Cardinals' purple and 50 bishops paid tribute to the memory of the peasant girl whom their predecessors had deemed guilty of sorcery and heresy and sent to the stake.

President-elect Doumer, as future heir to the Government of France, sent a special representative to honor the maid of Orleans, who restored the nation's liberty and took King Charles VII to Rheims to be crowned. Premier Laval and the French Government were represented by Vice Premier Leon Derard, Minister of Justice. Marshal Franchet d'Esperey, Gen. Gouraud, Military Governor of Paris, and Gen. Weygand, commander in chief of the French Army, brought the salute of the successors to Joan's men-at-arms.

Flowers in River for Expiation.

After a series of speeches extolling the warrior-maid at the site of St. Joan's sacrifice the whole cortege repaired to the Boieldieu bridge. There flowers were reverently cast into the waters of the Seine in expiation for the action of her executioner, who scattered her ashes in the river 500 years ago.

At dusk a group of children lighted the "sacred flame" at the foot of St. Joan's monument. At the same time there was sung an oratorio, inspired by the saint's deeds and sufferings, in Rouen's magnificent gothic cathedral. Later in the evening all the Rouennais and their visitors turned out for a huge torchlight parade, the crack band of the French Navy furnishing an accompaniment of patriotic airs. A blast of trumpets blown by heralds in fifteenth century costume ended the day's commemoration.

WOMAN, HELD IN POISONINGS, CHARGED WITH FIFTH KILLING

Named by Sister of Second Husband, Said in 1917 to Have Died of Tuberculosis.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 30.—Mrs. Margaret Summers, middle-aged widow charged with poisoning four men, was identified today as the woman who married Stanley Korzen, a warehouse worker, seven months before he died in 1917. Investigation into Korzen's death, supposed to have been due to tuberculosis, was ordered. Mrs. Summers had been known to have had two other husbands. The last, Thomas Summers, was one of four men whose deaths were found to hav caused by poison.

The identification of Mr mers as the former Mrs. was made by Mrs. May E. kowski, sister of Korzen. her brother married the soon after her first husband Fairfax, died. Fairfax and had worked in the sam house, the sister said.

ADMIRAL TAKES FLING AT AMERICAN LEGION

Moffett Cites Criticism for Helping Members Rather Than National Defense.

By the Associated Press.

PASSAIC, N. J., May 30.—Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, said today he believed the activities of the American Legion had reached a point "where the public is wondering whether it is being imposed upon."

"The legion is being criticized," he said in a Memorial day address, "for doing too much for its members and not enough for national defense. Adjusted compensation passed the last Congress, but the navy's first year London treaty building program did not."

Admiral Moffett prefaced his remarks by telling his listeners that he spoke as a legionnaire. "I would remind you that the object and mission of the legion is, first, service to the country and not to the legion," he said. "There is being appropriated for war veterans, directly and indirectly, about a billion dollars a year—a stupendous sum. This money is furnished by all American taxpayers. . . .

"The American Legion is doing a great and patriotic work in many fields. Its influence with Congress is tremendous. Let us hope that it will never lose sight of the fact that the organization is for service to the nation and not for individuals or for any organization."

Admiral Moffett urged support of programs for national defense. "especially building up to the London treaty navy, so that we may have not only security but also maintain our self-respect as a nation."

"I recall 1914 and onward," he said, "when this country slumbered and said we would not be drawn into war. . . . We did not prepare. It cost us thousands of lives and billions of dollars, and today each and every one of you is suffering because of our shameful neglect. Today the situation is much the same as it was prior to 1914, only the armed forces and the numbers of men under arms in the world are much greater, except our own."

Ex-Head of Legion Urges More Aid for Veterans.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—The United States Government, in the opinion of James A. Drain, past national commander of the American Legion, cannot "overdo its aid to the disabled" war veterans.

Replying to critics who say "too much public money" has been spent for veterans' relief, Drain said in a Memorial day address at Arlington National Cemetery that the Government had done much in this direction, but must do more.

"We can never do too much to brighten their dark roads of life or lighten their heavy burdens," he said. "We owe them everything. Their miseries are for us. They suffer that we may enjoy. If we forget them, or fail in our duty toward them, ours is that basest of sins, ingratitude.

"I say this with the more earnestness because just lately some, lacking knowledge or right feeling, have said that our country spends too much public money in aid of our disabled. We must not waste, for that is wrong, but it would be immeasurably worse to want in justice to our disabled."

Drain said war could not be "wished or resolved away, or gotten rid of in any fashion until the majority of men in every principal nation have friendly and understanding hearts."

The difference is—we can PROVE it

Words don't care who uses them. They will just as readily write fiction about one motor car as facts about another

For that reason we can't say any more about the De Soto Eight than can be said about any other car.

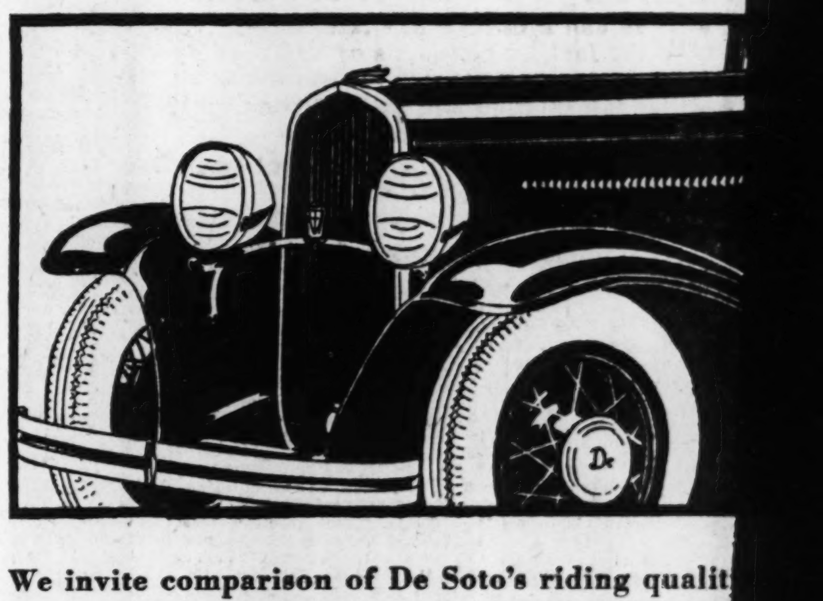
But we can prove a lot more—and we will if you will give us a chance. All we ask is that you make a fair comparison of the De Soto Eight against any car of comparable price. That's our challenge—not a duel of adjectives but a test of quality.

We invite comparison of the performance of De Soto's 77-horsepower engine—of hill-climbing ability—of agility in traffic—of effortless speed on the highway.

We invite comparison of De Soto's all-steel body for safety, permanent silence and stamina.

We invite comparison of De Soto's Chrysler-designed internal weatherproof hydraulic brakes—always self-equalizing; positive and "soft" in action.



We invite comparison of De Soto's riding qualit the result of long, flexible springs controlled by hydraulic shock absorbers.

We invite comparison of De Soto's slender-pr radiator; long, sweeping lines; French-pleated Be Cord upholstery; tasteful and beautiful interior fit

In short, we invite comparison of the all-ar quality offered by De Soto against what others are off for a comparable price—and of the price De Soto ch for this quality against what you have to pay to get thing even approximately as good in other cars.

Come in today and give us a chance to prove what can merely claim.

LIGHT GAIN IN
LOCAL EXCHANGE

ajority of Leaders Are Either Unchanged or Slightly Lower at Close — Wagner Electric to New 1931 Low.

A slightly larger volume of busi-ess was transacted on the St.
ouis Stock Exchange last week,
ith the majority of usual leaders ther unchanged or fractionally ower at the close. The Memorial y holiday reduced the number of essions. There were several exeptions to the general trend, Elder
A," Coca-Cola Bottling and the urkart issues showing net gains.
Wagner Electric was the most ctive issue and recorded a new w for year of 12 but regained part of loss, showing only a mall fractional net decline. Brown hoe, International Shoe and Mc-uay-Norris were off fractionally.
ohnson, Stephen, Shinkle lost 3¼ oints. Sculli Steel preference de-lined 1½ points and Dr. Pepper point.
Missouri Portland closed un-hanged after selling higher. Othrs closing at unchanged prices
ere National Candy, Stix, Baer & Fuller, Ely-Walker, Landis Ma-hine and Hamilton Brown.

any has been paying dividends at he rate of 62½ cents quarterly.

FINANCIAL NOTES

y the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, May 30.—Seven il royalty companies in the United States, all under the management of J. Edward Jones, have been consolidated into one corporation,
Consolidated American Royalty
Corporation, formed in Delaware.
Frank Haskell, president of Tidal
Oil Co., is chairman of the board of the new corporation and J. Edward Jones is president.

Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Co., is to discuss "A New Index of Industrial Activity" at the opening session of the twenty-third annual convention of the Special Libraries Association in Cleveland, June 10 to 12.

The first half of a double holiday was observed in Wall street today, with business suspended until Monday morning because of memorial day. The New York Stock and Curb Exchanges, commodity exchanges and banks were closed.

$1,000,000 in Gold Minted.

MEXICO CITY, May 30.—About $1,000,000 in gold has been minted by the Government during the last 10 days in an effort to supply the public demand and to improve the exchange value of the silver peso. The Government feels that with an increased ratio of gold in circulation there will be a corresponding increase in the value of silver. The normal value of the silver peso is 3 per cent below gold, but it now is quoted at 27 per cent below.

STOCK PRICE SHRINKAGE CONTINUES DURING WEEK

Questionnaire Sent Out.

It was the first time since Nov. 13, 1929, that the Exchange has dispatched a questionnaire to all members for information on the extent and identity of the short interest, and this step provided a lively topic of conversation in Wall street, where opinion differs widely as to the part played by bear selling in the spring decline.

It was recalled that when the last questionnaire was distributed professional bears were popularly held largely responsible for undermining stock values, but that the investigation, as was announced many months later, had disclosed a very tiny short position in the market at that time. Nevertheless, the official action was then so reassuring that stocks rebounded from their Nov. 13 lows.

Events at home showed little departure from recent trends. April railroad earnings were discouraging; neither electric power output nor freight car loadings provided much cheer.

Some observers find comfort in the tendency of industry to follow seasonal trends this year, a tendency that was mostly absent in 1930 when the path of business, after the false start early in the first quarter, was uncompromisingly downward. The seasonal upturn this spring was at least an approach to normal recovery, and the movement in many lines now corresponds to the direction usually taken as the year swings into, and through, the summer.

SLIGHT GAIN IN STOCK TRADE ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

Majority of Leaders Are Either Unchanged or Slightly Lower at Close — Wagner Electric to New 1931 Low.

A slightly larger volume of business was transacted on the St. Louis Stock Exchange last week, with the majority of usual leaders either unchanged or fractionally lower at the close. The Memorial day holiday reduced the number of sessions. There were several exceptions to the general trend, Elder "A," Coca-Cola Bottling and the Burkart issues showing net gains.

Wagner Electric was the most active issue and recorded a new low for year of 12[illegible] but regained a part of loss, showing only a small fractional net decline. Brown Shoe, International Shoe and McQuay-Norris were off fractionally. Johnson, Stephen, Shinkle lost 3¼ points. Scullin Steel preference declined 1½ points and Dr. Pepper 1 point.

Missouri Portland closed unchanged after selling higher. Others closing at unchanged prices were National Candy, Stix, Baer & Fuller, Ely-Walker, Landis Machine and Hamilton Brown.

Local Business and Financial Items

(Paragraphs for publication in this column should be addressed to the Financial Editor.)

Directors of Curtis Manufacturing Co. have voted a dividend of 25 cents per share on the common stock of the company, dividend to be paid July 1, to stockholders of record as of June 15. The company has been paying dividends at the rate of 62½ cents quarterly.

FINANCIAL NOTES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 30.—Seven oil royalty companies in the United States, all under the management of J. Edward Jones, have been consolidated into one corporation, Consolidated American Royalty Corporation, formed in Delaware. Frank Haskell, president of Tidal Oil Co., is chairman of the board of the new corporation and J. Edward Jones is president.

Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Co., is to discuss "A New Index of Industrial Activity" at the opening session of the twenty-third annual convention of the Special Libraries Association in Cleveland, June 10 to 12.

The first half of a double holiday was observed in Wall street today, with business suspended until Monday morning because of memorial day. The New York Stock and Curb Exchanges, commodity exchanges and banks were closed.

$1,000,000 in Gold Minted.

MEXICO CITY, May 30.—About $1,000,000 in gold has been minted by the Government during the last 10 days in an effort to supply the public demand and to improve the exchange value of the silver peso. The Government feels that with an increased ratio of gold in circulation there will be a corresponding increase in the value of silver. The normal value of the silver peso is 3 per cent below gold, but it now is quoted at 27 per cent below.

STOCK PRICE SHRINKAGE CONTINUES DURING WEEK

appear to have arisen with the approach of the conference arranged between British and German cabinet officers.

Questionnaire Sent Out.

It was the first time since Nov. 13, 1929, that the Exchange has dispatched a questionnaire to all members for information on the extent and identity of the short interest, and this step provided a lively topic of conversation in Wall street, where opinion differs widely as to the part played by bear selling in the spring decline.

It was recalled that when the last questionnaire was distributed professional bears were popularly held largely responsible for undermining stock values, but that the investigation, as was announced many months later, had disclosed a very tiny short position in the market at that time. Nevertheless, the official action was then so reassuring that stocks rebounded from their Nov. 13 lows.

Events at home showed little departure from recent trends. April railroad earnings were discouraging; neither electric power output nor freight car loadings provided much cheer.

Some observers find comfort in the tendency of industry to follow seasonal trends this year, a tendency that was mostly absent in 1930 when the path of business, after the false start early in the first quarter, was uncompromisingly downward. The seasonal upturn this spring was at least an approach to normal recovery, and the movement in many lines now corresponds to the direction usually taken as the year swings into, and through, the summer.

NEW LOWS FOR SEASON ARE SCORED BY COTTON

Selling Evidently Influenced by Weather Reports and Unsettled Stock Markets.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 30.—A further decline has occurred in the cotton market here during the past week, with prices making new low records for the season, under selling which was evidently influenced by more favorable weather reports from the South and the unsettled ruling of the stock market. The break extended to 8.45c for July and 9c for December contracts toward the end of the week, which according to one calculation were equivalent to about 7½c for cotton in the interior of the South.

These prices evidently attracted an increased trade demand, and there were moderate rallies preceding the holidays on this buying and covering. The more urgent demand seemed to be supplied on an advance of about 30 points from the lowest, however, and the bulges appeared to meet some selling on the continued good weather, combined with the failure of the stock markt to show more pronounced improvement.

Four of the private end-May crop reports were published during the week. Figures on the indicated decrease in acreage shown by these reports ranged from 7.8 per cent up to 11.9 per cent and two of the reports carried condition figures, one of them making it 70.6 per cent and the other 67.3 per cent. According to one of the private reports, a reduction of 7.8 per cent in acreage, with an end-May condition of 70.6 per cent pointed to a possible crop of around 13,500,000 bales, with average conditions during the balance of the season. There may have been a little selling on these figures, but much of Friday's business was attributed to evening-up of accounts for over the holiday and week-end.

According to the New York Cotton Exchange Service, world's consumption of American lint cotton for the month of April amounted to 995,000 bales, against 1,068,000 last year. The figures were regarded as pointing to a probable world's consumption of from 11,100,000 11,300,000 bales, and estimates placing the world's carryover at the end of the season at about 8,750,000 bales had been reiterated.

Some hope is expressed that retail distribution may be stimulated by the publicity to be given cotton next week, but cotton traders are still watching the stock market very closely, and the market's response to further developments either in the goods market or with reference to crop progress are expected to depend largely upon the action of securities.

CATTLE AT LOWEST MAY PRICES IN 20 YEARS

Declining Markets Rule in Hogs Throughout Week—Lamb Prices Down.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, May 30.—(United States Department of Agriculture)—Cattle: Receipts for the concluding week in May approximated 12,350, as compared with 13,390 for the preceding week and 11,523 during the corresponding period last year. Although receipts were moderate, severely curtailed demand for beef in the East, together with the readjustment of commodity prices in general, were the prime factors in further declines enforced on cattle values this week. Price levels have now reached a pre-war basis, and for the month of May are the lowest in 20 years and right at, if not quite, as low as any period in the last two decades, so it has been claimed by those who have searched the records. Compared with the close of the preceding week, yearling steers sold 25c lower; other native steers 50c lower, with spots down 75c; Western steers, vealers and all stocker and feeder classes 50c lower; strictly choice, light weight mixed yearlings and heifers steady; others 25c to 50c lower; cows, cutters and low cutters $1 lower. Tops for the week: 523-lb. heifers $8.25; 583-lb. mixed yearlings $8; 930-lb. steer yearlings, $7.65; 1262-lb. matured steers $7.25; beef cows and Texas grass steers, $5.50; medium bulls $4; vealers, $8.75; stocker steers, $7. Heavy steers comprised one load at $6.75, averaging 1440 lbs., while medium weights scaling in the 1200-lb. column ranged from $6.25@7.25, more at the extreme figures than other prices. Steers averaging 1108 to 1183 lbs. ranged from $5.60@7.15, bulk $6.25@7.15. Light weight steers and yearlings spread from $5.25@7.65, bulk $5.75@7.40, inside bulk $6.10@6.75, while bulk of all natives registered $5.75@7.25. Texas provided 52 cars as against 54 last week. These grass steers ranged from $4@5.50, bulk $4.50@5.50. Fat mixed yearlings and heifers went largely at $6.50@7.50; medium fleshed descriptions, $6@6.50; cows $3.25@4.25; low cutters $2@2.50. The week closed with top medium bulls $3.75; top vealers, $8.

Bulk and top prices the corresponding week last were as follows: Steers $9.25@11.75, top, $13; fat mixed yearlings and heifers $10@11, top $12.35; medium fleshed kinds, $9@10; cows $7.25@8.25, top $9.50; low cutters, $4.25@5.25; top medium bulls, $7.75; top vealers $11.75; bulk stocker and feeder steers, $7.40@9.35, top $10.

Hog Market Declines.

Declining markets ruled in hogs throughout the entire week here under liberal receipts, the cause most responsible for the decline being lower prices on dressed products at Eastern centers, however. Arrivals for the week of five days totaled approximately 60,700, as compared with 58,254 for the same five-day period last week. All classes of hogs declined, lightweights showing the sharpest breaks. Compared with the close last week, a decline of 35@50c is shown, while sows are mostly 50c lower. A high of $6.80 was paid in the week's opening session for a few hogs, with closing top at $6.25, a few small lots reaching $6.30 and $6.35. Bulk of closing sales on 240-lb. weights down were at $6.15@6.25, with 250 to 300 lb. averages ranging from $5.85@6.15. Pigs on the close varied from $6@6.25, while packing sows went principally at $4.75@5, within a range of $4.60@5.10. One year ago top hogs scored $10.45, with 100 to 140 lb. weights $9.75@10.25; 150 to 250 lbs. $10.30@10.40; 270 to 310 lbs. $10.05@10.25; sows $9.15@9.25.

Uneven Declines in Lambs.

In common with other classes of livestock the sheep and lamb market encountered uneven declines in price here the past week. Receipts were liberal, approximately 25,900 being received during the first five days as compared with 18,750 for the same period the previous week. Sales ruled generally 50c lower on lambs with sheep 25@50c lower. Clipped lambs were in quantities so small as to make an accurate basis of comparison difficult but declined somewhat in sympathy with the break in spring lambs. Graded lambs scored a high of $10.75 during the week with majority selling from $10 downward and closing deals bulking at $9.50 with a few underweight kinds $9 and $9.25. Buck lambs were sorted off at $1 discount from ewe and wether lambs of comparable weight and fat. Cull lambs went at $6 mostly on the close. Sales included Texas clipped lambs up to $7.25 with natives quoted at $7@7.50 in small lots. Receipts included a string of two-year-old Texas clipped wethers at $4.50 and aged sorts at $3. Fat ewes ranged from $2.50 downward, trade late in the week seeing heavy descriptions at $1.50 and common ewes at $1 or less. Spring lambs a year ago topped at $13.50; bulk $12.50@13; culls $9; clipped lambs $10.25 downward; and fat ewes were selling from $4@5.

X-RAY CANCER TREATMENTS MAY BE STANDARDIZED

American Scientist Takes Apparatus to International Congress at Paris.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 30.—Cancer treatments with X-rays may be standardized for the entire world through use of an apparatus with which an American scientist sailed for Europe today. The scientist, Lauriston H. Taylor, X-ray physicist of the United States Bureau of Standards, Washington, has developed what is believed the first portable "X-ray yardstick" ever devised, known technically as a portable standard ionization chamber.

The "yardstick" provides a standard unit for accurately comparing intensity of X-rays from different X-ray tubes. It is an adaptation of the old type of nonportable ionization chamber.

Taylor's ionization chamber may be adopted as the international X-ray standard at the third International Congress of Radiology in Paris, July 23 to 27. It is expected the congress will adopt some existing national standard for international use. Taylor's apparatus already has been adopted as the standard unit for measurement of X-ray power in the United States. He will demonstrate it before the congress as the official representative of the United States Government and American radiological societies.

The ionization chamber measures the intensity of an X-ray beam by registering the amount of atoms of air in the beam's path from which electrons are split off by the beam.

AMERICANS HURT IN CANADA

Nine, Including Girl, Injured in Auto Collision.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Ontario, May 30.—Injured and helpless, nine Americans lay among the wreckage of their two automobiles for half an hour this morning before police arrived to extricate them. The cars collided and plunged into a ditch on a highway north of here. One of the occupants, a girl, was seriously hurt, while the others suffered cuts.

The injured, who were taken to a hospital, are: Frank O'Razek, Leslie Krug, Dorothy Bruer, Hortense Bruer and Louise Snider of Detroit, and Alex Lemere, Joseph Lemere, Clifford Lemere and Miss Jennie Lemere of Holyoke, Mass.

Lafayette-South Side Head.

Fred A. Hesse was elected president of the Lafayette-South Side Club at a meeting last week. Fred J. Frewer was elected vice president and Miss Mary Speck secretary and treasurer. Eight others were elected to the Board of Governors.

FREE TRADE AID TO BRITAIN, SAYS LLOYD GEORGE

Suggests It Is Cure for Country's Industrial Ills, Citing "Dime Lines" in America.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 30.—David Lloyd George, leader of the Liberal party, today made an impassioned appeal for free trade, suggesting it as a cure for Great Britain's industrial ills and drawing freely upon American examples to support his arguments.

"We must get rid of the great international debts which are crushing the nations," he told the National Conference for the Liberal free trade campaign.

"If there were an election tomorrow," he declared, "there would be a free trade majority of more than 1,000,000 votes, but, under the present electoral system you might have a majority in the House of commons of 100 for protection."

Insofar as the war made many changes, he said, they were changes which strengthened the free trade argument. All the protectionist countries in Europe which were engaged in the war came out of it in financial collapse, he said, and the only country which came through financially sound was free trade Britain.

"Take the level of wages as a standard of living in all European countries and the highest today is is free trade Britain.

"After all, America did not go through the war, she saw only half of it, and during the other half she was making huge profits out of the other countries.

"Dime Lines" in America.

"We hear a great deal about unemployment in America, but we don't hear all the facts. There are long bread lines, but a friend of mine who came from there the other day told me about other lines.

"He called them 'Dime Lines'—long lines of honest workmen out of jobs. He saw them passing by a Catholic Church with a priest on the steps handing a copper or two to each of those workmen out of work."

"There are no bread lines, no penny lines, in this country," the Liberal leader continued. "There is more employment to the square mile in this country than in any other country in the world.

"Since the war there has been an unprecedented European movement against tariffs. The protectionist countries of Europe are now meeting to consider not how they shall make Britain come into their tariff ring but how they are to get out of it themselves.

"Europe is struggling hard to get its feet out of the tariff stocks, while British statesmen are inaugurating a campaign to get the feet of Britain fastened right in those same stocks.

"Take the effects of certain protectionist experiments in England during and since the war. Let anyone look at those and he will not need further arguments in favor of free trade.

Curse to Motor Industry.

Lloyd George said that American motor manufacturers were beating England in such countries as Brazil, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, and continued:

"Tariffs are preventing our people from applying their minds to the capture of those gigantic markets. Tariffs have been a curse to the motor industry instead of a blessing."

He quoted a letter from an American friend who said people in the United States were exceedingly gloomy and afraid of complete economic collapse.

"Free trade Britain must show that she has no intention of squatting down in the puddle of despair until the sun breaks through to dry it up," the Liberal leader declared. "To all these young people today protection is not what it is to us—an old mouldering vintage that has been uncorked and uncorked again whenever the Tory party wanted a stimulant."

He concluded:

"If Britain abandons free trade now she will have betrayed a great trust. She will have bartered away a great inheritance for a mess of pottage.

"And what a mess!"

TREASURER OF UNITED STATES TO ADDRESS C. OF C. MEETING

Maj. Walter O. Woods to Talk on Financial Operations In His Department.

Maj. Walter O. Woods, who, as Treasurer of the United States, fixes his signature to all of the nation's currency and signs salary checks for all officials of the Government, including the President, will speak at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Members' Assembly at Hotel Statler at noon tomorrow. His subject is "United States Treasury Financial Operations."

The first Treasurer of the United States to be promoted to that office by civil service, Major Woods is a veteran in Government work. After service in the War and Treasury departments, he was appointed in 1927 special assistant to the War Loan staff and in the same year named Register of the Treasury.

He has custody of all of the Nation's money, collecting and paying out all of it. In addition he is in charge of all foreign obligations of the United States.

LAKE TO BE NAMED FOR TAFT PLANNED FOR WASHINGTON

Tidal Basin May Be Made Into Memorial for Ex-President and Late Chief Justice.

WASHINGTON.—A movement is on foot in the Capitol to honor the memory of William Howard Taft, the only man in our republic who attained two of the highest offices in the land—the Presidency and the chief justiceship.

At this time of the year, the time of cherry blossoms and when visitors from far and near who flock to Washington to view this magnificent sight, few, if any, turn a thought to the man who made this unmatched beauty possible. It was Mr. Taft to whom the Emperor of Japan presented these trees, and through his efforts they were planted around the tidal basin in Washington.

The plan is to change the tidal basin into a beautiful lake and call it "Taft Lake." The walls of the basin would be constructed of marble instead of stone, as they now are, and granite blocks placed at intervals of about 50 feet, in which could be imbedded bronze plates bearing sketches of his long public service.

On one side of the lake would be placed a suitable statue of Taft as President of the United States. On the other side, directly opposite, wuold be placed another statue of him as chief justice.

A bridge, known here as the "million dollar bridge," was recently changed to "Taft Bridge," but friends of the late President say this, while a splendid gesture, is inadequate.

SEEKS TO INCLUDE ST. LOUIS IN NEW AIR MAIL ROUTE

Chamber of Commerce Board to Send Representatives to Hearing in Washington.

The Air Board of the Chamber of Commerce has requested the establishment of air mail service between St. Louis and Memphis, Tenn., in connection with the recently established Memphis-to-New Orleans route.

O. M. Atterbery, chairman of the committee, telegraphed Postoffice authorities that St. Louis business interests needed the service because of their large volume of business with cities in Southern states and Latin-American countries. Raymond A. Walsh, representing the Chamber of Commerce, and Frank Robertson, local airline operator, will attend a hearing at Washington next Tuesday in connection with the proposed service.

"LEGS" DIAMOND HEAVILY GUARDED IN CATSKILL JAIL

New York Gangster to Be Arraigned Tomorrow on Charge of Kidnaping.

By the Associated Press.

CATSKILL, N. Y., May 30.—Jack (Legs) Diamond, gangster, was a prisoner in the hospital ward of the Greene County jail tonight. He was taken here today under guard of state troopers from an Albany hospital where he had been a patient since a gunman shot him on the night of April 27 as he left the Aratoga Inn near Cairo.

Diamond is to be arraigned tomorrow on charges of kidnaping, assault and carrying a pistol. Three other members of his gang, also alleged to be involved in an attack upon Grover Parks, a truck driver, are in the same jail.

In addition to the regular guard, four troopers have been added to the jail patrol. Flood lights play upon the jail exterior.

SALES MANAGERS' BUREAU OF C. OF C. TO ELECT OFFICERS

President to Review Work of Organization at Annual Meeting Friday.

Election of directors and officers of the Chamber of Commerce Sales Managers' Bureau will be held at its annual meeting at Hotel Jefferson Friday, at which the work of the bureau will be reviewed by C. E. Michel, its president.

Plans are being prepared for a series of round-table discussion meetings of the bureau during the summer months to supplant the regular Friday meetings held during the winter. The winter meetings followed an address system, whereby prominent business executives were brought to St. Louis to speak.

In addition to its meetings, the bureau sponsors trade trips through St. Louis' business territory, and in making other contacts for better business relations in the area, works to improve the local market.

36 HURT WHEN POLICE CHARGE COMMUNISTS

One Red Shot and Officers Stabbed in Breaking Up Youngstown, O., Parade.

By the Associated Press.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 30.—At least 11 police officers and about 25 demonstrators were injured in a fight between police and members of the Young Communist League here tonight when the officers broke up a Communist demonstration in the downtown section.

Forty of the demonstrators were arrested. One of them was shot through the abdomen. Among those arrested are four women and an 8-year-old boy.

The officers, some of them mounted, swung clubs, and the demonstrators threw lumps of coal, bricks and chunks of concrete and wielded knives.

The fight started when five mounted officers and about 20 unmounted officers, headed by Police Chief Paul E. Lyden, charged about 300 demonstrators who had begun on a parade for which a permit had been refused, although several times applied for.

As the trouble started, a man, dressed in a khaki suit, jumped on top of an automobile, drew a pistol from a holster and shot the windshields and windows from several cars driven by the demonstrators.

Many of the women in the parade wore red bandanas and men and children wore red berets. Police snatched the colored headgear from the marchers' heads and threw it to the ground.

Several of the policemen were stabbed. Among those injured were Traffic Commissioner Carl Olson, who had refused a permit for the parade. Olson led the mounted policemen.

Two policemen are in a hospital. The demonstration was in connection with a Youth day celebration to be conducted here by the National Youth Day Committee tomorrow.

ST. LOUIS U. DENTAL ALUMNI TO HOLD FIRST HOMECOMING

Post-Graduate Courses to Feature Three-Day Meeting; Dinner Friday Night.

Alumni of the School of Dentistry of St. Louis University will meet next Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the dental classrooms, Grand boulevard and Caroline street, for their first annual alumni homecoming and post-graduate courses. Several hundred dentists, including, besides the alumni, members of the St. Louis Dental Society, the St. Louis Study Club and other dentists, are expected to attend.

A homecoming dinner will be held at the School of Medicine at 6 p. m. Friday, and noon luncheons will be held on each day there are educational sessions. The courses, conducted on a lecture basis, will be free.

Included in the list of speakers are Dr. T. J. Gleason, Dr. J. M. Anderson, Dr. A. C. Engel, Dr. R. H. Miller, Dr. Charles F. Sherwin, Dr. G. C. Smith, Dr. O. A. Kelly, Dr. B. O. Haun, Dr. R. B. McDonald and Dr. W. T. Coughlin.

G. A. R. HEAD ATTACKS WETS

FORT MORGAN, Colo., May 30.—James E. Jewel, national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, in a Memorial day address here today, said the States which refuse to co-operate with the Federal Government in the enforcement of prohibition were as much in rebellion as the States of the South were in 1861.

"It would be entirely proper for the Federal Government to deny those States the use of the Federal mail system," he said. "America today is facing a greater rebellion than that of 1861. The forces of crime present a greater problem to the organized forces of law and order than the rebellion of the Confederacy."

Tax on Horses and Buggies Removed.

MADISON, Wis., May 30.—By affixing his signature to a bill yesterday, Gov. La Follette lifted approximately $42,500,000 from the property tax rolls of Wisconsin. He signed the bill exempting from taxation horses, mules, carriages, sleighs and harness. The new law will deprive the State and its political subdivisions of $750,000 in taxes annually. The bill was passed as a farm relief measure.

AYOR MILLER PRAISES FRENCH FOR COURTESIES TO VISITORS

ys Treatment of Public Officials Is Much Different Than In U. S.

CHATEAU THIERRY, France, y 30.—Mayor Victor J. Miller of Louis, member of the visiting legation of American Mayors re as guests of the French Govnment, today gave the Associat. Press the following message to Louis:

"Since arriving in France I have been treated most courteously by all officials of the French Government. The Mayors have been shown the most interesting side of the French people. We have seen things which make us believe the French people are not only courteous but very industrious. Their treatment of the public officials is much different from the treatment received by public officials in America.

"All the Mayors I talked to are high in their praise of the energy and cordiality of the French people, and we now realize that France is coming into its own."

Oldest Synagogue Unearthed.

By the Associated Press.

BELGRADE, Jugo Slavia, May 30.—Native scientists have laid bare at the site of the ancient town of Stobi, near Skokplje, what is reputed to be the oldest synagogue in the world. The excavations also revealed precious Mosaics dating from the fourth century.

BROTHERHOOD OF TRAINMEN TO ASK ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

PART THREE.

Many Holiday And Week-End Social Events

Out-of-Doors Entertainment at Country Clubs and Rural Homes About St. Louis.

DECORATION day yesterday afforded an opportunity for holiday parties at the various clubs and the country homes of the socially prominent.

At the St. Louis Country Club a feature of the program was a polo match played by three teams composed of members of the club and their guests, known as the Blue Laws, the Puritans and the Red Hots. The game began at 3 o'clock, and the winning team, after alternate play, received silver trophies.

In the evening there was a Decoration day dinner dance, with flags and bunting decorating the walls of the clubhouse, and the orchestra dressed in blue and gray uniforms similar to those worn by Union and Confederate soldiers during the Civil War. The dinner tables were adorned with spring flowers. An elaborate plan of out-of-door lighting and dancing on the terrace was abandoned because of doubtful weather.

Among those entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. Clinton L. Whittemore, who had two tables, one for their own guests and one for their daughter, Mrs. Calvin Anderson Case of Bronxville, N. Y., who was married a year ago last night and who is their guest; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brookings Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Dana for their daughter, Miss Mary Dana and her guest, Miss Roberta Darnell of Memphis; Mr. and Mrs. Royal D. Kercheval, Mr. and Mrs. George Hayward Niedringhaus and Miss Georgia Eliot. In addition there was a Dutch treat table for the young married set.

This afternoon a swimming and diving exhibition will be given by the Washington University swimming team at 4:30 o'clock, followed by a buffet supper. The third in a series of 10 spring Saturday night parties will be the baseball dinner dance next Saturday night.

Bellerive Country Club opened its new swimming pool yesterday. There was music and a specialty diving exhibition, followed by a dinner. The pool was lighted last night to display the new system of under-water illumination.

The swimming pool at Glen Echo Country Club was opened for the season yesterday, and last night the club gave its annual Decoration Day dinner dance. Those entertaining included Dr. and Mrs. Irving H. Boemer, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Muckerman, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Cornet Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John C. Roberts Jr., Miss Myrtle Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. Potter Curran, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Larkin, Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hickel, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Titus, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Johnson, W. L. Belcher and Walter Becker.

At St. Albans, Mo., most of which is owned by Mrs. Oscar Johnson, 38 Portland place, and where a model community is being built, an old-fashioned basket picnic, to which 800 guests were invited, celebrated the opening of the general merchandise store, and peonies were sold to raise funds for a community library.

Miss Almira Steedman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Steedman, and her fiance, Richard Baldwin, will be guests of honor at several parties preceding their marriage June 8. On June 5 and 6 dinners will be given at the St. Louis Country Club. The ushers will entertain one night, and Miss Ioccena Baldwin, sister of the bridegroom, the other. Miss Lulie mmons, one of the bridesmaids, will give a luncheon the day of the ceremony.

iss Alice Meier To Wed Wednesday

EVERAL parties will be given this week in honor of Miss Alice Meier, daughter of Mrs. lphus G. Meier, 5161 Kensing- avenue, whose marriage to rles Hartner Hurkamp Jr., of mpstead, L. I., will take place dnesday afternoon at 5 o'clock leepy Hollow, the Meier coun- home near Hillsboro, Mo.

Highland Mary Mosby To Wed Tennesseean

AT a dinner given last night at the University Club, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Virgil Mosby of the Senate apartments, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Highland Mary Mosby, to Dr. Claude R. Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Wood of Knoxville, Tenn. Later the guests were taken to Hotel Chase for dancing.

Miss Mosby attended Mary Institute and National Park Seminary Washington. Dr. Wood is an alumnus of the University of Tennessee, Vanderbilt University and Dr. Dewey's school for orthodontists in New York. He became a member of Phi Kappa Sigma at Vanderbilt, and is a member of the Cherokee and Holston Country Clubs in Knoxville. He came to St. Louis to spend the week-end with his fian-

Many Holiday And Week-End Social Events

Out-of-Doors Entertainment at Country Clubs and Rural Homes About St. Louis.

DECORATION day yesterday afforded an opportunity for holiday parties at the various clubs and the country homes of the socially prominent.

At the St. Louis Country Club a feature of the program was a polo match played by three teams composed of members of the club and their guests, known as the Blue Laws, the Puritans and the Red Hots. The game began at 3 o'clock, and the winning team, after alternate play, received silver trophies.

In the evening there was a Decoration day dinner dance, with flags and bunting decorating the walls of the clubhouse, and the orchestra dressed in blue and gray uniforms similar to those worn by Union and Confederate soldiers during the Civil War. The dinner tables were adorned with spring flowers. An elaborate plan of out-of-door lighting and dancing on the terrace was abandoned because of doubtful weather.

Among those entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. Clinton L. Whittemore, who had two tables, one for their own guests and one for their daughter, Mrs. Calvin Anderson Case of Bronxville, N. Y., who was married a year ago last night and who is their guest; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brookings Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Dana for their daughter, Miss Mary Dana and her guest, Miss Roberta Darnell of Memphis; Mr. and Mrs. Royal D. Kercheval, Mr. and Mrs. George Hayward Niedringhaus and Miss Georgia Eliot. In addition there was a Dutch treat table for the young married set.

This afternoon a swimming and diving exhibition will be given by the Washington University swimming team at 4:30 o'clock, followed by a buffet supper. The third in a series of 10 spring Saturday night parties will be the baseball dinner dance next Saturday night.

Bellerive Country Club opened its new swimming pool yesterday. There was music and a specialty diving exhibition, followed by a dinner. The pool was lighted last night to display the new system of under-water illumination.

The swimming pool at Glen Echo Country Club was opened for the season yesterday, and last night the club gave its annual Decoration Day dinner dance. Those entertaining included Dr. and Mrs. Irving H. Boemer, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Muckerman, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Cornet Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John C. Roberts Jr., Miss Myrtle Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. Potter Curran, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Larkin, Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hickel, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Titus, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Johnson, W. L. Belcher and Walter Becker.

At St. Albans, Mo., most of which is owned by Mrs. Oscar Johnson, 38 Portland place, and where a model community is being built, an old-fashioned basket picnic, to which 800 guests were invited, celebrated the opening of the general merchandise store, and peonies were sold to raise funds for a community library.

Miss Almira Steedman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Steedman, and her fiance, Richard Baldwin, will be guests of honor at several parties preceding their marriage June 8. On June 5 and 6 dinners will be given at the St. Louis Country Club. The ushers will entertain one night, and Miss Roccena Baldwin, sister of the bridegroom, the other. Miss Lulie Simmons, one of the bridesmaids, will give a luncheon the day of the ceremony.

Miss Alice Meier To Wed Wednesday

SEVERAL parties will be given this week in honor of Miss Alice Meier, daughter of Mrs. Adolphus G. Meier, 5161 Kensington avenue, whose marriage to Charles Hartner Hurkamp Jr., of Hempstead, L. I., will take place Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at Sleepy Hollow, the Meier country home near Hillsboro, Mo.

This afternoon, Mrs. James Byrne, 5539 Cates avenue, will give a mixed tea for the bride and her fiance, followed by a buffet supper, with Miss Janet Phelan, daughter of Mrs. J. Percival Phelan as hostess, at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Towner Phelan. Tomorrow afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Mesker, 4456 Lindell boulevard, will give a late afternoon tea, followed by a dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Smith. Miss Phelan and Mrs. Smith will be bridesmaids.

Mr. Hurkamp Jr. and his sister, Miss Luola, arrived yesterday by motor, and Mr. Hurkamp Sr. came last night by train. He and his daughter will be guests at the Meier home, and Miss Meier's fiance will be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Mesker.

Margaret Wagner Engaged to A. E. Seep Of New York City

THE engagement of Miss Margaret Ellen Wagner, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Harris Wagner, 3 Hillvale drive, and Albert Edward Seep, New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Henry Seep of Denver, Colo., was announced yesterday at a luncheon given by Mrs. Wagner at their home. There were 20 guests, including other debutantes of the last season and former school mates of the prospective bride.

The luncheon table was decorated with pink roses surrounding a miniature wedding party in pink frocks standing beneath a floral arch. At each place small china cupids nestling in pink roses held heart-shaped cards bearing the names of Miss Wagner and her fiance. The table was lighted by pink candles in silver candelabra.

Miss Wagner is a graduate of the Sacred Heart Convent and studied music for several years. She served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball last October and was presented to society at a tea given by her mother. Later in the season her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Brinckwirth, gave an elaborate dinner dance for her at their new home in Carrswold. Another sister, Miss Corinne Wagner, came out several seasons ago.

Mr. Seep is a graduate of Cornell University and makes his home at the Cornell Club of New York. The wedding will take place in October.

Mr. and Mrs. Seep and their son will come to St. Louis in June to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wagner.

The marriage of Miss Viola Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lemon Brooks, 4209 Maryland avenue, to Walter L. Vocke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Vocke, 2309 North Kingshighway took place at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening at the Independent Evangelical Protestant Church. The Rev. J. G. Reese officiated.

Miss Dorothy Jacoby was maid of honor; Miss Mildred Joerding and Mrs. Reed Milligan, bridesmaids; Elmer E. Vocke, brother of the bridegroom, best man, and Herman Brooks, brother of the bride, and Reed Milligan, groomsmen.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of lace over ivory satin, fitting the figure to the low hipline where it flared. A court train depended from the shoulders, and her tulle veil was arranged with seed pearls at one side. She carried white roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaids' frocks were of peach colored embroidered net over slips of a deeper shade. They carried tea roses and delphinium. The maid of honor wore Nile green chiffon, made in drop-shoulder effect with shoulder straps of pansies. She wore a wide sash girdle of yellow, tied with a huge bow. Her flowers were yellow daisies.

A dinner and reception at the Coronado Hotel was attended by 40 guests. Mr. and Mrs. Vocke departed at midnight for a wedding trip to Chicago, Detroit and Milwaukee, and will make their home in St. Louis.

Miss Alice Cafferata, daughter of Mrs. John Cafferata, 7532 Parkdale, will become the bride of Dr. E. D. Tenaglia of Providence, R. I., next Saturday at St. Roch's Church at 9:30 o'clock in the morning. The bride-to-be is a graduate of the Academy of the Visitation and will receive her degree June 3 from Fontbonne College. Dr. Tenaglia is a graduate of St. Louis University Medical School. After a honeymoon they will reside in Providence.

will give an address on the topic of the month, "Publicity." Press chairmen of all parent-teacher groups have been invited.

The Confederate Dames Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will meet at the home of Mrs. William H. Moulton, 25 Brentmoor, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Frank Scott and Mrs. A. P. Richardson will be assisting hostesses.

Iota Delphian Chapter met at the Gatesworth Hotel for the annual luncheon Wednesday, May 20. Mrs. B. A. Thompson, president of the Delphian Council, was the speaker. Mrs. M. A. Nelson gave an illustrated talk on "A Tour Through European and American Art Galleries." Mrs. F. H. Dicks spoke on "Europe's Contribution to a Perpetual Book Shelf." Mrs. Leona Ehrhard combined a talk on "Composers Most Influential in the Development of the Art of Music," with selections from their works. Mrs. F. R. Jacoby played the piano accompaniments.

Ben A'Kiba Aid Society will hold its final meeting of the season at the Y. M. H. A. Wednesday. There will be a luncheon, for members only, at 12:30 p. m.

All officers and chairmen will present their annual reports and the following officers will be installed: Mrs. Irl Rosenblum, president; Mrs. I. Levin, first vice president; Mrs. David Israel, second vice president; Mrs. Eli Bau, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Hattie Gill, assistant corresponding secretary; Mrs. Jake Crone, recording secretary; Mrs. Rose Cook, financial secretary; Mrs. Mary Adelberg, treasurer; Mrs. William Rosen, chaplain; Mrs. Millie Gershon, warden; Mrs. Fannie Harding, guide.

St. Louis Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will hold a flag day celebration Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Jefferson Memorial. Mrs. Lon O. Hocker and Mrs. Benton H. Pollock will be hostesses.

The Daughters of Mary entertained Tuesday at the City Infirmary. After a vaudeville entertainment strawberries were served all patients in the hospital. The last monthly meeting of the Daughters of Mary was held at the home of Mrs. J. J. Carey, 4209 Holley avenue.

Community Center Mothers of Roosevelt High School will meet at school room 130 Saturday, at 10 a. m. Final arrangements for the card party to be held at the Coca Cola bottling plant June 29 at 1:30 p. m. will be made. Mrs. M. Stern is the president.

Bailey Circle No. 170, Daughters of Isabella, will meet tomorrow evening at the Knights of Columbus Building, 3917 Lindell boulevard. Reservations may be made at this meeting for the national convention tour in July.

The Musical Research Club will hold its annual picnic Tuesday at Lockwood Valley, the home of Mrs. W. A. Lockwood, Weber Hill road, Kirkwood.

The Roe School Parent-Teacher Association held its monthly meeting Monday evening, May 4. Eugene Hahnel spoke and illustrated his talk with a selection on the violin. H. H. Barnes talked on Parent-Teacher work.

Mrs. Val Vogel, 5179 Cabanne avenue, was hostess at her home last week at a luncheon meeting of the St. Louis Dante Club. The officers elected and installed were: Mrs. Val Vogel, president; Mrs. Oliver Crede, vice president; Mrs. A. J. Willman, secretary; Mrs. James E. Myers, treasurer; Mrs. William H. Grafman, auditor; Mrs. Mary E. Kickham, program chairman, and Mrs. W. H. Grafman, publicity chairman.

Mrs. Charles H. Hoyle was elected regent of St. Louis Chapter of Daughters of the American Colonists at the annual meeting held May 21, succeeding Mrs. Joseph S. Calfee. Other members of the board are Mrs. Glen May, first vice regent; Mrs. Ben Pearson, second vice regent; Mrs. Walter Fabricus, recording secretary; Mrs. Donald T. Wright, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Robert Bettis, registrar; Mrs. Jessymin Lewis, treasurer; Mrs. H. L. Brown, historian; Mrs. Robert Brooks, director, and Mrs. E. E. Conway, chaplain. A memorial was held for the late Mrs. Philip N. Moore, who for years had been an active member of the chapter and at the time of her death was chaplain.

The annual conference will be held in Columbia in October. The following delegates were elected: Mrs. Joseph Long, Mrs. W. H. Cloney of Sedalia, Mrs. C. W. Nelson, Mrs. James McCabe. Alternates: Miss Hallie Baker, Mrs. W. W. Graves of Jefferson City, Mrs. Howard Bailey, Mrs. Arthur M. Wilson, Mrs. Joseph Goss of Clinton, Mrs. Cowper Hammond, Mrs. Arthur Richardson, Mrs. John Vaughan, Mrs. R. H. Tait, Mrs. W. D. Gibbs.

Before closing her term, the retiring regent presented the chapter with three volumes of lineage books, compiled by the national organization, each of which contains the names of 1000 members. After installation of new officers, recognition was given of the honor to the chapter in having Mrs. Calfee elected national vice president of the Middle West section. The ribbon which is the insignia of her office was presented to Mrs. Calfee by Mrs. Joseph Long, former State regent, and a vice president's pin, the gift of the chapter, was presented by Mrs. E. T. Smith, first vice State regent.

Following the meeting a trip was made to old Bon Homme Church. A picnic luncheon was served.

Jefferson Lodge in Kirkwood was the scene of Sorority Circle's play day Thursday when 85 members and guests gathered for luncheon. Mrs. L. E. Wilcox was in charge of arrangements, assisted by Mrs. H. ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN'S CLUBS

Following this the study class will conclude lessons on Midsummer Night's Dream.

The society will suspend its activities for the summer vacation.

The St. Louis Chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. John C. Roberts, on Partridge avenue. The executive board met Friday for luncheon at the home of Mrs. W. B. Stephenson of Ferguson.

As a culmination of the year's study of modern Europe the Fortnightly Club of Kirkwood held a round table discussion on "European and American Civilization and Culture" at the home of Mrs. Herman Schroeder, Tuesday. The installation of officers took place at this meeting.

The Meramec School Parent-Teacher Association will meet Wednesday at 2 o'clock in the school building. The school picnic will be held at Chain of Rocks Park, June 10. The mothers of the pupils of the school will conduct a country grocery store and a fancy work booth at the picnic.

The St. Louis Parliamentary Law Club will give a luncheon at the Town Club tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock. Mrs. Sam Williams is chairman of the Luncheon Committee and Mrs. L. M. Kallenbach has charge of the arrangements. The speakers will be Mrs. N. P. Zimmer and Mrs. F. H. Littlefield. Mrs. J. J. O'Reilly, president of the club, will preside.

The Mount Pleasant School Parent-Teacher Association, Mrs. W. J. Schlenker president, will hold its next monthly meeting at the school Friday at 2 p. m. The adoption of new bylaws will be the principal business before the meeting.

A memorial service for Mrs. Philip North Moore, late honorary president, was held by the West End Woman's Republican Club at the closing meeting Wednesday morning.

The annual play day of the Barr Study Unit will be held Wednesday. Mrs. N. E. Hauser, 2801 Watson road, is to be hostess. Mrs. Hauser will entertain the members at her country home in the Ozarks.

The program for the coming year will be discussed after luncheon by a committee of members.

A dinner card party will be given in the Food Craft Shop, Town Club Building, June 17, at 6 o'clock. The entertainment committee, of which Mrs. Thomas Flood is chairman, will be hostesses.

Sunday, June 28, is Catholic Women's Day at the association's clubhouse at Kimmswick, Mo. The clubhouse committee, of which Thomas Hogan is chairman, is planning a surprise party for members and guests at the clubhouse, and the dramatic club of the junior association will make its initial appearance at that time.

The next general meeting of the junior organization will be held June 12 in the assembly room of the hotel.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Jewish Orthodox Old Folks' Home will hold its meeting Tuesday at the home, 1438 East Grand avenue. The board will meet the same day at 12:30 p. m. Plans are being made for the annual picnic and carnival Sunday, June 21.

DEAL PENDING FOR ANOTHER BLOCK ON RIVER FRONT

Area Bounded by Second, First, Palm and Wright Sts. Involved in Project With Bank.

PLANS NOT AS YET DISCLOSED

Progressive Council Seeks More Options to Find if Ground Can Be Acquired at Reasonable Price.

By Berry Moore

Negotiations, it is understood, are progressing with the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. for the block bounded by Second, First, Palm and Wright streets. This is one of 11 blocks in this part of the city owned by downtown banking interests. Neither the identity nor the plans of the prospective purchaser has been disclosed.

The block constitutes one of the most favorable sites in the city of a large manufacturing plant, or for a warehouse with the terminal facilities available.

As was told in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch, negotiations virtually have been closed for the other 10 blocks held by the banking interests, comprising the area bounded by Second street on the west, the Wharf on the east, Warren street on the south and Wright and Palm streets on the north. While the identity of the buyers of this portion of the tract is withheld, the Wabash Railway has been regarded as available for the six blocks lying between Second and Hall and Warren and Wright streets, comprising a total of 413,000 square feet, and the Santa Fe line for the four blocks between the Wharf and Hall street, comprising 386,000 square feet, a total of 799,000 square feet. The main tracks of the Terminal Railway are located on Hall street with the Burlington in connection, while the Wabash tracks are between Second street and Broadway.

The banks fell heir to the property 15 or 20 years ago, it having been pledged as security for loans. It has undergone a great enhancement in value since these interests acquired it. The price involved in the present negotiations is said to be $1 a square foot. There are a total of 799,000 square feet. The tract has figured in plans for various warehouse and terminal projects, attracted by its rail facilities.

The site is mentioned as once having been under consideration for a mammoth elevator by the United States Grain Corporation, according to real estate men, while interests identified with the Busch Terminals of New York had it under option 12 years ago for a warehouse with track connections embracing the entire 11 blocks.

There have been a number of noteworthy speculative purchases in this district during the last 10 years, predicated presumably, on the possibilities of the banks' holdings as a site for a development on a large scale.

Several sales of investment properties in the central business district, as well as in the West End, were reported during the week. These included notably a holding in the central business part of the city, involving a consideration of $300,000, through Henry R. Weisels, Inc. Two sales in the West End also were concluded by Weisels, ranging from $65,000 to $75,000, but the identify and location of the purchases in these instances are withheld, pending deeds.

Proceeds to Obtain Options.

The Progressive Council is proceeding to obtain options on property in the district east of Third street between Franklin avenue and Spruce street, to determine whether it can be acquired for the river-front improvement project at a reasonable price. In this event the council proposes to recommend a bond issue for the purchase by the city or the acquisition of the site by private enterprise.

No payments are being made for the options, but property owners are being asked to give them as a matter of civic interest and because of the prospect of sale afforded in a district where the real estate market has lagged. A noteworthy response on the part of property owners in this section is reported.

The options are being obtained in the name of the Progressive Council Option Corporation formed by the River Front Improvement Committee of the Progressive Council, composed of Claude B. Ricketts, chairman; Sidney R. Baer, Daniel K. Catlin, F. D. Chamberlain, F. A. Cramer, David R. Francis Jr., Hugh McK. Jones, Isaac H. Orr, Edward G. Platt, John F. Queeny, John M. Robertson, F. Z. Solomon, Arnold G. Stifel, C. M. Turley, Oscar H. Vieths, C. E. Williams and Glendy B. Arnold.

The option forms give the Option Corporation the exclusive right to purchase the property at any time before Sept. 1, 1932, but the option is automatically renewed for one year, if a proposal for the purchase of the land under a bond issue should be put before the voters at the time of expiration. The Option Corporation is also given the right to form a corporation with capital for the purchase and improvement of the properties acquired for a river-front plaza, without involving the city financially. Each property owner under the option is given the right to participate in the proposed finance corporation on an equal basis with the members of the Progressive Council.

Available for Assessed Value.

The Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co., the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., Martin & Breitt, Cornet & Zeibig, Edward L. Bakewell, the Downtown Improvement Association and the Office Building Managers Association have been commissioned to obtain the options. Much of the property in this district has been available for its assessed value., with comparatively little market for it, according to real estate men.

For several years the river front improvement plan has been under discussion by civic and commercial organizations looking toward an elevated auto speedway, parking facilities and a park area. One plan advanced by the City Plan Commission contemplates a bond issue of $50,000,000 for improvement of this downtown section, known as the blighted district.

APARTMENTS ON LINDELL SOLD

Oreon E. & R. G. Scott Real Estate Co. reports having completed the final details of the sale of the U. S. Grant Apartments, 4362-72 Lindell boulevard. This building consists of two wings, each of three story fire-proof construction, and each building containing 30 efficiency apartments. A 50-car garage connects the two buildings in the rear. The apartments are strictly modern, including tile baths and built-in tubs, electric refrigeration, Murphy beds and Pullman kitchens. The corridors have terrazzo floors and wainscot. The building is located on a lot fronting 130 feet on the south side of Lindell boulevard by a depth of 213 feet, which gives it copious air and light for all the rooms and apartments, making it a very desirable renting location. The Scott agency will now have full management of the property and the name of the building will be changed and hereafter known as the Cathedral Court Apartments. The name of the purchaser is withheld.

TO LAY CORNERSTONE FOR DESLOGE HOSPITAL

Ceremony Tuesday at Institution Which Is to Be Unit of St. Louis U.

The cornerstone will be laid Tuesday for the Firmin Desloge Hospital and construction of one of the largest civic enterprises ever undertaken in St. Louis, will be set in full operation. The extensive buildings forming the group will, when completed, place the Medical School of St. Louis University in the front rank of the foremost medical schools of the country. The project consists of a large hospital building of a distinct monumental type, rising more than 14 stories in height, a chapel, designed in the late thirteenth century style of French Gothic, a large convent building with private chapel for the sisters, a service building, including quarters for all male help, complete laundry unit, power plant and garages.

The hospital plans are the product of years of study by the Rev. Father Alphonse M. Schwitalla, S. J., dean of the Medical School of St. Louis University. The buildings were designed by Study & Farrar, architects.

It will be operated by the Sisters of St. Mary, and by the doctors' staff of the Medical School of the university. The hospital is designed to become an intricate working unit with the Medical school and will be connected with the Medical School building proper by a tunnel running under Grand boulevard.

While the institution was conceived to render service to people of moderate means, the extensive clinic that it will contain will make the hospital far more extensive in its charitable service than was originally anticipated. The three lower floors of the hospital will be devoted largely to this clinic.

The upper floors will be given over to patients' rooms, operating rooms and various other uses. The hospital planned to provide approximately 275 beds.

The building is designed in the style of architecture that may be termed modernized French Gothic. One of the outstanding features of the design will be the steep pitched, high French roofs, the center pavilion of which is surmounted by a metal fleche, terminating in a golden cross, the elevation of which will make it one of the highest objects in the city.

The architects are Study & Farrar and Arthur J. Widmer & Associates, Inc.

JIM REMLEY COMPANY LEASES CHIPPEWA THEATER BUILDING

Jim Remley's Markets, Inc., operating markets in Maplewood, Morganford, Gravois, Granite City, and Wellston, has closed a long-time lease for the fireproof building, formerly the Chippewa Theater, at 3807-09 South Broadway. The building is 50x120 feet, all on one floor, and will be one of the largest food markets in the Remley chain. The opening will be about the middle of June. The lease was effected through the Rudy Kohn Realty Co. who represented both parties.

Festus J. Wade Jr. & Co. Plans To Move to Columbia Building

Brokerage Concern Would Occupy Second Floor of Structure at Eighth and Locust—Remodeling and New Entrance Proposed.

Festus J. Wade Jr. and Co., dealers in investment securities, it is understood, have plans for occupying the second floor of the Columbia Building at the southeast corner of Eighth and Locust streets. Negotiations for a lease involve a proposal to remodel the entire floor and construct a pretentious entrance on Eighth street.

Offices now occupied by the Wade firm on the eighth floor of the Paul Brown Building at the southeast corner of Ninth and Olive streets are inadequate to the concern's requirements.

Wade was vice president and a director of the Mercantile Trust Co., of which his father, the late Festus J. Wade, was president and one of the founders, and is now a director of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Co. He formed the brokerage company less than three years ago with Fred Oltman, who was secretary to the elder Wade, as a member.

The Columbia Building, a nine-story structure, is owned by Oliver J. Anderson, president of Oliver J. Anderson & Co., stock and bond brokers, who purchased it several years ago, attracted by the possibilities of this part of the city, with a huge department store projected from the Federal Building block. The former Anderson-Wade Realty Co. occupied the ground floor of the building, prior to the formation of the Mercantile Trust Co., which merged with the National Bank of Commerce. Anderson is a director of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Co.

Anderson has refused many offers for the purchase of the building which would have given him a substantial profit on his investment.

17 NORTHAMPTON PARK LOTS SOLD TO ONE CONTRACTOR

David P. Leahy and Stedelin Bros. report the sales to the Harry Hardt Construction Co. of 17 lots in Northampton Park. The Hardt firm has already built and sold 13 bungalows there.

Other sales of lots follow: Harry C. 'PERFECT HOME' READY FOR PUBLIC INSPECTION

Good Building for Moderate-Priced Residences Demonstrated in Moorlands.

"The Perfect Home" at 7441 Cromwell drive, Moorlands, which has been under construction several months by a group of contractors and material men, has been opened for public inspection. The builders have incorporated under the name of the Building Industries Corporation to demonstrate good building for moderate-priced homes. The materials and workmanship are said to be of the best, and were selected for durability and appearance with no show of extravagance, as is sometimes the case with the so-called "show" houses.

The foundation is of concrete blocks, waterproofed, the superstructure of buff matt bricks backed up with insulating cinder blocks, roof of variegated tile, exterior mill work of red cypress, interior of quartered sycamore. All plastering is on metallic laths, wiring in armored cable, floors of hardwood or tile. The bathrooms and kitchen are wainscoted with vitrolite.

An unusual feature is the ceiling construction of the principal rooms. The ceiling beams are not the usual false beams but actually support the floors above and have become an architectural feature. All plumbing fixtures are of colored design with chromium fittings. All exposed parts of the building, including the second floor ceiling, are insulated with wool. A vapor steam heating plant with an oil-burner has been installed, with the incinerator and hot-water heater as a part of this triple-service boiler.

The home contains the usual living rooms on the first floor, with a large screened porch, a lavatory and a main stair of circular design which extends from the large reception room in the basement to the second floor. A two-car garage is built with the house. The second floor has three main bedrooms and two well-equipped bath rooms. The third floor is arranged for a maid's room with bath. The home was built under the supervision of Edvard E. Christopher, architect. Shaw & Francis are sales agents. The home is completely furnished.

SAYS CONSTRUCTION IS TRADE STABILIZER

Statistician Discusses Influences for Business Revival—Building Awards of Week

A $5,000,000,000 annual outlay for new construction in the United States is an important stabilizer of American business, L. Seth Schnitman, chief statistician of the F. W. Dodge Corporation, writing in General Building Contractor, says.

Revival of busiess need not wait on all adjustments, he says.

"The recent unsettlement in the stock market has undermined confidence to no little extent," he says. "The course of commodity prices is still somewhat bewildering. Money rates have eased further. Talk of wage reduction has assumed imposing proportions. These are a handful of the symptoms which usually mark the beginning of the end.

"Whether the end of the current depression be close at hand is now difficult of determination. But one thing is sure and that is that the forces making for revival in business are now more closely attuned than they have been at any other time since the depression became genuinely manifest.

"Construction contracts awarded in the New York metropolitan area during the period May 1 to May 22 totaled $49,856,100, according to the F. W. Dodge Corporation. Residential building led with $27,796,000; nonresidential was second with $13,041,000, and public works and utilities followed with $9,019,100.

Construction contracts awarded in the 37 states east of the Rockies amounted to $73,513,800 from May 16 to May 22, bringin cumulative total for the first weeks of the month to $22 800.

The major construction c contributed to this total as f Residential building, $69,1 nonresidential building, $7 100, and public works and u $83,049,300.

NEW CITY HALL AND FIRE HOUSE FOR LAD

Designed After Quaint T Halls of New England— Work Begun.

Ground was broken last wee the new City Hall and fire e station for the village of Ladu the Clayton road, at the en the Clayton car line. The B of Trustees of the village, des of maintaining the uniform, p esque character of all the a tecture of the neighborhood structed the architects, Stu Farrar, to design the City after the quaint town halls one frequently finds throu the New England States.

The engine house provide thoroughly modern fire equip in every respect, with a work for repairing machinery in the hose tower and sleeping qu for the men. There also is a colonial hall or council ch on the second floor, which m reached by private stairs. village meetings will be cond

The exterior is of colonial laid in Flemish bond, with marble key blocks. The bu is surmounted by a copper c which will be painted white. building is being erected b Hercules Contracting Co.

IN MEMORIAM

DIECKMANN—In loving memory of our dear mother, Caroline Dieckmann, died May 30, 1930.

In our home she is fondly remembered,
Sweet memories cling to her name;
Those who loved her in life sincerely,
Still love her in death just the same.

Sadly missed by
IDA C. DIECKMANN AND BROTHERS.

IN MEMORIAM

FARNEY—In memory of my dear mother, Augusta Farney, who passed on two years ago, May 22, 1929.
Sadly missed by MR. AND MRS. V. A. BALDWIN. (c)

GEIDER—In loving memory of Alex Geider, who departed this life June 1, 1930.

And while he lies in peaceful sleep,
His memory I will always keep.

SISTER.

HAUSDORF—In loving memory of our dear brother, Jacob Hausdorf, who died May 29, 1930:

It is sweet to be remembered,
And a pleasant thing to find,
Although you may be absent
You still are kept in mind.

Sadly missed by
HIS BROTHER AND SISTER. (c)

HAUSDORF—My dear husband, Jacob, who died May 29, 1930.

Rest in peace, dear husband;
Years may go, but memories stay.
You are gone but not forgotten,
For we shall meet again some day.

WIFE.

HUELSKOETTER—In loving memory of Nora Huelskoetter, who passed away May 29, 1930:

A wonderful wife and mother, woman and aid,
One who was better God never made;
A wonderful worker, so loyal and true,
One in a million—that wife and mother was you.
Just in your judgment, always right,
Honest and liberal, ever upright;
Loved by your friends and all whom you knew,
Our wonderful wife and mother—that wife and mother was you.
We miss her when we need a friend,
On her we always could depend;
She cheered us in sickness and soothed our pain,
God grant some day we'll meet again.

Sadly missed by:
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

HYNES—Dorothy.

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world's weary trouble and trials are past,
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore,
Till God called her home to suffer no more.

Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, MOTHER AND SISTER.

McCLELLAN—In loving memory of our dear daughter, Gertrude McClellan, who died one year ago, June 2. Deeply regretted by MOTHER AND FATHER.

MEYERS—In loving memory of Cora Meyers, who passed away May 28, 1917:

And while she lies in peaceful sleep,
Her memory we shall always keep.

Sadly missed by
SON THAD. AND FAMILY.

NUGENT—Two years have past since that sad day May 29, 1929, Elizabeth Nugent was called away, and son, John T., Jan. 2, 1925.

The flowers we place upon your grave
May wither and decay
But love for you who sleeps beneath,
Will never fade away.

Sadly missed by
THOMAS NUGENT AND SON, JAMES.

ROLWES—In memory of our beloved husband and father, John G. Rolwes, who departed this life on June 2, 1925.
MRS. ROLWES AND DAUGHTER.

SAAKE—A wonderful mother, woman and aid;

One who was better, God never made;
A wonderful worker, so loyal and true,
One in a million—that, mother, was you,
Just in your judgment, always right,
Honest and liberal, ever upright;
Loved by your friends and all whom you knew.
Our wonderful mother—that, mother, was you.

JOSEPH SAAKE AND CHILDREN.

SCHMELIG—In loving memory of our dear sister, Magdalene Schmelig, who passed away May 31, 1930.

From this world of pain and sorrow
To the land of peace and rest,
God has taken you, dear sister,
Where you've found eternal rest.

Sadly missed by
SISTER MARGARET AND ALL WHO LOVED HER.

SCHUTTE—Irvin E. Schutte departed this life May 29, 1928. Gone but not forgotten.
WIFE AND SON.

TRAMPE, CHARLES F.—In loving memory of my dear husband, who departed this life June 4, 1928:

I have lost my soul companion,
A life linked with my own;
And day by day I miss him more,
As I walk through life alone.

WIFE. (c)

WILLIS—In memory of Mr. John S. Willis, who departed this life one year ago May 28, 1930:

To those who think in terms of death,
A friend no more will come;
Eyes closed with life's expiring death
Henceforth the voice is dumb.
But though the dead have journeyed the dark, uncharted sea,
They're nearer to us than before in terms of memory.

A DEAR FRIEND, JOANE THORPE.

WITLER—In loving remembrance of J. H. Witler, who died May 28, 1930:

One year it will be since we laid you to rest,
And placed your cold hands upon your breast;
In silence you suffered, with patience you bore,
'Til God called you home to suffer no more.

HIS CHILDREN, SISTER AND BROTHER.

SCHNEIDER WINS

PART SIX.

CARDS IN FIRST

AVERAGE SPEED 96.6 MILES, AT INDIANAPOLIS

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 30.—Fate catapulted Louie Schneider, one-time Indianapolis motor cycle policeman, into a stunning upset winner of the 500-mile automobile race over the Indianapolis motor speedway today.

By the same stroke of fate Billy Arnold, 29-year-old Chicagoan, 1930 winner of the event, was robbed of seemingly certain victory when he met with an accident which resulted in the burning of his car when he was in the last 100 miles of the race.

Arnold, seeking to repeat his triumph of a year ago, had led from the start, except for six laps, when his car, racing around the treacherous north turn of the track at terrific speed, threw a left front wheel and sent him crashing into the car driven by Luther Johnson of South Bend, Ind. Arnold's car caught fire and burned, but Arnold miraculously escaped death along with his mechanic, Spider Matlock, of Los Angeles.

The wheel that broke loose from Arnold's speeding car flew out of the race inclosure and struck a 12-year-old youngster who was walking along a country highway. The boy later died.

Arnold's Hip Fractured.

Arnold suffered a fracture of the right hip, severe burns about the back and possible internal injuries. Matlock suffered a dislocated shoulder and painful burns and bruises.

Johnson, 27 years old, suffered possible internal injuries, cuts and bruises. Johnson's mechanic, William H. Richards, suffered a wrenched back, sprains and bruises.

Within a few seconds after Arnold cracked up, the machine driven by Tony Gulotta, Kansas City, who was running third, smashed into the retaining wall at the same spot where Arnold met with his accident.

Gulotta suffered cuts and bruises. His mechanic, Paul Riscigno, was severely bruised.

The only other driver injured was Fred Winnai, 27, of Philadelphia, Pa., who was burned about the legs in a minor accident.

These two accidents, coming a few seconds apart, in the closing miles of the race, threw Schneider, the lanky 30-year-old son of an Indianapolis tailor, into the lead which he maintained until the finish, crossing the line two and one-half miles ahead of Fred Frame of Los Angeles.

About $40,000 to Winner.

Ralph Hepburn of Los Angeles was third and Louie Meyer, South Gate, Cal., 1928 winner of the Classic, driving for Myron Stevens, Los Angeles, was fourth. Russell Snowberger, Philadelphia, finished fifth, with Jimmy Gleason, Philadelphia, sixth; Ernie Triplett, Los Angeles, seventh; W. H. (Stubby) Stubblefield, Los Angeles, eighth; Cliff Berger, Los Angeles, ninth, and Chet Miller, Detroit, tenth.

Seventeen of the original 40 drivers completed the punishing test of speed and driving skill.

Schneider, who had been trying to win the Indianapolis classic since 1928, when he made his debut in the event, covered the 500 miles

Queensberry Rules.

JAMES MALONEY, Boston Strong Boy, once conqueror of Jack Sharkey and two-time victor over Prime Beef Carnera, has a more intimate knowledge of correct ring procedure than he had up to last Tuesday night. James was taught a lesson on that occasion that he will not forget—a lesson that many a fighter has learned to his sorrow.

MALONEY.

In the first round of his fight with Ernie Schaaf at Boston, Maloney took one on his vitreous maxillary and fell into a clinch. James heard the cuckoos calling; but he thought it was the referee saying: "Break!" So he proceeded to break. He did it by dropping his hands, instead of raising them as he backed off.

No sooner had James' gloves gone down than Schaaf's fist came up. It landed on James' glass jaw. Curtains for Jim. Six stitches were required to mend the wound. Nothing can ever mend James' damaged reputation. All because he did not remember a primary principle of the Marquis of Queensberry rules, which in substance say:

"Protect yourself at all times!"

Because he didn't do that, Jimmy Maloney lost his bout with Schaaf and also lost a match with Jack Sharkey and the pot of money that it would have meant.

SCHNEIDER WINS 500-MILE AUTO RACE; ARNOLD CRASHE

AVERAGE SPEED 96.6 MILES, AT INDIANAPOLIS

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 30.—Fate catapulted Louie Schneider, one-time Indianapolis motor cycle policeman, into a stunning upset winner of the 500-mile automobile race over the Indianapolis motor speedway today.

By the same stroke of fate Billy Arnold, 29-year-old Chicagoan, 1930 winner of the event, was robbed of seemingly certain victory when he met with an accident which resulted in the burning of his car when he was in the last 100 miles of the race.

Arnold, seeking to repeat his triumph of a year ago, had led from the start, except for six laps, when his car, racing around the treacherous north turn of the track at terrific speed, threw a left front wheel and sent him crashing into the car driven by Luther Johnson of South Bend, Ind. Arnold's car caught fire and burned, but Arnold miraculously escaped death along with his mechanic, Spider Matlock, of Los Angeles. The wheel that broke loose from Arnold's speeding car flew out of the race inclosure and struck a 12-year-old youngster who was walking along a country highway. The boy later died.

Arnold's Hip Fractured.

Arnold suffered a fracture of the right hip, severe burns about the back and possible internal injuries. Matlock suffered a dislocated shoulder and painful burns and bruises.

Johnson, 27 years old, suffered possible internal injuries, cuts and bruises. Johnson's mechanic, William H. Richards, suffered a wrenched back, sprains and bruises.

Within a few seconds after Arnold cracked up, the machine driven by Tony Gulotta, Kansas City, who was running third, smashed into the retaining wall at the same spot where Arnold met with his accident.

Gulotta suffered cuts and bruises. His mechanic, Paul Riscigno, was severely bruised.

The only other driver injured was Fred Winnai, 27, of Philadelphia, Pa., who was burned about the legs in a minor accident.

These two accidents, coming a few seconds apart, in the closing miles of the race, threw Schneider, the lanky 30-year-old son of an Indianapolis tailor, into the lead which he maintained until the finish, crossing the line two and one-half miles ahead of Fred Frame of Los Angeles.

About $40,000 to Winner.

Ralph Hepburn of Los Angeles was third and Louie Meyer, South Gate, Cal., 1928 winner of the Classic, driving for Myron Stevens, Los Angeles, was fourth. Russell Snowberger, Philadelphia, finished fifth, with Jimmy Gleason, Philadelphia, sixth; Ernie Triplett, Los Angeles, seventh; W. H. (Stubby) Stubblefield, Los Angeles, eighth; Cliff Berger, Los Angeles, ninth, and Chet Miller, Detroit, tenth.

Seventeen of the original 40 drivers completed the punishing test of speed and driving skill.

Schneider, who had been trying to win the Indianapolis classic since 1928, when he made his debut in the event, covered the 500 miles

Jamestown in great form. He showed his old-time speed today. Followed pace closely to the middle of the turn where he moved up fast on outside, ran into lead entering stretch, drew away and won easily. Jamestown evidently does not like the starting stalls. Ladder broke well, was kept within range of the leaders and closed fast. Clock Tower was a bit slow in getting into motion, saved ground by hugging the rail and finished very fast. Surf Board was hard ridden all the way. Morstone showed all of his speed but quit badly. Commuter had early speed.

Odds: Jamestown, win 2-5, place 1-6, show out. Ladder, place 5-2, show even. Clock Tower, show 7-10.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 30.—A great juvenile champion stamped himself as a real contender for the three-year-old title as George D. Widener's Jamestown easily outran a field of seven crack colts in the fifty-sixth running of the Withers mile at Belmont Park today.

Speeding over the flower-bordered Belmont racing strip in the fast time of 1.36 3-5, the long-striding son of St. James, winner of six of his seven starts as a two-year-old, sent out a mighty challenge to Twenty Grand, Kentucky Derby victor. The pair will settle the three-year-old battle two weeks hence when they meet in the Belmont Stakes at one and one-half miles.

Five lengths separated Jamestown from Walter J. Salmon's Ladder, which ran third in the Preakness, as he flashed past the judges' stand, winner of $27,300. The purse sent his total earnings for nine races soaring to $180,235.

Another three lengths back of Ladder trailed Morton L. Shwartz's Clock Tower, a nose in front of Surf Board from the Greentree Stable. Then followed Benjamin Block's Morstone, the Greentree Stable's Anchors Aweigh, K. E. Sitt's Sun Meadow and Flying Horse Farm's Commuter.

30,000 Crowd Sees Race.

A crowd of 30,000, which crammed its way into every nook and corner of the spacious "Newmarket" of America, backed the Widener colt down to 2 to 5, with Clock Tower the second choice at 8 to 1. Ladder was quoted at 10 to 1 while the remainder were held at odds ranging from 10 to 1 to 50 to 1.

In the manner he won, Jamestown might as well been 1 to 100 for once "Pony" McAtee swung him into the stretch, there was no doubt as to the final outcome. A crack of the whip and the St. James offspring left his field as if the others were standing still. The farther he went the farther the distance from the second horse. At the end he was just galloping, his ears perked and McAtee sitting perfectly still.

Ladder closed fast to take second while Clock Tower came up from the middle of the pack to nose out Surf Board, which also finished fast on the rail.

True to expectations, Morstone set the pace for as far as he went. For six furlongs he was out in front, reeling off a burning pace. He hit the three-quarter mark in 1:11, but Jamestown was only a few lengths behind, taking stride for stride with Cummuter. McAtee had him under stout restraint, however, waiting for the stretch run.

"Like Twenty Grand."

Like Twenty Grand in the Kentucky Derby, he took the lead as the field straightened out for the run home and then made a Twenty Grand finish.

Unlike Twenty Grand, however, Jamestown broke fast and under McAtee's expert reinsmanship, never was in trouble. Together with Commuter he trailed first in second and then in third place as Morstone opened several lengths of daylight. The sprinting son of Morvich could not keep up the pace, falling back as the leaders drove for home. Jamestown finished still full of run, indicating a real battle when he tangles with the Kentucky Derby winner in the rich Belmont stake June 13.

STELLA WALSH BEATEN IN HANDICAP SPRINT

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.—Stella Walsh, world champion in the 50-meter sprint, was unable to overcome a 5-yard handicap today in the track meet of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and lost to Mary Ladewig of the Meadowbrook Club, Philadelphia. Miss Walsh finished second and Eva Magdurakas, Baltimore, third.

Queensberry Rules.

JAMES MALONEY, Boston Strong Boy, once conqueror of Jack Sharkey and two-time victor over Prime Beef Carnera, has a more intimate knowledge of correct ring procedure than he had up to last Tuesday night. James was taught a lesson on that occasion that he will not forget—a lesson that many a fighter has learned to his sorrow.

MALONEY.

In the first round of his fight with Ernie Schaaf at Boston, Maloney took one on his vitreous maxillary and fell into a clinch. James heard the cuckoos calling; but he thought it was the referee saying: "Break!" So he proceeded to break. He did it by dropping his hands, instead of raising them as he backed off.

No sooner had James' gloves gone down than Schaaf's fist came up. It landed on James' glass jaw. Curtains for Jim. Six stitches were required to mend the wound. Nothing can ever mend James' damaged reputation. All because he did not remember a primary principle of the Marquis of Queensberry rules, which in substance say:

"Protect yourself at all times!"

Because he didn't do that, Jimmy Maloney lost his bout with Schaaf and also lost a match with Jack Sharkey and the pot of money that it would have meant.

U. S. Champion and His Best Target in Valley Meet

—By a Post-Dispatch staff photographer.

Russell Hoogerhyde, Coldwater, Mich., who made the record at 60 yards at Forest Park yesterday. His six arrows scored a total of 44 points, as follows: 9-9-7-7-7-5.

HOOGERHYDE AND HODGSON WIN IN VALLEY TITLE ARCHERY EVENTS

A young Robin Hood from Coldwater, Mich., Russell Hoogerhyde, national archery champion—performed brilliantly yesterday afternoon at the fourth annual Missouri Valley archery tournament held at the drill grounds in Forest Park, in winning the open men's event of the meet with a total score of 1263 points, leading by more than 100 points the second place shooter, Dr. E. S. Hodgson of East St. Louis. As Hoogerhyde lives outside of the Missouri Valley district, Dr. Hodgson was awarded the championship in Valley competition. This is his second title.

According to J. H. Curd, general director of the title meet, this was the biggest one-day shoot ever held in the United States. Also, there will be the largest array of medals ever awarded in any archery event.

Another Program Today.

This morning at 9 o'clock, an archery golf contest will be held, and in the afternoon at 1 o'clock, a shoot between North and South teams will be run off. The members of the teams are as follows: North—Roy Case, Racine, Wis.; George Henninger, Pawnee, Ill.; F. E. Brown, Peoria, Ill.; Dr. E. S. Hodgson, East St. Louis. South—Nat B. Lay, Maplewood; A. W. Shannon, Memphis, Tenn.; A. H.

Six Records Set as Southern California Wins College Meet

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.—The Trojans of Southern California answered Stanford's track and field challenge today with a sensational counter-barrage of record performances and won the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. championships for the second straight year in a dazzlingly close battle for points.

Six record feats were achieved, five of them by Southern California stars, as the Trojans barely beat their Pacific Coast rivals in as brilliant a succession of performances as the classic 55-year-old college meet has ever witnessed.

Southern California finished with the victorious total of 46 6-7 points while Stanford, giving battle every step and inch of the route, amassed 44 22-35 points. The scramble of fractions and places was so close that the outcome was undecided until Bill Graber, Trojan pole vaulter, outdid himself to lead to a new meet record of 14 feet ½ inch in the fifteenth and final event of the day.

Williams Equals Meredith's Record.

Graber's record vault was the crowning climax of probably the greatest exhibition ever given by any team that has won this blue ribbon event of inter-collegiate athletic competition.

Vic Williams, slim Trojan racer, struck the most sensational blow for his team's benefit when he turned the tables on the brilliant Stanford sophomore, Ben Eastman, to win the 440-yard run and equal Ted Meredith's 15-year-old world record of 47.4 seconds.

From there on Southern California's stars conducted a wholesale assault on records. Frank Wykoff whipped Eddie Tolan by inches in the 100-yard dash in 9.6 seconds to equal his own meet record; Dick Barber leaped to a new I. C. A. A. A. A. broad jump mark of 25 feet, 3½ inches, and Ernie Payne, in the 220-yard low hurdles, raced to victory in 23.6 seconds, equaling the meet record first set in 1898 by the late A. C. Kraenzlein of Pennsylvania.

U. S. C. Wins Six Firsts.

All told the athletes coached by Dean Cromwell romped off with six first places and scored points in 10 of the 15 events. It was not only the Trojan's second straight victory in the team championship but their fourth in seven years. They won previously in 1925, 1926 and 1930.

Stanford, handicapped severely by the loss of two brilliant performers in Hec Dyer in the sprints and Capt. Podge Smith in the hurdles, nevertheless gave Southern California a sensational battle in a meet that again saw the East outclassed for the tenth time in 11 years.

Stanford tallied in 11 events, ran up a heavy total in the weights and had the satisfaction of seeing their youthful middle star, Eastman, come back gallantly to capture the 880-yard run after barely being beaten by Williams by a two-

WATKINS HITS TWO HOME IN FIRST GAME; COLLI WINS SECOND WITH DOUB

By J. Roy Stockton.

Winning double-headers seemed to be the thing to do yest afternoon, and Gabby Street's Cardinals, seeing that the R
Cubs and Phillies had celebrated Decoration day with doubl tories, twice came from behind to hand two defeats to the C nati Reds.

Seven St. Louis runs in the sixth inning gave Jess Haines a decision over the cellar dwellers in the first game, 12 to 4, and in the second a five-run rally drove Larry Benton from the hill in the seventh frame and gave Bill Hallahan a 5—4 verdict.

It was a very profitable afternoon for the Redbirds, for, with the Giants losing twice to the Robins, Street's warriors made first place their exclusive property and now enjoy a margin of a game and a half over McGraw's horde. The Cardinals now have overtaken the Giants in the number of games won, whereas New York has suffered three extra defeats.

Collins' Double Wins Second.

James "Ripper" Collins, the young first baseman who played sensationally for Rochester last year and who was ballyhooed during the winter as likely to take Jim Bottomley's job away from him, delivered the punch that turned the second game of the afternoon from a defeat into a victory.

"Ripper" happened to be in the game because Jim Bottomley was hit on the head by a pitched ball in the first contest. Jim didn't believe he was hurt and objected mildly when "Pepper" Martin journeyed down to first base to run for him, but Dr. Robert F. Hyland suggested that after taking a fast ball on the back of the head, Jim would be wise to rest for the remainder of the day, and so Collins, a flashy young gentleman of the infield, with a powerful punch to all fences, hied himself to first base for the rest of that contest and all of the second.

Larry Benton turned back the Cardinals with ease for six innings and had a lead of 4 to 0 when the Redbirds went to bat in the seventh.

Heathcote's double, Hendrick's single and Cullop's homer had produced three runs in the third and two passes and Ford's single had added the fourth run in the sixth.

Cards Stage 5-Run Rally.

It looked like just another defeat for Hallahan, but with two out in the seventh, Mancuso singled to center and Manager Street decided that it was time to be up and doing. So he called on Orsatti. Ernie drew a pass and "Sparky" Adams then singled to left, scoring Mancuso with the Cards' first run of the game. The stands applauded, but in as much as it was one dinky little tally it sounded more like a

MISS MILONSKI STARS IN POLISH ATHLETIC MEET

Miss Bee Milonski of St. Louis, captured the broad jump, discus and high jump in the Senior Girls' Division of the twenty-third biennial gymnastic and athletic meet of the Second District Polish Falcons of America yesterday at the Public Schools Stadium, to give St. Louis girls the championship in their division. The meet will close today.

Steve Novotny, another St. Louis athlete, also starred in the men's division to win the title from a Chicago delegation.

Besides winning three events, Miss Milonski captured the first heat of the 70-yard low hurdles, her time of 11.5 seconds being four-tenths of a second faster than the winner of the second heat.

Novotny, former star at Benld (Ill.) high school and now a student at McKendree College, captured four events and was second in another to count 23 points for the St. Louis delegation.

The final of the senior girls 70-yard low hurdles and relay, the senior boys' relay, and the semifinals and finals in the boys' 100-yard dash, the senior girls' 50 and 100 yard dashes and the junior girls' 50 and 100 yard dashes will be held this afternoon.

Included in today's program will be the mass drill with 1500 participants, an exhibition of the Mazar, the Polish national dance, and folk songs.

Tunney Home, Tells of Evil Odors In Moscow

NEW YORK, May 30.—James Joseph (Gene) Tunney, retired world's heavyweight boxing champion, returned from abroad today saying he had received a distinctly unfavorable impression of the athletic situation in Soviet Russia.

Tunney and his wife, the former Polly Lauder, spent four months touring the Near East, Russia and Europe. They arrived on the North German Lloyd liner Columbus, which docked late today in Brooklyn.

The former boxing king invited reporters to his stateroom where he unfolded his views on some of the peoples and places he had seen.

"The young men in sports clothes who put on an exhibition during the demonstration," said Tunney, "were athletic looking, but as an indication of the physical development of young manhood in Russia they were a fraud — they were picked men and gave no key to the general athletic development of Russian youth."

Tunney said of all the cities he visited he liked Berlin best as a place to live and Moscow least.

"In Moscow," he said, "we could not stand the evil odors that permeated the atmosphere."

Over the rolling greens of the Midland Valley Country Club course, the 18-hole qualifying round of the sixteenth annual St. Louis district golf tournament is scheduled to get under way tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock when the first twosome in a field, expected to total 150 entrants, is to tee off.

Dick Bockenkamp, Missouri amateur champion; Elliott Whitbread, defending title holder, and Jimmy Manion, former State and district champion, rule as favorites as the field prepares to go to the post.

The number of entrants when the pairings were made, totaled 118, neither the smallest nor the largest number to compete in the event and it is expected that many entries will be received at the first tee for in accordance with its good natured custom the district organization has permitted players to start at their convenience and will continue the policy.

Manion and Bockenkamp were among the prime favorites 10 years ago when 275 played the qualifying round at Glen Echo and they were also among the favorites five years ago when the small field of 60 competed at Bellerive. Clarence Wolff another of the real stars of the District, must content himself with running the tournament as he has not as yet recovered sufficiently from his serious illness of a year ago to permit him to play. But Clarence's interest in golf is as keen as ever and he is putting his knowledge and experience at the disposal of the district. He was a big help in conducting tournaments last year and will continue to be of real service this season.

Whitbread, the defending champion, won his title at Algonquin last season, defeating Sid Le Gear of Sunset in the finals. Elliott took the place of Eddie Held in St. Louis' golf "four horsemen" when Held moved to New York City and he has proved a worthy successor.

Some of those on the outside who are considered to have a fine chance are Bryan Winter, North Hills, who has been knocking at championship doors since his advent in St. Louis a few years back; Roger Lord, Algonquin, and Chris Kenney, Sunset, two of the veteran warriors of the District, both of whom have held the championship before. They have been playing steadily in their best form this season and will prove tough for anybody to beat.

Then there are some youngsters coming along who may make their presence felt. Charley Collins, Algonquin, Western junior champion; Mike Roach, Woodlawn, district junior champion; George Kippenberger, high school title holder; Bruce Miller, Algonquin, are among the younger generation of good golfers who may crash through at any time.

Midland Valley is not a particularly hard course, nor is it an easy one. Its 6300 yards, par 72, contain many trying situations which demand real golf skill and it is anticipated that a score of 79 will qualify nicely in the championship class.

There will be three classes, as usual, A and B, in addition to the top flight. And after the first round of match play, scheduled for Tuesday, there will be the championship consolation. A round-a-day of match play is scheduled from Tuesday on with the semifinals Friday and the finals Saturday in all classes. All matches except the finals in each class and the championship semifinals will be at 18 holes with those mentioned at 36 holes.

In addition to the individual competition there will be a team play in the qualifying round with a team of four men selected by each club whose aggregate qualifying scores will determine the winner.

There will be prizes for the winner and runnerup in each class with the champion receiving the Ben Langan Trophy which he may hold for one year.

More Tournaments Coming.

The District will be one of the three important tournaments which follow each other closely here within the next two weeks. Next Monday professionals and amateurs will strive for the six places allotted to this section for players in the National Open tournament in a 36 hole medal round at Normandie Golf Club while on Wednesday of next week the Missouri Amateur tournament is scheduled to start with an 18-hole qualifying round at North Hills.

More than 60 entries have already been received for the State event, in which Dick Bockenkamp will defend the championship he won at Kansas City last year.

Bonner Miller, secretary of the Missouri Golf Association, announced yesterday that a number of entries had been received from Kansas City.

Several St. Louis clubs have nominated their four-man and two-man teams to compete in the team events held in conjunction with the State. The St. Louis teams are:

Sunset Hill—Chris Kenney, Sid Le Gear, Louis H. Josties and John K. Switzer; two-man team—Kenney and Le Gear.

North Hills—Chick Irwin, Earl Whately, Bryan Winter and Bill Medart; two-man—Winter and Medart.

Algonquin—Roger Lord, Charley Collins, Don Bender, Ben Goodwin; two-man—Lord and Bender.

Normandie—Jim Manion, Elliott Whitbread, Don Anderson and Frank Montgomery; two-man — Manion and Anderson.

St. Louis Country Club — Don Lambert, Ellsworth Smith, Sam Conant, King Ludington.

WRAY'S COLUMN

a Jim Maloney. Obey the rules—and that goes for ALL of them.

There Were Others.

NOT that we should bear down so heavily on Maloney. There were others before him—he just happens to be the latest nit-wit.

Two of the most disputed and discussed fights in history saw the defeated boxer looking "out of the window" when trouble started. In both of them Jack Dempsey, a fighter who NEVER forgot the all-important instructions of the Marquis, played the leading part.

In Jack's battle with Luis Firpo, the Wild Bull had things in his favor. He rocked Dempsey to his very toes, with the first punch of the fight. But Dempsey kept his hands up and his eyes front.

Then the scene changed. Dempsey was forcing the fight. Firpo was retreating. Dempsey was hewing away with both hands and didn't care much where the chips fell. One fell foul, so Luis thought. He wanted that thing stopped. He forgot that Marquis of Queensberry knew his garden truck. He turned away to complain, slightly lowering his gloves.

Well, the next picture we remember was the Wild Bull collapsed at full length on the canvas where one of the champion's left hooks had stretched him. Because he was big and game, the Wild Bull was able to stagger up and go on with the fight; but what that punch took out of him undoubtedly helped soften him for the finish, which came in the next round.

Luis was another who forgot the rules.

And Then, Mr. Sharkey.

A STILL more notable case was that of Jack Sharkey, in that memorable million-dollar battle with Jack Dempsey at New York.

It was in the seventh round and Sharkey had battered the old veteran savagely for six rounds. Dempsey was almost out, at one time. One would have thought Dempsey, not Sharkey, would be the one to forget the rules.

But in that seventh round the break came. Again Sharkey, who was being punished heavily about the waistline, and was backing away from the black-browed foe, was seen suddenly to drop his gloves and grab at his waistline, while turning his head toward the referee. He wanted to claim a foul.

He forgot that the old Marquee says: "Protect yourself at all times," which means even if you think you have been fouled or have any objection to enter, don't drop your guard. The middle of a fight is no place to open a debate.

But Sharkey forgot that. Hardly had his glove started to sink than Dempsey followed through with his left hand to the Sharkey button and—

Well, Sharkey is still a fine championship prospect. Had he not failed to protect himself at all times, he might have had the match for the title with Gene Tunney—and might even have outboxed that astute technician to gain the title.

It's just another phase of the old injunction to "act first and argue afterwards." And in the ring you either adhere to it or you pass on out.

At Last a Title Bout.

WILLIE STRIBLING and Maxie Schmeling are now in the middle of their intensive training for their championship fight at Cleveland July 3. Probably interest will warm up later, but at this writing public sentiment isn't even lukewarm.

However, there are not wanting indications that the coming event will be well worth while, even though the popular estimate of Stribling is that, as a fighter, he is a great glove catcher.

The fact about this match that most interests this observer is that Stribling will be going in there with only a 12½ per cent cut while his rival will receive three times as much. It spells self-confidence on the part of the Southerner. Coupled with the fact that Willie cannot afford to miss fire again, under penalty of being retired as a fight title hope, it makes one believe that there will be some front line battling.

The public generally believes that if Stribling could forget the "safety first" stuff that he has employed when under fire in all his past title attempts, he might get somewhere. He can hit a knockout punch, he can box, he has the poise that nearly a dozen years in the ring lends; and he has fought nearly 300 fights against men of all styles and sizes.

With such a background he should be able to mop up with Maxie, who has had limited experience and only two or three genuinely creditable fights in his record.

There is one thing about the German champion that holds his followers. He is a long distance fighter. The longer the bout lasts the better Maxie looks. That means he is game and can take it. It's a combination hard to beat.

With Schmeling a forward fighter willing to "take it" to land a punch, and with Stribling coming in for a quick finish and the championship, the ingredients for a real fight seem to be present.

87 Holes Needed To Decide Match At Osage Hills

WHEN J. P. Rogers and T. V. Pickarux were paired in the annual Osage Hills Country Club handicap tournament they started unwittingly an endurance contest which ended after 87 holes, Rogers winning, 4 and 3.

The match started last Sunday, the golfers being tied after 36 holes of play. Last Friday 18 more were added, with the result being unchanged. Yesterday Rogers won on the eighty-seventh hole, but the two finished the remaining three holes, making a total of 90, in which they had engaged.

MILLER DEFEATS TORONTO ACE IN SINGLE SCULLS

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.—William G. Miller, Philadelphia, American champion sculler, defeated Joe Wright Jr. of Toronto, former Diamond Sculls holder, in the twenty-seventh annual regatta of the American Rowing Association on the Schuylkill River today.

Miller, representing the Bachelors' Barge Club, finished fully four lengths ahead of Wright. It was the first time Miller and Wright have ever met in single sculls.

More than 10,000 rowing followers saw Yale's varsity 150-pound crew keep its season's record clean by winning one of the feature events. The Elis, stroked by Jay B. L. Reeves, defeated Pennsylvania by half a length in the final heat with the Navy only a few feet back of the Red and Blue, and Harvard last. Yale covered the mile and five-sixteenths in 7:34 3-5. In the heats held in the morning Columbia, Cornell and Princeton lightweight crews were eliminated.

The Harvard third varsity crew, which is going abroad to the British Royal Henley, defeated Princeton by two lengths, with Pennsylvania last, the Crimson being timed at 7:25.

The combined Stewards Cup and Junior varsity race, was won by the Pennsylvania A. C. of Philadelphia, which finished seven lengths ahead of Princeton with Pennsylvania last.

The Stewards Cup went to Penn A. C., which lifted the international trophy in Belgium last August. Princeton, by beating Pennsylvania Javees, won the New England challenge cup.

Williamson (Ill.) Wins, 10-1.

LIVINGSTON, Ill., May 30.—Renner held Livingston to three hits today and the home team was defeated by Williamson, 10-1.

U. S. DAVIS CUP PLAYERS SWEEP SERIES AGAINST ARGENTINE TEAM

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—A dramatic four-set victory by young Clifford Sutter of New Orleans, making his Davis Cup debut, today enabled the United States team to score a clean sweep of five matches to none over Argentina in the final American tie.

By stamina and cool-headedness he came from behind to wear down the 28-year-old second ranking Argentine player, Guillermo Robson, 3—6, 6—4, 6—3, 6—3.

Earlier, Frank X. Shields of New York, who has done yeoman service in the current Davis Cup campaign, easily won his third match of the series, defeating the giant Ronaldo Boyd, 6—2, 6—2, 6—2.

Boyd, the first ranking Argentine player, did not live up to the promise he displayed in early practice. His teammates said the Buenos Aires star was 20 per cent below his usual form, and the rangy young New Yorker was never extended to win.

With the Davis Cup scalps of both the North and South American continents, the youthful United States team tonight prepared to depart for New York and then to practice on the Orange (N. J.) Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club courts before sailing for Europe.

An enthusiastic gallery of more than 2000 persons, including Chief Justice Hughes of the Supreme Court, Attorney-General Mitchell, Ambassador Malbran of Argentina, and a host of other officials, sweltered under a hot sun to watch the final play at the Chevy Chase Club.

SENATORS AND YANKS SPLIT; THREE SUCCESSIVE HURLERS FORCE IN RUNS

WASHINGTON, May 30.—The Senators and the Yankees divided the holiday double-header here this afternoon before a crowd of 25,000 fans. The Senators won the first game, 3 to 2, and the Yankees won the second, 9 to 8.

Joe Cronin and Tony Lazzeri hit home runs in the first game. In the ninth, Sam Jones was knocked out of the box and Carl Fischer went in and stopped the Yankees by fanning Byrd and Ruth, and by getting Gehrig to pop up. Herb Pennock pitched the entire game for the Yankees.

Henry Johnson started the second game for the Yankees, opposing Burke. The Yankees compiled a three-run lead, one run of which was made by Gehrig with a home run. They lost this lead in the sixth when Kuhel hit a homer with two men on bases.

The Yankees made five runs and routed Burke in the seventh, then Johnson blew up in the eighth and the Senators made three runs with one hit. With the bases full Johnson, then Roy Sherid, then Vernon Gomez, walked men to force in three runs.

BOROTRA WILL

BETTY NUTHALL TO PLAY GERMAN ACE IN WOMEN'S SINGLES FINAL

By the Associated Press.

AUTEUIL, France, May 30.—Once more, though this time against more moderate opposition, France has kept its men's singles tennis championship away from the foreign challengers.

In all the history of the French championships, no foreigner has been able to break through and win the singles crown. Tomorrow Jean Borotra, the only physically able member of France's "three musketeers," will play Christian Boussus, one of the rising youngsters, in the final round for the championship Henri Cochet could not defend because of illness.

Boussus defeated G. P. Hughes, the Irishman who eliminated George Lott yesterday in five sets of one semifinal, 6—1, 4—6, 6—2, 6—3, while Borotra had a bit more strenuous time beating Jiro Satoh, 10—8, 2—6, 5—7, 6—1, 6—2. Thus the French salvaged one championship out of the two weeks of play in singles and doubles in both men's and women's divisions in addition to the mixed doubles.

Miss Betty Nuthall, English girl who holds the American women's singles championship, will play Fraulein Cilli Aussem of Germany in the final for the French title Mrs. Helen Wills Moody did not defend. Fraulein Aussem defeated Senorita Elia De Alvarez of Spain, 6—0, 7—5, today as Miss Nuthall easily disposed of Hilda Krawinkel, another German girl, 6—1, 6—2.

PHILS MAKE 22 RUNS, BEATING BRAVES TWICE; TWO HOMERS FOR KLEIN

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.—Magnificent hurling by Ray Benge in the morning game and by Clise Dudley in the afternoon game gave the Phillies a double triumph over the Boston Braves today. The scores were 10-0 and 12-0.

While the Braves were helpless, the Phillies pounded the offering of the Boston hurlers to all corners of the lot. They combed the visitors' hurlers for 30 hits. Chuck Klein led the assault with his tenth and eleventh home runs of the year, one in each game.

Berger also hit a home run, a drive which cleared the left field wall. It was the first time the trick has been turned since Cliff Lee accomplished it in 1922.

Benge allowed only four hits in the morning encounter while Dudley limited the Braves to three in the night cap.

BROWNS GO EAST AFTER MEETING WHITE SOX TODAY

By James M. Gould.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

CHICAGO, May 30. — Baseball life seems just one thing after another for the Browns and few of the things, coming one after the other, are pleasant. With yesterday's opener washed out by rain, Bill Killefer's club was ready today to take on the White Sox in a holiday double-header, but rain again set in and both contests were postponed. The postponements brought the Browns' season total to 15.

However, there was a bright side. Killefer's pitchers have had plenty of work recently with a fair share of double-headers. George Blaeholder has been nursing a sore arm and the postponement of the three games here has worked to the club's advantage inasmuch as, Monday being a day off allowed for travel, all the pitchers Killefer is carrying will be thoroughly rested by Tuesday when the first game at New York is scheduled.

There has been no move on the part of the club officials looking toward the strengthening of the club at first-base way or in the pitching department.

For the final game here, Killefer will use Dick Coffman. Rip Collins may see action if Coffman falters.

BI-WEEKLY WRESTLING SHOWS AT BATTERY A PLANNED BY TOM PACKS

Outdoor wrestling shows will be held at the Battery Arena at intervals of two weeks throughout the summer season, according to plans disclosed by Promoter Tom Packs, who concluded his ninth indoor season at the Coliseum with last Wednesday night's program. Packs has arranged to hold his first outdoor card on Wednesday night, June 10.

Karl Pojello, elusive Chicago Lithuanian, who defeated Mil Steinborn of Germany, in the semi-windup to the Steele-Kwariani feature of last week's Coliseum program, probably will appear as one of the headliners in the inaugural Battery show. The grapplers under consideration by Packs for the one fall finish tussle with Pojello include Dick Daviscourt, George Zaharias, Rudy Dusek and Paul Jones.

Dills Is Named Coach.

By the Associated Press.

LIBERTY, Mo., May 30.—Russell Dills, former football and track star at the University of Missouri was announced today as the new athletic coach at Liberty High School. Dills, who is now coaching at Waldorf at Nebraska Wesleyan, accepted the position in a telephone conversation with school authorities.

EEP TRACK TITLE

AY'S OLUMN

But Sharkey forgot that. Hardly had his glove started to sink than Dempsey followed through with his left hand to the Sharkey button and—

Well, Sharkey is still a fine championship prospect. Had he not failed to protect himself at all times, he might have had the match for the title with Gene Tunney—and might even have outboxed that astute technician to gain the title.

It's just another phase of the old injunction to "act first and argue afterwards." And in the ring you either adhere to it or you pass on out.

At Last a Title Bout.

WILLIE STRIBLING and Maxie Schmeling are now in the middle of their intensive training for their championship fight at Cleveland July 3. Probably interest will warm up later, but at this writing public sentiment isn't even lukewarm.

However, there are not wanting indications that the coming event will be well worth while, even though the popular estimate of Stribling is that, as a fighter, he is a great glove catcher.

The fact about this match that most interests this observer is that Stribling will be going in there with only a 12½ per cent cut while his rival will receive three times as much. It spells self-confidence on the part of the Southerner. Coupled with the fact that Willie cannot afford to miss fire again, under penalty of being retired as a fight title hope, it makes one believe that there will be some front line battling.

The public generally believes that if Stribling could forget the "safety first" stuff that he has employed when under fire in all his past title attempts, he might get somewhere. He can hit a knockout punch, he can box, he has the poise that nearly a dozen years in the ring lends; and he has fought nearly 300 fights against men of all styles and sizes.

With such a background he should be able to mop up with Maxie, who has had limited experience and only two or three genuinely creditable fights in his record.

There is one thing about the German champion that holds his followers. He is a long distance fighter. The longer the bout lasts the better Maxie looks. That means he is game and can take it. It's a combination hard to beat.

With Schmeling a forward fighter willing to "take it" to land a punch, and with Stribling coming in for a quick finish and the championship, the ingredients for a real fight seem to be present.

MILLER DEFEATS TORONTO ACE IN SINGLE SCULLS

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.—William G. Miller, Philadelphia, American champion sculler, defeated Joe Wright Jr. of Toronto, former Diamond Sculls holder, in the twenty-seventh annual regatta of the American Rowing Association on the Schuylkill River today.

Miller, representing the Bachelors' Barge Club, finished fully four lengths ahead of Wright. It was the first time Miller and Wright have ever met in single sculls.

More than 10,000 rowing followers saw Yale's varsity 150-pound crew keep its season's record clean by winning one of the feature events. The Elis, stroked by Jay B. L. Reeves, defeated Pennsylvania by half a length in the final heat with the Navy only a few feet back of the Red and Blue, and Harvard last. Yale covered the mile and five-sixteenths in 7:34 3-5. In the heats held in the morning Columbia, Cornell and Princeton lightweight crews were eliminated.

The Harvard third varsity crew, which is going abroad to the British Royal Henley, defeated Princeton by two lengths, with Pennsylvania last, the Crimson being timed at 7:25.

The combined Stewards Cup and Junior varsity race, was won by the Pennsylvania A. C. of Philadelphia, which finished seven lengths ahead of Princeton with Pennsylvania last.

The Stewards Cup went to Penn A. C., which lifted the international trophy in Belgium last August. Princeton, by beating Pennsylvania Javees, won the New England challenge cup.

Williamson (Ill.) Wins, 10-1.

LIVINGSTON, Ill., May 30.—Renner held Livingston to three hits today and the home team was defeated by Williamson, 10-1.

U. S. DAVIS CUP PLAYERS SWEEP SERIES AGAINST ARGENTINE TEAM

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—A dramatic four-set victory by young Clifford Sutter of New Orleans, making his Davis Cup debut, today enabled the United States team to score a clean sweep of five matches to none over Argentina in the final American tie.

By stamina and cool-headedness he came from behind to wear down the 28-year-old second ranking Argentine player, Guillermo Robson, 3—6, 6—4, 6—3, 6—3.

Earlier, Frank X. Shields of New York, who has done yeoman service in the current Davis Cup campaign, easily won his third match of the series, defeating the giant Ronaldo Boyd, 6—2, 6—2, 6—2.

Boyd, the first ranking Argentine player, did not live up to the promise he displayed in early practice. His teammates said the Buenos Aires star was 20 per cent below his usual form, and the rangy young New Yorker was never extended to win.

With the Davis Cup scalps of both the North and South American continents, the youthful United States team tonight prepared to depart for New York and then to practice on the Orange (N. J.) Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club courts before sailing for Europe.

An enthusiastic gallery of more than 2000 persons, including Chief Justice Hughes of the Supreme Court, Attorney-General Mitchell, Ambassador Malbran of Argentina, and a host of other officials, sweltered under a hot sun to watch the final play at the Chevy Chase Club.

SENATORS AND YANKS SPLIT; THREE SUCCESSIVE HURLERS FORCE IN RUNS

WASHINGTON, May 30.—The Senators and the Yankees divided the holiday double-header here this afternoon before a crowd of 25,000 fans. The Senators won the first game, 3 to 2, and the Yankees won the second, 9 to 8.

Joe Cronin and Tony Lazzeri hit home runs in the first game. In the ninth, Sam Jones was knocked out of the box and Carl Fischer went in and stopped the Yankees by fanning Byrd and Ruth, and by getting Gehrig to pop up. Herb Pennock pitched the entire game for the Yankees.

Henry Johnson started the second game for the Yankees, opposing Burke. The Yankees compiled a three-run lead, one run of which was made by Gehrig with a home run. They lost this lead in the sixth when Kuhel hit a homer with two men on bases.

The Yankees made five runs and routed Burke in the seventh, then Johnson blew up in the eighth and the Senators made three runs with one hit. With the bases full Johnson, then Roy Sherid, then Vernon Gomez, walked men to force in three runs.

BOROTRA WILL PLAY BOUSSUS FOR FRENCH TENNIS HONOR

BETTY NUTHALL TO PLAY GERMAN ACE IN WOMEN'S SINGLES FINAL

By the Associated Press.

AUTEUIL, France, May 30.—Once more, though this time against more moderate opposition, France has kept its men's singles tennis championship away from the foreign challengers.

In all the history of the French championships, no foreigner has been able to break through and win the singles crown. Tomorrow Jean Borotra, the only physically able member of France's "three musketeers," will play Christian Boussus, one of the rising youngsters, in the final round for the championship Henri Cochet could not defend because of illness.

Boussus defeated G. P. Hughes, the Irishman who eliminated George Lott yesterday in five sets of one semifinal, 6—1, 4—6, 6—2, 6—3, while Borotra had a bit more strenuous time beating Jiro Satoh, 10—8, 2—6, 5—7, 6—1, 6—2. Thus the French salvaged one championship out of the two weeks of play in singles and doubles in both men's and women's divisions in addition to the mixed doubles.

Miss Betty Nuthall, English girl who holds the American women's singles championship, will play Fraulein Cilli Aussem of Germany in the final for the French title Mrs. Helen Wills Moody did not defend. Fraulein Aussem defeated Senorita Elia De Alvarez of Spain, 6—0, 7—5, today as Miss Nuthall easily disposed of Hilda Krawinkel, another German girl, 6—1, 6—2.

PHILS MAKE 22 RUNS, BEATING BRAVES TWICE; TWO HOMERS FOR KLEIN

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.—Magnificent hurling by Ray Benge in the morning game and by Clise Dudley in the afternoon game gave the Phillies a double triumph over the Boston Braves today. The scores were 10-0 and 12-0.

While the Braves were helpless, the Phillies pounded the offering of the Boston hurlers to all corners of the lot. They combed the visitors' hurlers for 30 hits. Chuck Klein led the assault with his tenth and eleventh home runs of the year, one in each game.

Berger also hit a home run, a drive which cleared the left field wall. It was the first time the trick has been turned since Cliff Lee accomplished it in 1922.

Benge allowed only four hits in the morning encounter while Dudley limited the Braves to three in the night cap.

BROWNS GO EAST AFTER MEETING WHITE SOX TODAY

By James M. Gould.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

CHICAGO, May 30. — Baseball life seems just one thing after another for the Browns and few of the things, coming one after the other, are pleasant. With yesterday's opener washed out by rain, Bill Killefer's club was ready today to take on the White Sox in a holiday double-header, but rain again set in and both contests were postponed. The postponements brought the Browns' season total to 15.

However, there was a bright side. Killefer's pitchers have had plenty of work recently with a fair share of double-headers. George Blaeholder has been nursing a sore arm and the postponement of the three games here has worked to the club's advantage inasmuch as, Monday being a day off allowed for travel, all the pitchers Killefer is carrying wil be thoroughly rested by Tuesday when the first game at New York is scheduled.

There has been no move on the part of the club officials looking toward the strengthening of the club at first-base way or in the pitching department.

For the final game here, Killefer will use Dick Coffman. Rip Collins may see action if Coffman falters.

BI-WEEKLY WRESTLING SHOWS AT BATTERY A PLANNED BY TOM PACKS

Outdoor wrestling shows will be held at the Battery Arena at intervals of two weeks throughout the summer season, according to plans disclosed by Promoter Tom Packs, who concluded his ninth indoor season at the Coliseum with last Wednesday night's program. Packs has arranged to hold his first outdoor card on Wednesday night, June 10.

Karl Pojello, elusive Chicago Lithuanian, who defeated Milo Steinborn of Germany, in the semi-windup to the Steele-Kwariani feature of last week's Coliseum program, probably will appear as one of the headliners in the inaugural Battery show. The grapplers under consideration by Packs for a one fall finish tussle with Pojello include Dick Daviscourt, George Zaharias, Rudy Dusek and Paul Jones.

Dills Is Named Coach.

By the Associated Press.

LIBERTY, Mo., May 30.—Russell Dills, former football and track star at the University of Missouri, was announced today as the new football coach at Liberty High School. Dills, now assisting John Waldorf at Nebraska Wesleyan University, accepted the position in a telephone conversation with school authorities.

Scattering Seeds of Kindness.

IN spring we love to rise at dawn
And do a kindly deed;
We scatter seeds upon the lawn
On which the sparrows feed.

Although on fertile ground they fall,
They never turn to grass,
For little sparrows, after all,
Have got to live, alas!

Those birds come flocking to the feast
From east, west, south and north;
And so we sow a peck at least,
And so on and so forth.

THE A's are off like track men
With their eyes upon the swag;
And the team that stops the Mackmen
Is the team that cops the flag.

The A's are not only burning up the league, but they're throwing out a smoke screen that keeps the Yanks from seeing which way they went.

The idea we are trying to put over is that the Athletics are injecting considerable interest into the race for second money in the American League.

So unless the unexpected happens, it looks like the Athletics will open the world series in St. Louis this fall instead of in Philadelphia, as they did last.

Schooners Aweigh.

See where Froth Blower won the King's Plate at Toronto. But he wouldn't be worth a thin dime in the dry plate.

Babe Ruth picks the Yankees to win the flag not because it is the team he is with but probably because he is with the team, although he doesn't say so.

After winning 17 straight games Connie Mack said that doubleheaders would be sure to affect the pennant race. Well, we'll admit it is a bit harder to win two a day than one a day but don't be discouraged, Connie.

Columbia Crew Wins Childs Cup Four Times in Row

PRINCETON, N. J., May 30.—A powerful Columbia crew, undefeated this year, won the varsity race of the Childs Cup regatta today for the fourth successive time.

The Lion eight, stroked by Mac Ready Sykes, rowed the mile and three-quarters on Lake Carnegie in 9:43 and beat Pennsylvania by four lengths, with Princeton another three-quarters of a length behind.

Columbia's string of four straight Childs Cup victories established a new record for the competition for since 1879, when the event first was rowed, no crew had been able to win the cup for more than three years in succession.

The other three races of the program were evenly divided. Pennsylvania easily won the freshmen race, beating Columbia by three lengths and Princeton by seven. Columbia's 150-pound freshmen crew beat Princeton by two lengths and Pennsylvania by two and one-half. Princeton's victory was scored in the opening race, a dual affair between the Tiger and Pennsylvania second freshmen crews. Princeton in this event came from behind to win by a scant half length.

MUNICIPAL HORSESHOE LEAGUE WILL COMPLETE ITS FIRST ROUND TODAY

The Municipal Horseshoe League will complete its first round of games this morning at Fairground Park. The teams are evenly matched and three interesting matches are expected.

The Larrs meet the Liberty Bells while the Kuhlmanns take on the Angelicas. The champion Sunsets meet the Plegge club in the other match.

The standings:

TEAM.	W.	L.	Pct.
Sunsets	49	15	.766
Angelicas	43	21	.672
Plegges	38	26	.594
Kuhlmanns	29	35	.453
Liberty Bells	20	44	.312
Larrs	13	51	.172

YALE POLOISTS BEAT ARIZONA U., 11 TO 9

NEW HAVEN Conn., May 30.—Displaying brilliant team work, Yale poloists today defeated the University of Arizona, 11 to 9, in spite of a six-goal handicap given the visitors.

The Elis overcame the handicap in the fifth chukker. Jimmie Mills and Capt. Rathbone played outstanding games for Yale, feeding shots to Bostwick who drove the ball across the line for four scores. Mills, in addition, scored four more individually.

GIANTS LOSE TWO GAMES TO ROBINS; GILBERT HITS SIX TIMES IN A ROW

NEW YORK, May 30.—Before 60,000 fans, a crowd which is believed to have set a new National League attendance record, the Brooklyn Robins won two games from the Giants today. The Robins took the first, 5 to 2, in 10 innings, then hammered out an 18-to-8 decision in the second.

In the opener, Carl Hubbell's pitching had the Robins almost stopped up to the ninth inning. Then Bressler's pinch single with two out tied it up, and Bissonette clouted a homer with two on base to win. Bissonette also hit a homer in the second game, but it was just one of Brooklyn's 22 hits. Slade went him one better, by clouting a four-bagger with the bases full in the fourth to give the Robins a commanding lead. Wally Gilbert hit six times in succession in seven trips to the plate in the second game.

CUBS BEAT PIRATES IN DOUBLE HEADER

PITTSBURG, May 30.—The Chicago Cubs observed the holiday in fitting fashion today by taking two games from Pittsburg, the morning score was 9 to 2, and in the afternoon, 6 to 5.

The Pirates rallied in the late innings of the second encounter and had the tying run on second in the ninth when Root fanned pinch hitter Mosloff to end the game. Cuyler hit a home run in the seventh inning of the afternoon fray.

National League Race Between Cardinals and Giants, McGraw Asserts

By John J. McGraw,
Manager New York Giants.

BOSTON, May 30.—Lately there has been a lot of talk about the Cubs being through for the year and the usual flock of loose rumors about things not going so well with the club but you can bet that club is still going to be an important factor in this National League race. They are not so far out of it as many disappointed fans seem to imagine. In fact, the position of the Cubs right now is the same as it was this time last year. They have a natural punch and with Hack Wilson starting to hit, it will make a lot of difference. They'll get some good pitching too, when the punch starts to show.

In the meantime, we have had a good look at all the clubs and I fail to see where any one of them has anything on the Giants. Our club is hitting and fielding well, and, besides that, has speed. The pitching has been good, and that gives our club a nice balance. Just as I foresaw some months ago, the Cardinals are the club we will have to beat to win a championship. Gabby Street has a fighting outfit there and is blessed with an unusually large number of starting pitchers. It's going to be a pretty fight to a finish between them and the Giants.

McGRAW.

The American League.

The wind-up of the Western invasion by the Eastern clubs of the American League indicates that the league has settled down into a natural stride. The Athletics and the Yanks have shown their superiority and the clubs are lined up right now about the way I expect them to finish. The Yanks have shown their run-making power all around the circuit, but the Athletics have an advantage in those two or three star pitchers, Grove, Earnshaw and Walberg. Though he is using the others freely now, you may expect to see Connie Mack concentrate on his outstanding stars when it comes to a hard drive. He is well equipped for any sort of a fight and will be hard to beat.

The Fonseca-Kamm deal has helped the White Sox considerably but to be of much value they will eventually have to play Fonseca at first base. That is his natural job. Willie Kamm is a valuable man and may fill in a gap for Cleveland but it looked as if he could not help the Sox and that, I imagine is the reason they traded him. The deal shows that Comiskey is keenly on the job and is willing to go the route to strengthen his club. He has a lot of punch in Fonseca, Fothergill, Reynolds, Jolley, Simons and Appling. The White Sox will make a good showing yet.

Robins Start to Hit.

A good sign in our league is the way Brooklyn has started to hit. The've got a long way to go yet but they'll be in the scramble somewhere. At the same time the Braves with their improved punch and good pitching are holding up well and will do a lot to make the race close.

The Washington club had a setback just as many of us feared, when hard luck hit the old-timers. Sam Rice is back again, going strong, but Joe Judge is out and his absence will be felt. Cronin has done a lot to hold that club up. He is certainly a great run-getter, and that is what counts.

The American League has a new and dangerous factor in Detroit. Harris is making a mighty good showing, due to the improved hitting of men like Stone.

Cleveland Disappoints.

The big disappointment is Cleveland. The fall-down of their pitching was disastrous, and, in addition, the infield has been very uncertain. Wesley Ferrell, Peckinpaugh's outstanding pitching hope, has been having trouble ever since he pitched that no-hit game. Oddly enough, that sort of thing has happened in baseball. The job of getting that outfit on its feet and reviving its spirit has added to the worries of Peckinpaugh. Remember, though, is is still a long season.

In our league the Pirates are a hard club to figure. They have good punch and a hustling team, but it looks as if the pitchers won't be able to keep them up there. Kremer, usually depended upon as a winning pitcher, has had a bad start.

I understand that heroic efforts are being made to strengthen the Reds, but we'll have to wait to see how that comes out.

For the next two or three weeks fans will witness a hot fight among the first division clubs of both leagues.

Cards in First Place After Defeating the Reds Twice

and the Cards instead of trailing, were leading by one run.

Allyn Stout went to the hill in the eighth, but the Reds nicked him for two singles and Manager Street had to call on Old Man Rescue himself, Jim Lindsey, who quelled the Red uprising and pitched into and out of more trouble in the ninth to protect the one-run margin.

Haines and a strong wind spotted the Reds four runs in the first frame of the opening contest, but the Cards tallied twice in their half, tied the score in the third on Taylor Douthit's homer and broke the tie in the sixth by driving seven runs over the plate.

George Watkins hit two homers in this game and one of them was a highlight in the big sixth inning rally.

The Cardinals went through both games without an error and their fielding at times was sensational. Charley Gelbert looked like at least five or six short-stops out there, each with a few extra hands. He hauled in pop flies, scooped up grounders and grabbed wild throws and started double plays until the Reds must have thought that Gabby Street had a whole battalion of Gelberts out there around second base.

Redbird Notes

PAUL DERRINGER will make his first start of the season this afternoon facing the Reds in one game of the double-header. Sylvester Johnson will hurl the other contest for the Cardinals.

The Decoration day twin-bill attracted 16,200 cash customers.

Skies were overcast and a strong cold wind was blowing toward center field.

The wind fooled Taylor Douthit on Cuccinello's drive in the first inning. It seemed that Taylor had the ball gauged, but the wind carried it over his head for a triple.

Bottomley won a race to the bag after fielding Roush's grounder in the third inning of the first game but Jim had to slide, to avoid a collision. It was a spectacular play, and the stands applauded the hustling son of Nokomis.

"The Cardinal News," a four-page folder devoted to facts about the Redbirds and their schedule and the teams soon to visit Sportsman's Park, made its first appearance yesterday, distributed with score cards. It is edited by William Walsingham Jr. and Eugene F. Karst. The latter is publicity director for the Cardinals organization.

Adams threw out two runners on grounders that caromed off pitcher's gloves, retiring Kolp in the fourth inning of the first game and Sigafoos in the fifth frame of the second.

SIR ANDREW JACOPO

Sir Andrew is owned by William Woodward, who won the Kentucky Derby last year with Gallant Fox. Sir Andrew is a half brother of Gallant Fox. He is 10 to 1 in the betting. Jacopo at one time was favorite in the race, but following a recent defeat his price fell to 20 to 1. Cameronian is now favorite at 3 to 1, with the Aga Khan's Pomme D'Api second choice at 6 to 1. It will be the 148th running of the Derby.

31 HORSES IN EPSOM DERBY, WEDNESDAY

By the Associated Press.

EPSOM DOWNS, England, May 30. — Thirty-one finely trained thoroughbreds went through the final stages of preparation while all England looked on today in anticipation of the 148th renewal of her historic Derby here, June 3.

From the hundreds of colts that were entered, some as soon as they were foaled, the list tonight had narrowed down to the select 31, including two American horses, Marshall Fields' Jacopo and William Woodward's American-bred Sir Andrew, a half-brother of the famous Gallant Fox.

Neither King nor commoner was spared in the last weeding out process for King George's horse was scratched. It is expected that Tuesday will see five or six more scratches.

Cameronian, at 3 to 1, heads the list of favorites with Aga Khan's Pommedapi second at 8 to 1 against. Jacopo is held at 28 to 1 and Sir Andrew at 22 to 1, while some of the horses are so little fancied that the bookmakers are offering 200 to 1 against their chances of winning.

With the hubbub and furore of the sweepstakes drawings over, the more prosaic work of training the candidates was resumed and today's gallops attracted much attention. At Newmarket Sir Andrew worked out with Roseen and Soleil and all displayed the best form they have shown thus far in training.

A real Derby trial was held impromptu at Manton, where Shell Transport, Orpen, Costerboy, Linkboy and Primitif galloped a mile and a half with Orpen winning easily over Shell Transport. Steve Donoghue, veteran jockey, had the leg up on Linkboy but was soundly beaten.

PENNANT LASS SELLS FOR $7000

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 30.—A total of $45,625 was realized today at a sale of horses held in the Belmont Park paddock before the races. The horses were the property of Phil T. Chinn, Joseph E. Patterson & Co., the Brookmeade Stable, A. W. Wentzel and others.

The B. B. Stable paid the highest price of the lot, $7000, for Pennant Lass from the Wentzel Stable. Phil Chinn's Cloudy Day, a gelding, brought the next best price, going to G. Phillips for $3500. Phillips also paid $2100 for another of the Chinn horses, Foolish Fellow. Two more of the Chinn lot, Thatched Roof and Twisted Threads, brought $2000 apiece. They were sold to F. J. Navin and J. M. Higgins, respectively.

All the other horses were disposed of at lower prices.

REXINGER OF CHICAGO, WINS BIG TEN SINGLES, HELPS WIN DOUBLES

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., May 30.—Scott Rexinger of Chicago University, for the second time in two years won the singles crown, and helped win the doubles title in the Western Conference tennis championships here today.

Rexinger, in the singles finals, defeated Carl Dennison of Ohio State, in straight sets, 6—2, 6—3, 7—5. Paired with Heyman in the doubles, he overcame Ried and Boge of Northwestern, 6—4, 5—7, 6—3. Last year Chicago's star paired with Callahan to win the doubles.

It was Chicago's third consecutive win in the singles, George Lott having taken the crown in 1929.

HOOGERHYDE AND HODGSON WIN VALLEY TITLE ARCHERY EVENTS

Wyman, Webster Groves; Sam Coffin, Webster Groves.

In the Woman's Division of the open tournament, Mrs. Nat E. Lay of Maplewood won with 715 points, her afternoon round being the saving factor. She was also the Missouri Valley winner, outranking the next closest by over 100 points.

Shooting conditions at the tournament were fair, there being a slight wind that bothered some of the archers. All things considered, however, there were some very good scores returned.

Hoogerhyde's 1282 points, of course, are of national championship grade, and there wasn't anyone who could beat him, but Dr. Hodgson's mark was good for that class. The women had much better luck in the afternoon round, the first three places shooting above standard.

Nat E. Lay Wins Trophy.

Nat E. Lay of Maplewood took possession of the Capt. William P. Shart trophy by shooting five "golds" out of six arrows at 60 yards. Just a few minutes earlier A. W. Shannon of Memphis, Tenn., had done the same thing, but Lay's arrows proved to be closer to the exact center of the target.

The Webster Groves women's team took the club event for the third time in succession, with a score of 1971, while Maplewood and Memphis, Tenn., teams were second and third, respectively. The men's team won the club trophy back from Memphis, which won last year, by making a total of 2278 points. Maplewood and Memphis were also third in this shoot.

In the intermediate boys' shoot, young Edward Hodgson of East St. Louis, who was national junior champion last year, made a score of 774 to take the older boys' event easily.

Points in the summaries are counted as follows: Bull's eye, 9; red stripe, 7; blue stripe, 5; black stripe, 3; white stripe, 1.

3-CUSHION TOURNEY ON CORNERLESS TABLE

A three-cushion billiard tournament on the new cornerless table designed by Charley Peterson is to open Monday, June 8, at Peterson's parlor.

It will be an elimination event, open to amateurs and professionals. Entries close Thursday night.

Several players have already entered, among them Larry Schlingle, who won a three-cushion tournament held on the oval table last year.

Peterson is also receiving entries for the annual summer elimination tournaments at three-cushions, red ball and cushion caroms.

FRISIUS TAKES CLOSING STAKE AT WOODBINE

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Ont., May 30. — The Belair Stud's fleet five-year-old Frisius, won the Toronto Cup handicap, $7500 added, feature of the closing day at Woodbine Park today.

Frisius, running the mile and an eighth over a heavy track in 1:53 2-5, beat Mrs. H. Pyne's Storm by half a length, with C. V. Whitney's Rideaway third, a head back. Frisius paid 4½ to 1 in the betting, and earned $6670 for his owner.

The Mount Royal Stable's Marine was fourth while Grey Coat and Herber, the other starters, were never factors in the running.

Rideaway, the favorite, made a bold bid in the stretch, but could not overtake Frisius and was himself beaten out for second place by the fast-finishing Storm.

DR. WILHELMI WINS SUNSET HILL EVENT

Dr. O. J. Wilhelmi planted his flag on the nineteenth green and won the flag tournament, a Memorial day feature at Sunset Hill Country Club yesterday. E. J. Maunteil was second. He reached the nineteenth fairway just a bit ahead of Ben Langan who finished third.

Five got the ball in the cup on the eighteenth green. They were Chris Kenney, George W. Hodway, J. K. Switzer, Carlye Lian and G. E. Haverstick Jr.

Osage Women to Qualify.

The qualifying round for the women's spring handicap tournament at Osage Hills Country Club will be held Wednesday afternoon.

Louis Schneider Captures 500-Mile Auto Race; Billy Arnold Crashes

in 5:10:27.94; an average of 96.629 miles an hour. Frame's time was 5:11:11.12. He averaged 96.406 miles an hour.

Hepburn, finishing third, made the perilous 500-mile trip in 5:18:22.35. The others were strung out far in the rear of the first two to finish.

By his victory, Schneider earned about $40,000 in cash. He will receive $20,000 from the speedway management as first prize and will pick up another $20,000 in bonuses awarded by accessory firms and lap prize money. He won about $2000 in lap prizes.

Before the accident forced him out of the race, Arnold had won $5450 in lap prizes.

Frame, who finished second, received $10,000.

The start of the race, set back three times due to drizzling rains, finally was made at 12 o'clock, two hours late, and immediately developed into what apparently would have been a record breaker, with Arnold leading the parade. Arnold, driving the same machine with which he rode to triumph a year ago, cracked the record for the first 75 miles, which he reeled off in 41:14.25, an average of 109.125 miles an hour.

Then the drizzle, which had abated for about 45 minutes, set in again, and for 75 miles the racers whirled around the track at reduced speed, fearing to step on the gas because of the slippery condition of the brick track.

Barney Oldfield, referee of today's contest, stood in his tower protruding over the track frantically waving a yellow flag as a caution to the drivers to slow down and maintain their positions in the race until the drizzle ceased. The race was interrupted a half dozen times because of drizzling rain, during which the drivers rolled around the track at a speed not in excess of 60 miles an hour.

It was the second time in the 19 years of the race that the start did not get away promptly at 10 o'clock. In 1915, the race was postponed for two days because of wretched weather conditions. In 1926 the race was cut to 400 miles because of rain.

Schneider Always Year Leader.

Schneider, more or less a stormy petrel in organized racing, drove his car courageously and always was regarded as a challenger. He never was more than three laps behind the leader at any time in the race, and when the opportunity came he moved into the lead and refused to yield it. He made only one stop, when he was forced into the pits after traveling 272 miles, to replenish his tanks with gasoline and oil and to change a rear tire.

Schneider, who finished third in the race of a year ago, drove the same car but with a different motor in it.

Accidents and motor trouble forced many contenders out of the race with the exception of Schneider, before 300 miles had been reeled off. William (Shorty) Cantlon of Detroit, one of the ranking contenders, had to surrender because of motor trouble. Leon Duray, another skilled racer, had to give up the grind after 25 miles due to poor water circulation through the motor. Louis Meyer, who won the race in 1928, was another early victim. He finished in Stevens' car.

Harry Butcher, Wilmington, Ill., was the first to crack up, running into a wall early in the race. Fred Winnai of Philadelphia; Deacon Litz of Dubois, Pa., and Phil Pardee of Los Angeles, also were in minor smashups, along with Gulotta, Arnold and Johnson.

Despite the drizzling rain, the Speedway management claimed that the attendance was as great as a year ago, when 150,000 were present. Others guessed the attendance, however, at 120,000 or less.

The spectators, uneasy and with enthusiasm dampened at the three postponed starts, became intensely excited at the thrilling finish which resulted in the crack-up and burning of Arnold's car and the spectacular finish Schneider made in triumph.

ILLINOIS RETAINS BIG TEN GOLF TITLE; MARTIN AGAIN LOW

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., May 30.—The University of Illinois golf team, paced by Dick Martin, retained its Western Conference title in the annual tournament, over the University of Michigan's new course.

Illinois' score was 1272 and Michigan was second with 1298. Martin scored 311 to keep his individual title won last year at Chicago. John Florio of Ohio State, was three points behind with 314. It was the first time either a team or an individual held the title two successive years.

Today's two rounds were played in a steady rain. Scores, however, were about the same as in the sunshine of the first day's play yesterday.

The Illini had a six-point lead over Michigan at the close of the morning round.

Minnesota finished in third place with 1321 points to make the first three finishers the same as last year. Ohio State was fourth with 1324 and Wisconsin fifth with 1340. Northwestern had 1355 points for sixth place and Purdue scored 1392 for seventh. Chicago finished with 1393 points. Indiana had only two entrants, while Iowa did not compete.

Earl Larson of Minnesota, made a hole in one on the hard 175-yard fourteenth hole, but finished with 332.

PETERS NINE WINS TWICE IN MUNICIPAL PLAY

Members of the Municipal League baseball teams found other ways of spending Decoration day other than playing baseball, because only nine games were played yesterday. The rest of the clubs enjoyed an open date in the schedule.

The Peters Shoe team put the holiday to good use by winning a double-header from the R. J. & R. team, 11 to 10 and 5 to 1, in the only games played in the Y. M. C. A. Industrial League No. 3. The winners scored once in the ninth to break a 10-to-10 tie.

The Stockmanns had an easy time winning from the South Side Optimists in the South Side Y. M. C. A. League, piling up 22 runs to the Optimists' 8. The other victors in this division were the Emmetts, who defeated the Wolverines, 7 to 4, and the Aggogs, who won from the American Exchange, 10 to 6.

SPANISH CLUB, MUNY SOCCER TEAM, BEATS CHICAGO ELEVEN 2 TO 1

The Spanish Club of the Carondelet Division of the Municipal Soccer League, defeated the Chicago Kickers, a German aggregation, 2 to 1, yesterday afternoon, in a game played on the banks of the Meramec River at Maitese, Mo. About 600 persons attended.

The visitors, who came here with a good record, must charge up their loss to Right Fullback Perlick, who was responsible for both of the Spanish team's goals.

The Chicago team set a fast pace for the first 10 minutes, employing a foreign type of short passing. Ten minutes before the close of the half, the Spanish Club gained its first goal, when Perlick of Chicago, in trying to check a forward, kicked the ball back over his head toward his own goal and into the hands of the surprised Heinlein in goal, who made a good try for a save, but the ball was wet and went into the net. The half ended without further scoring.

With 20 minutes of the second half played, Perlick caused a penalty against his team. Right Fullback Cueto took the shot for the Spaniards and made good.

Five minutes before the game ended, the Kickers put on some nice pass work, bringing the ball up to the penalty line, with Center Forward Schieber passing the ball to Outside Left Lenker, who headed the ball into the net for a real goal, which P. Garcia had no chance to reach.

The lineups:

The New Municipal Opera

Thirteenth Season in Forest Park Begins Most Auspiciously With Presentation of "Three Little Girls," Which is to Continue Throughout the Week—"The Street Singer," With Queenie Smith, to Follow on June 8.

WITH the rather damp reception given the operetta "Three Little Girls" in Forest Park last Friday night the thirteenth season of Municipal Opera got off to as fine a start as the most rabid summer opera fan could wish for and even the rotund J. J. Shubert, accustomed to big things in theaters the world over—but getting his first view of a complete presentation on the vast stage—watched the proceedings with considerable amazement. "Three Little Girls," the only offering of the summer to run more than one week, will continue through next Sunday evening to be succeeded, the following night, by "The Street Singer," another musical play entirely new to St. Louis.

Thus, the Municipal Theater Association commits itself largely to the policy of presenting "first time" works upon the stage in Forest Park. There is a vast difference between the Municipal Opera today, which goes into the market to purchase productions rights to works which this city has never seen, and the Municipal Opera of other years, which was forced to present only the old familiar repertory of musical stock companies, just as there is a marked difference in the casts it today presents from those which were enforced in other years by the stock company system which it followed.

That difference is the difference between the embryo opera of 12 years ago, which Broadway had not heard of, and the Municipal Opera of today, which in twelve years has achieved an artistic and financial success as to be of outstanding importance in the musical theater of America.

SUCH a success, of course, was what made Mr. Shubert a willing listener when the Municipal Theater Association approached him with an invitation to become its general productions manager for 1931. There has resulted a producing organization patterned after that which has enabled Shubert to achieve an international reputation as a producer of musical plays with upwards of 800 productions, in New York and London, to his credit and he has surrounded himself with a staff of artists and executives whose names have a recognized standing in the creative work of the New York theater.

So rapid was the movement of the story of "Three Little Girls" across the stage in Forest Park Friday night, and again last evening, that few in the audience were conscious of what their programs told them—that the production was presented in 17 scenes, the greatest number Municipal Opera has ever undertaken to present in the course of one evening. That was, of course, because "Three Little Girls" was written for a revolving stage. So were "The Street Singer" and "A Wonderful Night." Without that clever adaption of scientific principles to stage production they would be impossible to the Municipal Theater. So, too, would be most of the other works in this summer's repertory, the numerous changes of scene which could be accomplished in light settings and draperies within the doors of an interior theater, would be impossible to the massive and sturdy settings which are essential to production in Forest Park.

But perhaps the best evidence of the working out of Municipal Opera's new production plan was evidenced in the cast presented with "Three Little Girls." Gladys Baxter, who was so successful as "Madame Pompadour" last season, returned to Municipal Opera to head the cast, a Broadway prima donna of recognized standing. Others in the company presented played the roles on the Municipal Theater stage they had created in the Sam S. Shubert Theater when New York first saw the work. In other ways the cast was re-enforced by artists even more desirable, perhaps, than those of the original company, but who had not been available for the New York production. Hal Forde, so great a favorite with Municipal Opera audiences last year, is a fine example of these.

Greta Nissen in "Women of All Nations," Fox.

WITH Gladys Baxter, as Beate-Marie and again as Beate—two of the charming characters in the operetta's pretty romance, and with Nancy McCord and Evangeline Raleigh, as Marie and Annette, the other two of the "Three Little Girls," with Clifford Newdahl in the dual roles of the two Norgards, and Richard Ford appearing as triumphant lover of the third generation in that family, with Stephen Mills, Lorraine Weimar, Hal Forde, Harry Puck and Fred Leslie among the Broadway favorites who contribute to the fun as it mingles with melody and romance upon the stage, the cast shows a marked advance over any previous effort by Municipal Opera.

With the advent next week of Queenie Smith in "The Street Singer," Municipal Opera departs

J. Shubert, accustomed to big things in theaters the world over—but getting his first view of a complete presentation on the vast stage—watched the proceedings with considerable amazement. "Three Little Girls," the only offering of the summer to run more than one week, will continue through next Sunday evening to be succeeded, the following night, by "The Street Singer," another musical play entirely new to St. Louis.

Thus, the Municipal Theater Association commits itself largely to the policy of presenting "first time" works upon the stage in Forest Park. There is a vast difference between the Municipal Opera today, which goes into the market to purchase productions rights to works which this city has never seen, and the Municipal Opera of other years, which was forced to present only the old familiar repertory of musical stock companies, just as there is a marked difference in the casts it today presents from those which were enforced in other years by the stock company system which it followed.

That difference is the difference between the embryo opera of 12 years ago, which Broadway had not heard of, and the Municipal Opera of today, which in twelve years has achieved an artistic and financial success as to be of outstanding importance in the musical theater of America.

* * * *

SUCH a success, of course, was what made Mr. Shubert a willing listener when the Municipal Theater Association approached him with an invitation to become its general productions manager for 1931. There has resulted a producing organization patterned after that which has enabled Shubert to achieve an international reputation as a producer of musical plays with upwards of 800 productions, in New York and London, to his credit and he has surrounded himself with a staff of artists and executives whose names have a recognized standing in the creative work of the New York theater.

So rapid was the movement of the story of "Three Little Girls" across the stage in Forest Park Friday night, and again last evening, that few in the audience were conscious of what their programs told them—that the production was presented in 17 scenes, the greatest number Municipal Opera has ever undertaken to present in the course of one evening. That was, of course, because "Three Little Girls" was written for a revolving stage. So were "The Street Singer" and "A Wonderful Night." Without that clever adaption of scientific principles to stage production they would be impossible to the Municipal Theater. So, too, would be most of the other works in this summer's repertory, the numerous changes of scene which could be accomplished in light settings and draperies within the doors of an interior theater, would be impossible to the massive and sturdy settings which are essential to production in Forest Park.

But perhaps the best evidence of the working out of Municipal Opera's new production plan was evidenced in the cast presented with "Three Little Girls." Gladys Baxter, who was so successful as "Madame Pompadour" last season, returned to Municipal Opera to head the cast, a Broadway prima donna of recognized standing. Others in the company presented played the roles on the Municipal Theater stage they had created in the Sam S. Shubert Theater when New York first saw the work. In other ways the cast was re-enforced by artists even more desirable, perhaps, than those of the original company, but who had not been available for the New York production. Hal Forde, so great a favorite with Municipal Opera audiences last year, is a fine example of these.

WITH Gladys Baxter, as Beate-Marie and again as Beate—two of the charming characters in the operetta's pretty romance, and with Nancy McCord and Evangeline Raleigh, as Marie and Annette, the other two of the "Three Little Girls," with Clifford Newdahl in the dual roles of the two Norgards, and Richard Ford appearing as triumphant lover of the third generation in that family, with Stephen Mills, Lorraine Weimar, Hal Forde, Harry Puck and Fred Leslie among the Broadway favorites who contribute to the fun as it mingles with melody and romance upon the stage, the cast shows a marked advance over any previous effort by Municipal Opera.

With the advent next week of Queenie Smith in "The Street Singer," Municipal Opera departs

Theater Guild Tells of Plans For New Plays

Announces List of Dramas From Which Offerings for Next Subscription Season Here Will Be Selected.

FOLLOWING the announcement of the newly formed Drama Association of St. Louis—an offshoot of the Drama League of Chicago—that six plays would be presented here, at the Shubert Theater next season under the auspices of the organization, the New York Theater Guild, in setting forth its plans, announces that its own contributions to the fourth annual subscription season will be made from a group of 10 plays and that John Golden's production of Rachel Crothers' "As Husbands Go," and Gilbert Miller's production of Philip Barry's "Tomorrow and Tomorrow" will be included in the group. As in the past, the Theater Guild series of plays will be presented at the American Theater.

In addition to "As Husbands Go," and "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," both of which are running successfully in New York, the Guild season will include plays to be selected from this group:

"He," by Alfred Savoir, a satiric comedy which has already been successfully produced in Philadelphia and Boston; "Mourning Becomes Electra," Eugene O'Neill's trilogy, upon which he has been working the past three years. This group of three plays, through which the same characters pass, is laid in a New England seaport town at the close of the Civil War; "Reunion In Vienna," a comedy by Robert E. Sherwood; a new play by Sidney Howard; "The House of Connelly," by Paul Green; "Versailles," by Dr. Emil Ludwig; "The Coward," by H. R. Lenormand; "Three Times Waterloo," by Eugene Gurster; "The Party," by Dawn Powell and "The Sailors of Cattaro," by Friedrich Wolf.

The Theater Guild recently announced the arrangements which have been made between itself and a group of other producers, which includes Mr. Golden, Gilbert Miller, Arthur Hopkins, Brock Pemberton and Chester Erskin (in association with Erlanger Enterprises, Inc.), whereby certain plays of their production will be toured under the Guild's auspices. These plans apply to the Guild's St. Louis season and mean that in addition to the choice of the Guild's own subscription productions, the local subscribers will, from time to time, see productions from the hands of those affiliated with the Guild in a plan which, it is hoped, will greatly improve theatrical conditions by the sane and simple expedient of supplying as many good plays as possible.

Miss Kerr in Concert.

Miss Elizabeth Kerr, soprano, of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, will give the annual commencement concert at Lindenwood College tomorrow night, in Roemer Auditorium, with Miss Margaret Smith at the piano. She will sing four groups of numbers, the opening group of which will be: "Alleluja," Mozart; "O Sleep, Why Dost Thou Leave Me?" Handel, and "Die Mainacht (The Maynight)," Brahms.

Y Glee Club Concert.

The North Side "Y" Glee Club will give its third annual spring concert Tuesday evening.

The Week's New Films By Nie

THERE are several worth-while pictures on view in the cinema palaces this week, chief among them being "Seed" at the St. Louis Theater. It is a drama of mother love, an appeal for bigger and better families and a warning to struggling authors who find inspiration in blondes, made from Charles G. Norris' best seller of a season or so ago. There are no pistol shots and no cabaret scenes and the children are well-behaved youngsters with no wild ideas of the call of flaming youth, but, despite the lack of these seemingly necessary requirements of the films of today, the story is an absorbing one. The ending is not exactly happy, either, for "Seed" is a tear-jerker of the old school, so that if you want a good cry any time this week here is your chance. John Boles, who is a singer of distinction on the stage, does not burst into song in the picture at all, playing the straight dramatic role of a writer who doesn't find time to write while his family is around and who goes off to Paris with Genevieve Tobin looking for success and other things. Lois Wilson is the wife who stays behind to see her children grow up and desert the old nest, as grown-up children have a way of doing, and Zazu Pitts has her usual role of a comic slavey. "Seed" is the sort of picture the better films advocates have been demanding for some time.

The Wages of Sin.

ON the other hand "The Public Enemy," at the Ambassador, meets all of the formulas of the up-to-date movie customers. The title stamps its character but if we are to continue to ride on the flood of gangster films it would be pleasant if all the pictures of this type could be as good and as thrilling as this opus of the underworld. The story traces the life and activities of a gangster from the time he begins to turn tricks in a minor way up to the moment when, bound and full of soft-nosed bullets he is dumped in the door of his mother's home. There is a screen title at the end which points out that all hoodlums will come to the same end but during the course of the picture it is shown that even gangsters can have a pretty good time, until retribution overtakes them in reel eight. Certainly it is no humdrum life which they lead, what with good beer and bad women to be had on every corner for the asking. "The Public Enemy" brings one James Cagney to the fore as a screen actor of parts. He makes one of the best film gangsters the cinema has seen so far—and there have been a lot of 'em.

Love in Greenwich Village.

AS IN "Seed" the troubles of a struggling author are brought out in "Up Pops the Devil" at the Missouri only this time the writer has only a wife and some party loving friends to keep him from turning out a masterpiece. Mary Hart's company at the Orpheum Theater produced this one in play form last winter and, as a picture, it is just as delightful as the stage comedy. Norman Foster is the young penman and Carole Lombard is the wife who really helps him to fame and fortune with Skeets Gallagher as the theater manager who has a good deal of drinking to do between productions. Also on the Missouri's bill is a wild Western meller called "Clearing the Range" in which our old friend Hoot Gibson and his trusty horse do a lot of things which will please the kids.

Romance in Vienna.

RAMON NOVARRO is a young Austrian officer in "Daybreak," at Loews, who almost has to shoot himself to prove that he is a man of honor. Almost, but not quite, for Helen Chandler is at hand and Ramon discovers that honor can be squared by marriage, sometimes, as satisfactorily as by way of a bullet. You see Ramon had a lot of gambling debts which he couldn't pay off and his fellow officers rather insisted that he take the established way—established in Vienna at least—out. Ramon was all for doing the customary thing but Helen had a better plan so the picture ends pleasantly.

Flagg and Quirt Again.

THERE are a good many laughs, in a rough sort of way, in "Women of All Nations" at the Fox but the picture is just a poor continuation of the loves and adventures of Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe as a couple of Marines who travel around the world, as a pair of Uncle Sam's boys, looking for both. There are a good many women involved but only one, Greta Nissen, amounts to very much, and by some wide stretch of the imagination on the part of the screen producers Greta turns up in every port.

Highland's Pool Open.

With the open air swimming pool open, every department at Forest Park Highlands now is in operation. The pool, this season, will not close between 6 and 7 p. m. on week days, but will remain open for the accommodation of patrons who like to take a plunge after work.

Church Players in Drama.

"The Passing of the Third Floor Back," will be presented by the St. John's Players at St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church, Kingshighway and Washington boulevards, Wednesday evening at 8:30.

Will Come Back to Post at Ambassador, Which Has Been Vacant Since Departure of Ed Lowry—Cinema Palaces Hard Hit by Slump and Payrolls Have Been Widely Cut—James Cagney and Gangster Films.

By NIE.

ECONOMICS, like politics, make strange bed fellows. Re coming from Wall Street—where a lot of otherwise bankers have suddenly found themselves in the motion p business—say that Paramount and Warner Brothers, the bitt of enemies in the past few months, are going around together a booking each others pictures in their opposing chain theaters playing pinochle together in the evenings. Hard times and spirit of brotherly love has brought this to pass. Business i cinema cathedrals is in a dreadful slump and the magnates re that this is no time for fighting each other, decided to get tog and hold some sort of net under the box offices to keep the hit theaters from falling out of the game altogether.

Here in St. Louis patronage has dropped to the point practically every first run picture house is operating on nev enlarged supplies of red ink. Paramount lately announced a salaries of every employe from coast to coast and yesterda local employes of Warners in the former Skouras theaters notified that pay checks would be down from 2½ per cent up, ing at once. This takes in everybody from the privates, lieute and majors of the gold plated usher staffs, right on through high salaried executives. The union musicians and stage sitting pretty with their contracts, are, of course, not inclu the reductions. The opening of Municipal Opera in Forest drawing some 10,000 or so potential cash customers fron films every night, is not encouraging to the movie people f summer, either.

The Warners have found, since Ed Lowry's departure, th Ambassador must have a Master of Ceremonies on the st bolster business and so Jack Haley is to be rushed into the at the earliest possible date. Present plans call for his retu June 19. Haley, one of the very best entertainers the movie have had, was very successful at the Ambassador during his stay here a few months ago.

* * * *

THERE are a good many people who point to the fact th screen has been given over to so many gangster films reason for the falling off of patronage. This is hardl While there have been many underworld pictures most of have been good ones and have done a far better business th sweet romance type of attraction. The answer to the reas lack of business is unquestionably due to the fact that theate have been given too much entertainment of every sort—too even for boom times. Today the customers go shopping fo amusements. The good pictures take in as much cash as c expected, although not enough to carry the load of the trem overhead which the film houses have built up in an effort to every side of show business.

All of which is a matter for the theater owners to with themselves. With the spectre of television hanging ove heads and rapidly assuming a very live shape the film bus probably going to see some combinations before long which out a great deal of the ruinous competition.

* * * *

BUT to get back to the gangster films which we were dis just now—or were we? The latest is "The Public E which is at the Ambassador this week. The public e one James Cagney who has played in a few pictures, mostly world ones, and who is being haled as the screen's latest Hollywood. Young Cagney comes fairly naturally by his kn of city wild men. His birthplace was in his father's ha saloon on Eighth street and D in New York, a district k the police as the "guerilla on the southern border o Kitchen." He was the sec est of five children.

Troop Notes

West District.

Five West District troops have entered six patrols in the coming Camparall so far. They are Troop 90 of Temple Shaare Emeth, two patrols; Troop 10 of Principia; Troop 17 of First United Prebyterian Church; Troop 26 of Delmar Baptist Church, and Troop 49 of First Presbyterian Church.

A meeting to organize a new scout troop was held at the Third Baptist Church last Wednesday evening, under the leadership of the Rev. L. Jackson, educational director of the church. Twelve members of the congregation who were present voted unanimously to start work at once. It is hoped to have the troop functioning by July.

Troop 30 of the Y. M. H. A. was divided into teams headed by Edward Hopper and Gilbert Seidel at the last meeting. The first team won an observation hike, but the second team won an indoor treasure hunt. Troop drilling and an O'Grady drill were also held.

Troop 87 of United Hebrew Temple held its first annual parents' banquet last Monday evening. Seventy parents and scouts were present. Activities Director Mills of the St. Louis Council talked on "Why We Have Scouting," and Chairman Max Epstein of the troop committee showed motion pictures taken on a recent 18-months' trip around the world. The fathers of the scouts agreed to purchase necessary camparall equipment, so that the troop can enter a patrol in the contest.

The four patrols of Troop 120 of Church of the Apostles entertained church members with a series of campfire stunts last week. Walter Reel and Fred Helfesreider were in charge of the program. Scout Wilkinson and Scout Kraft climaxed the program with a mystery play.

South District.

Troop 52 of Woodward School has completed its Camparall eliminations. The Camparall patrol, under the leadership of Patrol Leader Ernest Palline, is spending this week-end in training.

Scoutmaster J. O. Metzger and the scouts of Troop 168 of St. Pius' Church, conducted an investiture ceremony for a recently organized troop, Affton 1. Both scouts and officers of the new troop were formally given badges. Committeeman M. G. Alpiser of Troop 168 has been appointed a South District deputy commissioner. The scouts and their parents held a farewell party last week for the Rev. T. F. Meagher, who is leaving next week for a trip to his home in Ireland.

Troop 247 of Froebel School was awarded first prize for the best-appearing scout troop in a contest sponsored by the Cherokee Business Men's Association, May 23.

An overnight hike to practice for the Camparall was held by Troop 39 of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Our Redeemer at Thoeles Farm, near Harvester, Mo., last week-end. The entire Camparall program was carried out between the three patrols.

North District.

A new troop, 12, has been organized under the sponsorship of Elliott School Patrons' Association. Harry Sale is scoutmaster. The committee is composed of Chairman A. A. Reed, Al Siemsen and John Homeyer. The first meeting will be held in the school playroom next Tuesday evening.

Troop 47, formerly of Memorial Boulevard Christian Church, will meet hereafter at Cote Brilliante School under the sponsorship of the School Patrons' Association. Its leadership will remain unchanged. Meetings will be held Thursday evenings.

Central District.

Troop 155 of McCausland Avenue Presbyterian Church held its annual fathers' and sons' hike out Geyer road last Sunday.

Suburban District.

Three suburban district troops, Webster Groves 2, Webster Groves 3 and Richmond Heights 2, have entered the coming Camparall.

Committeemen Charles Crowell, first aid instructor of Troop Mount Pleasant 1, of the Midlink Baptist Church, demonstrated first aid to the troop at the regular meeting May 22. The troop has plowed and planted a half-acre troop garden.

JEWISH WOMEN'S LUNCHEON

Hadassah Organization Has Reservatons for 300.

The annual "Give or Get $10" luncheon of Hadassah, national Jewish women's organization, will be held at the Young Men's Hebrew Association, Union boulevard and Enright avenue, at noon tomorrow, with reservations for more than 300 persons.

Hadassah has been conducting welfare work in Palestine for the last 20 years, and the project today includes seven hospitals, 20 dispensaries, 60 eye clinics and schools for nurses and maternity care.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 30.

(Note: This registered letter was received from a lady, many of you know by reputation, three days before her passing was chronicled throughout the land.)

Dear Oom:

We who are about to die, do the customary saluting. Yet I hate the word die. It seems to me it should be erased from our language. Transition is the word. Death is the end. Transition is a change—like going through a peaceful portal into a larger and more pleasant room.

You, Maybelle and I have often discussed a possible hereafter, semi-seriously. As you know I never allied with a church. They have their place, I suppose, but they were not for me. They were too gloomy.

I have always thought a religious service should be the most joyous thing in the world—a combination of gay singing, happy prophecy and expressing a tempo of the Follies. Even church ushers walk as though they were following a coffin. It is not a criticism of church or religion but of the interpretation thereof.

At best I have three months among the so-called living. I have no religion, have never been religious, yet I have no fear. For secretly God has always been my pal He has been with me more than most people realized. I commune with Him every day. Not in a prayerful way. I never beseeched God in my life but I have felt that He was with me, and I have been grateful and, don't fool yourself, He knows it.

This is not a good-by letter. But I have much to do and I want to thank you. . . . It is quite possible I'll not write any more after today and I want you to telephone.

I have always felt that my grief over the passing of friends was selfish pity for myself at the loss. I believe sincerely they were far happier than I. So when I get over the first shock—or whatever it is—of my transition I will be far happier, too.

I have no flippant bravado about death but at the same time it is nothing at which I shudder. Indeed, I, who am about to die, am strangely and peacefully tranquil.

I regret to lose for awhile my friends on earth, yet I shall be compensated by seeing many who have gone before—including, according to my firm belief, your dog and mine in their newer consciousness. And it will be fun waiting for those still on earth.

I cannot make myself believe that God is a scowling, white-bearded patriarch thundering His wrath on poor mortals. I prefer the Biblical simplicity that He is love. Au revoir!

NEW OPERA SEASON OUT IN THE PARK GETS A FINE START

again from its tradition, for Miss Smith is in the technical sense a star and in order to procure her srevices for her original New York role in that offering it was necessary to agree to "star" her, which means in the theater world that Municipal Opera was forced to agree to bill her name above that of the production in which she is to appear. So that for the first time in the opera's history, a star will be so billed next week. Miss Smith won her way to such honors by virtue of twinkling feet and an impish sense of mirth. Originally a dancer, she had become solo danseuse at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York. But her sense of humor found itself something of a step-child in that serious atmosphere and she entered upon a stage career in operetta and musical comedy. She is best known here in St. Louis for her work in "Hit the Deck." Surrounding her in "The Street Singer" will be many members of the original company, and with them two Municipal Opera favorites who make their debuts for the season of 1931—Jack Sheehan and Doris Patston, who contributed so much fun to the opera cycle in Forest Park last year.

part time work, art aspirations and education, to help feed seven mouths.

HE began—believe it or not—as a chorus boy in a musical comedy, "Pitter, Patter." Then he was given a specialty dance. When the show closed he went into vaudeville playing a Jewish boy in a sketch. He stuck to vaudeville. One week he got $12.50 and once he got $37.50. For five years he toured the tank towns. He now calls it the "Cagney Circuit."

Then a chance for an audition for the role of a roughneck in Maxwell Anderson's play, "Outside Looking In." And so from the gaslight circuit James Cagney got to Broadway. Another venture in vaudeville. Big Time Vode. Then he scored with Mary Boland in the play, "Women Go On Forever." The next season he staged the "Grand Street Follies" and played a prominent role in them. He remained two seasons.

1929 brought him his big chance, a role in George Kelly's play, "Maggie the Magnificent." He played opposite a young girl called Joan Blondell. They both scored. Both were signed for "Penny Arcade" the next season. They scored again. Warner Brothers bought the play and Cagney and Blondell went to Hollywood. The picture emerged as "Sinner's Holiday." That was the beginning of screen fame for James Cagney. And for Joan Blondell, who, incidentally, is in "The Public Enemy" with him.

Negro Players in Six One-Act Dramas

Miss Sarah Gertrude Knott, executive director of the Dramatic Art League of St. Louis, has for the past three weeks assisted four Negro dramatic units to make ready their one-act presentations June 4 and 5 at 8:15 o'clock, at the Poro Auditorium, Pendleton and St. Ferdinand avenues.

The four units which will compete for the Hugh K. Wagner plaque are the Robeson Dramatic Club of the Sumner High School, the Maskers Dramatic Club, coached by Osborne Judkins; the Allied Artists, directed by Charles Anderson of the Sumner High School, and the Aldridge Players, sponsored by Mrs. Ethel Bowles.

Thursday night the Allied Artists stage "Friend Husband," "Dust of the Road" will be presented by the Maskers Dramatic Club, and "A Pair of Lunatics" is to be presented by a group of white players from the Lancaster School of Expression at Alton, Ill. On Friday night the Aldridge Players appear in a one-act play entitled "The Fire Furnace," while the Robeson players present "Wrong Numbers," and Miss Lucol Lucille Wengler of the Maplewood High School will direct "Tiger Blood."

Maj. N. Clark Smith, director of music at the Sumner High School, will for the first time present his all-male symphony orchestra, which will interlard the program each night with musical numbers, including the prelude from the Negro Choral Symphony which won the John Wannamaker prize at Philadelphia last August.

LARGEST CONCORDIA CLASS IN 90 YEARS

Here and There on The Air

WIL Puts New Transmitter and Studios Into Operation—Rosa Ponselle in Broadcast From England Tomorrow—Boston Symphony on Air Saturday Night.

For the first time in five and a half years, there is to be a break in the Sunday night classical concert series on KSD and other WEAF network stations, according to the Associated Press.

A pioneer in chain programs and one of the first to introduce grand opera stars as radio artists, it is to be suspended for two months after the concert of June 28, to be resumed about Sept. 1.

This weekly feature out of which grew the national radio auditions for amateur singers, was inaugurated Oct. 4, 1925, with Reinald Werrenrath, baritone, as its first artist. Since then it has presented classical and semiclassical programs, lasting an hour in the winter months and a half hour in the summer. In that time, approximately 300 concerts have been presented at an average cost for network time and entertaininers of about $500,000 a year. The series was started by A. Atwater Kent to provide a program for lovers of good music.

WIL, St. Louis, which operates on 1200 kilocycles, is back on the air with a new transmitter of the latest type, which is designed for 100 per cent modulation and has crystal control. Reception of WIL should be much stronger over an enlarged area and quality of transmission should be improved. The station's signals should be possibly four times as powerful as before, although it is still using only 250 watts power in the daytime and 100 watts at night.

WIL's studios in the Hotel Melbourne have been enlarged more than six feet all around and the walls rebuilt of the newest sound-absorbing material, while a new accoustical ceiling replaces the old one, all planned to improve the tonal quality of the broadcasting. In the largest of the four new studios, an orchestra of 60 musicians can broadcast without danger of "mushy" transmission. L. A. Benson, president of the Missouri Broadcasting Corporation, which operates WIL, said the improvements had cost around $15,000.

Anthony Wons, widely known for his "Scrapbook" broadcasts, Morton Downey, tenor, and an orchestra led by Jacques Renard will be featured in a new six-days-a-week series at 5:45 on the CBS chain, beginning tomorrow. This series takes the place of the Pleasure Hour.

Rosa Ponselle of the Metropolitan Opera, is to sing in a performance of "La Forza del Detino" that wil lbe broadcast from Covent Garden, London, from 1 to 1:45 tomorrow afternoon over the Columbia chain, weather permitting.

An orchestra of 93 musicians of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, led by Arthur Fiedler, will open a series of weekly concerts over the NBC's WJZ chain from 6:30 to 7:30 next Saturday night. If KWK does not carry this concert, it may be tuned in on WENR-WLS, WLW, WSM, WKY, WREN, KFAB or WJR.

Two modern symphonic works will be among music played by the Roxy Symphony Orchestra at 5:45 tomorrow evening over KWK. They are "Utopia," by George J. Stoupa, an American, and "Impressioni dal Vero," by G. Francesco Malipiero, a noted Italian musician.

W8XAL, the short-wave station associated with WLW, Cincinnati, uses 10,000 watts power on 49.5 meters.

Rudy Vallee, Paul Whiteman and others will take part in a special broadcast the night of June 11 to celebrate the eighth anniversary of May Singhi Breen and Peter de Rose as broadcasters.

Here and There on The Air

WIL Puts New Transmitter and Studios Into Operation—Rosa Ponselle in Broadcast From England Tomorrow — Boston Symphony on Air Saturday Night.

For the first time in five and a half years, there is to be a break in the Sunday night classical concert series on KSD and other WEAF network stations, according to the Associated Press.

A pioneer in chain programs and one of the first to introduce grand opera stars as radio artists, it is to be suspended for two months after the concert of June 28, to be resumed about Sept. 1.

This weekly feature out of which grew the national radio auditions for amateur singers, was inaugurated Oct. 4, 1925, with Reinald Werrenrath, baritone, as its first artist. Since then it has presented classical and semiclassical programs, lasting an hour in the winter months and a half hour in the summer. In that time, approximately 300 concerts have been presented at an average cost for network time and entertaininers of about $500,000 a year. The series was started by A. Atwater Kent to provide a program for lovers of good music.

WIL, St. Louis, which operates on 1200 kilocycles, is back on the air with a new transmitter of the latest type, which is designed for 100 per cent modulation and has crystal control. Reception of WIL should be much stronger over an enlarged area and quality of transmission should be improved. The station's signals should be possibly four times as powerful as before, although it is still using only 250 watts power in the daytime and 100 watts at night.

WIL's studios in the Hotel Melbourne have been enlarged more than six feet all around and the walls rebuilt of the newest sound-absorbing material, while a new accoustical ceiling replaces the old one, all planned to improve the tonal quality of the broadcasting. In the largest of the four new studios, an orchestra of 60 musicians can broadcast without danger of "mushy" transmission. L. A. Benson, president of the Missouri Broadcasting Corporation, which operates WIL, said the improvements had cost around $15,000.

Anthony Wons, widely known for his "Scrapbook" broadcasts, Morton Downey, tenor, and an orchestra led by Jacques Renard will be featured in a new six-days-a-week series at 5:45 on the CBS chain, beginning tomorrow. This series takes the place of the Pleasure Hour.

Rosa Ponselle of the Metropolitan Opera, is to sing in a performance of "La Forza del Detino" that wil lbe broadcast from Covent Garden, London, from 1 to 1:45 tomorrow afternoon over the Columbia chain, weather permitting.

An orchestra of 93 musicians of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, led by Arthur Fiedler, will open a series of weekly concerts over the NBC's WJZ chain from 6:30 to 7:30 next Saturday night. If KWK does not carry this concert, it may be tuned in on WENR-WLS, WLW, WSM, WKY, WREN, KFAB or WJR.

Two modern symphonic works will be among music played by the Roxy Symphony Orchestra at 5:45 tomorrow evening over KWK. They are "Utopia," by George J. Stoupa, an American, and "Impressioni dal Vero," by G. Francesco Malipiero, a noted Italian musician.

W8XAL, the short-wave station associated with WLW, Cincinnati, uses 10,000 watts power on 49.5 meters.

Rudy Vallee, Paul Whiteman and others will take part in a special broadcast the night of June 11 to celebrate the eighth anniversary of May Singhi Breen and Peter de Rose as broadcasters.

What's New In Radio Industry

Beck & Corbitt to Distribute General Motors Sets.

The Beck & Corbitt Co., 1230 North Main street, has been appointed distributer of the General Motors line of receivers. The new General Motors sets, which are made by a subsidiary of General Motors Corporation, will be on display in the St. Louis territory about June 15, following the Chicago radio trade show. The firm's radio salesman and territory men probably will be about the same force as now.

The Beck & Corbitt Co., of which L. H. Jostes is vice president and general manager, and George Niekamp is vice president in charge of sales, for a number of years has been among the leading radio distributers of this city in addition to handling many other lines.

Harry Wade Contest Winner.

Harry Wade of the Universal Radio and Supply Co. will leave June 3 for Schenectady, N. Y., to be a guest of General Electric at its "House of Magic." He will make the trip, with other dealers from all parts of the country, as a result of winning the local division of a contest by selling the largest number of General Electric sets in a given time. In addition to his trip to Schenectady, Wade will be presented with a gold watch and charm and other prizes.

Adapting the phrase "full range," which is used in descriptions of its receivers, General Electric devised a contest that it called a rodeo and round-up. Salesmen were called rangers, the sales districts were rangers, the stores were ranches, and the various models of receivers were called steers, cows and longhorns. Wade won the title of chief ranger in the St. Louis district.

Off on Philco Cruise.

R. C. Layer, H. S. Schiele and Frank A. Brown of the Artophone Corporation, and S. O. Taylor, Philco district representative, will leave Tuesday for Buffalo, N. Y., to go on the annual Philco cruise. The cruise will take the Philco distributers through the Great Lakes, ending at Chicago June 8, so that they may attend the radio trade show. Last year the Philco cruise went to the Bermudas.

Trade Show Opens June 8.

Whatever is new in television, as well as all the new things in sets with pentode and variable mu tubes and the latest in speakers and public address systems, will be on display at the Chicago radio trade show which will open Monday, June 8, and continue through June 12. The St. Louis Radio Trades Association will have a special car on a train leaving for Chicago at 11:55 next Sunday night. W. P. Mackle, executive secretary of the association, has reserved a block of rooms on two floors of the Stevens Hotel. In past years the show has drawn 30,000 radio distributers and dealers.

The low record for number of radio receivers owned in a state, according to the U. S. Census, has been set by Mississippi, of whose 472,354 families only five and four tenths per cent owned sets in 1930. Oklahoma's record is 21.6 per cent; that of South Dakota, 44.2 per cent; that of Maryland, 42.9; that of Kentucky, 15.3 per cent.

Post-Dispatch Highway Maps

THE Resort and Travel Bureau of the Post-Dispatch has for distribution an excellent 50-page auto trails atlas of the United States and Eastern Canada, showing the condition and numbers of highways and mileage between towns. The price is 50 cents, or 60 cents if mailed.

St. Louis and vicinity maps show all towns, roads, rivers, streams, lakes and other details within a radius of 50 miles of St. Louis. They sell for 20 cents, 24 cents if mailed. Individual state maps are 10 cents and 12 cents mailed.

St. Louis guides, giving the location of streets and street car and bus lines, churches, hospitals, theaters, office buildings, and containing a map of the city, sell for 25 and 30 cents.

Map of St. Louis and the suburbs, showing the streets of St. Louis, East St. Louis, Madison, Venice, Clayton, Ferguson and University City sell for 40 cents, or 45 cents mailed.

Stewart Addresses Service Managers' Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Service Managers' Bureau of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association was addressed by L. M. Stewart, president of Midwest Motors, Inc., and recently elected president of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, at a meeting at Gatesworth Hotel Thursday night. Stewart praised the activities and accomplishments of the Service Managers' organization over a period of four and one-half years. He said it was the feeling of the distributors and dealers, members of the parent organization, that the Service Managers' Bureau was one of its most important functions. Of conditions he said:

"I am optimistic as to the outlook for the remainder of this year and for next year. I cannot help but feel that the experience of the automobile industry during 1930, when we went through severe depression, was the greatest blessing that we have had come to us for some time, because it has forced us to get on a sounder basis fundamentally than we have been in many years.

"Our public as well as ourselves had contracted production indigestion, caused by too much high pressure salesmanship. Now our public and we ourselves are hungry, after our attack of indigestion, for friendly salesmanship, and that is what I want to recommend to managers who are in charge of our more than important service departments. Our greatest asset is the good will of our customers, and I would like to give you my idea of the five fundamental demands on the service manager: (1) Prompt attention, (2) Accurate and careful order taking. (3) Proper supervision of work. (4) Extreme cleanliness. (5) Keep your promises religiously."

J. P. Woolsey, service manager for the Vacuum Oil Co., talked on "Merchandising in the Service Department;" George Schattgen, of the Beverly Rubber Co., explained the technical construction of the new Sieberling triple-tread tire.

The new officers of the bureau elected were: Chairman, Dolph Moore, service manager Lambert-Tigges Motor Co., vice chairman, Emil Weber, Weber Implement & Auto Co., bureau directors, Harry Martin, International Harvester Co.; J. H. Dryer, E. J. Johnson, Inc.; Harry Mills, Steiner-Fahrenkrog Auto Co., and managing director, Robert E. Lee.

Elks Sponsor Tour Over 3 Auto Routes

A goodwill tour over three transcontinental routes will begin at New York May 10. The tour will be made in three Studebaker free wheeling President eight roadsters, finished in the purple and white colors of the Elks order. The cars are scheduled to arrive in Seattle, Wash., in time for the opening of the sixty-eighth annual Elks grand lodge convention July 6-10.

The tour is being undertaken primarily to supply information on the convention to all Elk lodges en route, and to promote more intimate contact with subordinate lodges throughout the country. A supplementary feature of the trip will be an authoritative check of the economy of free wheeling.

Willys Six Roadster Sets Class C Stock Car Speed Records

Averages 70 Miles Per Hour With Flying Start, 53 M. P. H. in Second Gear.

On a measured course in Muroc Dry Lake, in California, a Willys six roadster has established five class C American stock car speed records under supervision of the A. A. A.

With Eddie Hearn at the wheel, and the tests officially observed and electrically timed by representatives of the A. A. A., the Willys six roadster set new records for a mile with standing start; mile with a flying start; one kilometer, both standing and flying starts, and mile in second gear from flying start.

With a flying start the car covered a mile in 50.925 seconds, an average of 70.692 miles an hour; from a standing start it set a record of a mile in 61.56 seconds, averaging 58.479 miles an hour.

Over a course of one kilometer with flying start, it averaged 69.416 miles an hour; from a standiing start, 53.045 miles an hour.

In a second gear run over the mile, the Willys six was timed at 66.90 seconds, averaging 53,812 miles an hour.

To equalize, because of wind resistance and wind aid, it is necessary under A. A. A. rules, to cover the course in opposite directions and the average speed is computed.

The Willys six made its fastest trip northbound, with a speed of 72.727 miles an hour. The fastest southbound speed was 68.768 miles an hour.

Prior to the run the car was torn down, measured and examined by officials of the A. A. A. to make certain that it was a strictly stock model, the requirements of that organization being that such cars must be exact duplicates of the automobiles sold to the general public. The optional stock gear ratio of 4.6 to 1 was used, this being available to all buyers.

The car is a duplicate of the Willys sixes that won first and second places in the annual Pike's Peak hill climb, broke the record for climbing Mount Baldy; captured first and second places in the annual mountain race from Mexico City to Puebla, covering the 75.8 miles in 75 minutes, and traveled 301½ miles from Denver to Casper, Wyo., in 284 minutes, averaging 63.07 miles an hour.

Buick 'Open House' Period Is Extended

The Buick "open house" program, during which everyone is to be given an opportunity to drive a Buick eight, has been extended to June 10, it is announced by R. N. Soule, branch manager for the Buick Motor Co. in the St. Louis zone.

The "open house" idea is based on the contention that actual road and street performance is the only way to judge an automobile.

Pierce-Arrow Cars Styled by Le Baron Now Being Delivered

Pierce-Arrow is now making deliveries of cars in its new LeBaron customized group of five new body types, each a highly individualized creation incorporating the finest and most advanced features known to fine car design and construction. Prices, as previously announced, range from $5100 up, depending on body style and equipment.

The new custom group includes a seven-passenger enclosed drive limousine, a five-passenger convertible Victoria coupe, a five-passenger club sedan, a two or four passenger coupe, and a five-passenger convertible sedan. All cars of the group have a wheelbase of 147 inches and are powered with the Pierce-Arrow 132 h. p. straight eight engine.

LeBaron, long famed as a creator of distinction in coachcraft, working with Pierce-Arrow designers and engineers, is said to have attained new heights of luxurious beauty and structural soundness in these models.

An unusual door design, well wrought mouldings, balancing with smartly designed tops and windows contribute to the appeal of these ultra-modern cars.

Tops on the convertible cars are designed with utmost exactness and, whether raised or folded, it is always apparent that they are carefully hand tailored. Windshields are V-shaped for finer appearance and reduced wind resistance.

Interiors of the convertible models are upholstered in the best grade of leather available. The inclosed types all have finest quality broadcloth, hand tailored and individually fitted. All woodwork is highly finished to harmonize with the interior.

Adjustable Armrest For Driver Developed By St. Louis Firm

An adjustable driver's comfort armrest which permits him to sit erect instead of resting his arm on the window ledge has been introduced by the Chase Manufacturing Co., Inc., 3216 Morgan street.

It consists of a slotted metal side plate which fits against the side of the door, and a padded upholstered arm rest which may be raised or lowered by a set screw.

"Although primarily intended to provide left arm relief for the driver, the arm rest fits all automobiles, closed or open models and may be installed on either side of the car, front or rear, for the comfort of passengers as well," says Louis Goodhart, sales manager.

Suggests Ways for Making Driving Safe And Accidents Fewer

Noting that accidents cause more deaths than pneumonia, cancer, cerebral hemorrhage and tuberculosis, E. L. de Winter of the Suburban Tire Service Co., 1426 South Grand boulevard, says that "among insurance men insurance statistics show that only heart disease is more deadly.

"All over the country, fraternal, welfare, and civic organizations are seeking to stem the tremendous increase in fatal and non-fatal accidents. The National Safety Council's report shows that more people up to the age of 65 are killed by automobiles than by any other two types of accidents combined.

De Winter suggests that each automobile owner ask himself these questions: Have the brakes been tested recently? Are all headlights adjusted properly? Is he driving on thin, worn tires? Is it worth while to endanger life, his or someone else's, when tires are so inexpensive? Replace smooth, dangerous tires, have brakes and lights adjusted and drive carefully, he counsels.

Ayres Auto Co. One of Largest Ford Dealers in This Region

A fleet of four Ford trucks has just been delivered to the St. Louis Wholesale Drug Co. by the Ayres Auto Co., 720 Cass avenue.

The Ayres Co. has been an authorized Ford dealer in St. Louis for 14 years, and maintains one of the largest Ford dealerships and organizations in this part of the country.

The firm occupies a two-story concrete building, fronting 97 feet on Cass avenue, with 25,000 square feet of floor space, and maintains complete parts, replacement and service equipment.

Its place of business is only five minutes from the downtown section.

Joseph T. Ayres is president of the company.

Steinger Appointed Sales Manager for American Airways

Joseph Steinger of St. Louis, has been appointed sales manager of American Airways, Inc. He is well known in automobile circles here.

He has been general manager of the commercial division of the Universal division, American Airways. Today he is in charge of commercial sales for the entire American Airways system, which flies planes approximately 30,000 miles daily and serves almost half of all the cities in the United States having air mail service.

In less than a year with the Universal division, Steinger has sold 94 airplanes to private fliers.

Drury to Lead Safety Discussion

P. F. Drury, safety director of the Automobile Club of Missouri, who had a leading role in organizing the safety demonstration here May 16 by 2100 school boy patrols, has been selected by the A. A. A. to lead the discussion of highway safety at this year's annual conference.

The meeting will be held tomorrow and Tuesday at West Baden, Ind., and will be attended by A. A. A. delegates from more than 1000 motor clubs throughout the United States and Canada.

The Missouri delegation to the conference, which will leave today, will include Roy F. Britton, Matt F. Morse and representatives from Kansas City and nine outstate divisions.

Briand Accused of Preventing Quick Action on His Own Plan For United States of Europe

By Wilhelm Marx.
(Copyright, 1931.)

BERLIN, May 30.

A DEFINITE impasse has come, as many pessimists predicted. The most burning problem of today, that of the rehabilitation of Europe, has again been postponed for some months.

How bitterly the world has been complaining of the increase of protectionism! How keenly it has felt the results of a continuous raising of tariff barriers between different countries, and with what applause it received Briand's proposal at the session of the League of Nations held in September, 1929, to bring about finally a union of European nations in the economic field!

A Pan-Europe, a meeting of delegates from the different countries of Europe, held out the hope of a mutual and open discussion of the economic crisis which menaced everybody. Here a way was pointed out for a common understanding regarding ways and means of at least modifying the obviously existing financial and economic distress of almost all the peoples of the continent.

Was Briand's proposal honestly meant at all? Or did this much experienced Foreign Minister of France seize upon the plan of a Pan-Europe in order, if not exactly to nip it in the bud, at least to place its execution in the hands of France? It cannot be doubted that Briand has done extraordinary work for maintaining and securing world peace. His universally acknowledged foresight in estimating; even the most tangled political situations, and his tactical cleverness in mastering them, are acknowledged gratefully on every hand. If his withdrawal from the political arena of the world should result from his defeat by his own people at the recent election of a President of France, and if this withdrawal should be final, the fact would be most deeply regretted by every friend of world peace.

Economic Distress Grows.

But all this must not prevent us from objectively considering the political situation and his part in shaping it. For in the last analysis we have here to do with the fate of peoples to which that of the individual must be subordinated.

Of course Briand had to consider his Parliament. He had to take into account the strong nationalistic minority which has long opposed his peace policy. In any event France's security was plainly more important for him than the well being of the other states of Europe.

One cannot free oneself from the suspicion that when Briand took up the question of Pan-Europe which he had theretofore not regarded with much sympathy, his chief purpose was to get the leadership in this matter into his own hands, and thus postpone it indefinitely. Was it not absolutely depressing when the commission which had been in session for almost a year in order to prepare (theoretically of course) the organization of Pan-Europe, was finally able to submit its report at the session of the Europe commission of May 15, 1931?

Briand, as chairman of the so-called Europe committee, was then able to announce with obvious satisfaction that the League of Nations would take up the matter for discussion and decision at its session in September, 1931.

And while all this is going on, economic distress is increasing—not merely among the conquered peoples. The victorious states as well, with the possible exception of France, are groaning under heavy financial and economic cares. Who can blame Germany and Austria, if, in view of such a hopeless situation, they desire to take their fates into their own hands and at least do away with custom barriers between themselves and make the road clear for trade?

Germany Honest.

But by trying to do this, they excited Briand's anger in the highest degree. Every means has been tried by him of making impossible this sound and sensible plan. Even a dust-covered control commission appointed in 1922 to investigate whether the loan granted Austria by the League of Nations was adequately secured by customs revenues pledged, but which for years has regarded its work done, was brought out by Briand to make all the difficulties it could.

The two countries acted in the most honest manner. They informed the countries chiefly interested of their plan before any binding agreement had been made. Indeed, none has been made yet. They declared they were ready to enter negotiation with any other state for the same end, in order if possible to bring about a uniform and free relationship of all contractual states. But all to no purpose.

Briand declared most decisively at the very beginning of the discussions of the Europe committee, that he rejected most sharply the action of Germany and Austria. It was, he asserted, a violation of existing treaties. Jurists whose authority is acknowledged everywhere in the world had studied the situation and denied that any treaty had been violated, but Briand remained obdurate and England and Italy assumed a dubious attitude. Hence two German states saw themselves compelled at the session of the council of the League of Nations to whose competency a study of the legal side of the question belongs, to choose the lesser evil and accept England's proposal to let the International Court at the Hague determine the legality of the agreement planned and to report on it.

Hague Approval Expected.

The Foreign Ministers of Germany and Austria consented to this investigation, as they had from the beginning, but they objected strongly to any further investigation from a political or economic viewpoint. For these two states are in full possession of their sovereignty. They are free to conclude treaties. Nevertheless, as no one can deny, they communicated their intentions to the states concerned with the greatest frankness and straightforwardness. Curtius was fully justified in protesting most decisively against any attempt to impose upon these two states the character of states possessing inferior rights.

One must give emphatic expression to the expectation that the Hague Court will make its decision with all the speed which can justifiably be expected, and that it will find that the standpoint of Germany and Austria is correct. In that case, no hindrances may be placed in the way of the efforts of the states in question to improve their own economic situation through customs union, or else the other states concerned must themselves propose some other practicable way by which not only Germany and Austria but also all the peoples of Europe can attain economic rehabilitation. Perhaps the proposal made by Henderson at the session of the Europe Committee May 19, points the way—a conference of European States to bring about customs peace and the abandonment of economic nationalism. If this conference lets itself be guided by goodwill, it can take the first step toward the salvation of Europe.

Relief Needed Now.

Grave signs of the times indicate the seriousness of the hour. The great and steadily increasing number of votes cast for the National Socialist and Communist candidates ever since the fateful Reichstag elections of Sept. 1 1930, in elections in various German states, and now especially in predominantly agricultural Oldenburg—so obviously symptoms of a pathological state of mind of the financially distressed sections of the people—are evidence of the extremest psychic and economic distress of the German people. Immediate aid is the most urgent requirement of the hour.

The German Government is cutting down with a ruthlessness bordering on brutality all current expenditures for the administration of the State. Everything humanly possible is being done here to master the severe crisis. But the number of unemployed, the barometer of the economic situation, is being reduced all too slowly, despite the more favorable season of the year. Disaster lies ahead, unless at least a beginning of improvement in the financial and economic situation comes before autumn returns. Henderson's welcome proposal which has won the approval of the Europe Committee, offers a single gleam of hope.

Briand Accused of Preventing Quick Action on His Own Plan For United States of Europe

By Wilhelm Marx.
(Copyright, 1931.)

BERLIN, May 30.

A DEFINITE impasse has come, as many pessimists predicted. The most burning problem of today, that of the rehabilitation of Europe, has again been postponed for some months.

How bitterly the world has been complaining of the increase of protectionism! How keenly it has felt the results of a continuous raising of tariff barriers between different countries, and with what applause it received Briand's proposal at the session of the League of Nations held in September, 1929, to bring about finally a union of European nations in the economic field!

A Pan-Europe, a meeting of delegates from the different countries of Europe, held out the hope of a mutual and open discussion of the economic crisis which menaced everybody. Here a way was pointed out for a common understanding regarding ways and means of at least modifying the obviously existing financial and economic distress of almost all the peoples of the continent.

Was Briand's proposal honestly meant at all? Or did this much experienced Foreign Minister of France seize upon the plan of a Pan-Europe in order, if not exactly to nip it in the bud, at least to place its execution in the hands of France? It cannot be doubted that Briand has done extraordinary work for maintaining and securing world peace. His universally acknowledged foresight in estimating; even the most tangled political situations, and his tactical cleverness in mastering them, are acknowledged gratefully on every hand. If his withdrawal from the political arena of the world should result from his defeat by his own people at the recent election of a President of France, and if this withdrawal should be final, the fact would be most deeply regretted by every friend of world peace.

Economic Distress Grows.

But all this must not prevent us from objectively considering the political situation and his part in shaping it. For in the last analysis we have here to do with the fate of peoples to which that of the individual must be subordinated.

Of course Briand had to consider his Parliament. He had to take into account the strong nationalistic minority which has long opposed his peace policy. In any event France's security was plainly more important for him than the well being of the other states of Europe.

One cannot free oneself from the suspicion that when Briand took up the question of Pan-Europe which he had theretofore not regarded with much sympathy, his chief purpose was to get the leadership in this matter into his own hands, and thus postpone it indefinitely. Was it not absolutely depressing when the commission which had been in session for almost a year in order to prepare (theoretically of course) the organization of Pan-Europe, was finally able to submit its report at the session of the Europe commission of May 15, 1931?

Briand, as chairman of the so-called Europe committee, was then able to announce with obvious satisfaction that the League of Nations would take up the matter for discussion and decision at its session in September, 1931.

And while all this is going on, economic distress is increasing—not merely among the conquered peoples. The victorious states as well, with the possible exception of France, are groaning under heavy financial and economic cares. Who can blame Germany and Austria, if, in view of such a hopeless situation, they desire to take their fates into their own hands and at least do away with custom barriers between themselves and make the road clear for trade?

Germany Honest.

But by trying to do this, they excited Briand's anger in the highest degree. Every means has been tried by him of making impossible this sound and sensible plan. Even a dust-covered control commission appointed in 1922 to investigate whether the loan granted Austria by the League of Nations was adequately secured by customs revenues pledged, but which for years has regarded its work done, was brought out by Briand to make all the difficulties it could.

The two countries acted in the most honest manner. They informed the countries chiefly interested of their plan before any binding agreement had been made. Indeed, none has been made yet. They declared they were ready to enter negotiation with any other state for the same end, in order if possible to bring about a uniform and free relationship of all contractual states. But all to no purpose.

Briand declared most decisively at the very beginning of the discussions of the Europe committee, that he rejected most sharply the action of Germany and Austria. It was, he asserted, a violation of existing treaties. Jurists whose authority is acknowledged everywhere in the world had studied the situation and denied that any treaty had been violated, but Briand remained obdurate and England and Italy assumed a dubious attitude. Hence two German states saw themselves compelled at the session of the council of the League of Nations to whose competency a study of the legal side of the question belongs, to choose the lesser evil and accept England's proposal to let the International Court at the Hague determine the legality of the agreement planned and to report on it.

Hague Approval Expected.

The Foreign Ministers of Germany and Austria consented to this investigation, as they had from the beginning, but they objected strongly to any further investigation from a political or economic viewpoint. For these two states are in full possession of their sovereignty. They are free to conclude treaties. Nevertheless, as no one can deny, they communicated their intentions to the states concerned with the greatest frankness and straightforwardness. Curtius was fully justified in protesting most decisively against any attempt to impose upon these two states the character of states possessing inferior rights.

One must give emphatic expression to the expectation that the Hague Court will make its decision with all the speed which can justifiably be expected, and that it will find that the standpoint of Germany and Austria is correct. In that case, no hindrances may be placed in the way of the efforts of the states in question to improve their own economic situation through customs union, or else the other states concerned must themselves propose some other practicable way by which not only Germany and Austria but also all the peoples of Europe can attain economic rehabilitation. Perhaps the proposal made by Henderson at the session of the Europe Committee May 19, points the way—a conference of European States to bring about customs peace and the abandonment of economic nationalism. If this conference lets itself be guided by goodwill, it can take the first step toward the salvation of Europe.

Relief Needed Now.

Grave signs of the times indicate the seriousness of the hour. The great and steadily increasing number of votes cast for the National Socialist and Communist candidates ever since the fateful Reichstag elections of Sept. 14, 1930, in elections in various German states, and now especially in predominantly agricultural Oldenburg—so obviously symptoms of a pathological state of mind of the financially distressed sections of the people—are evidence of the extremest psychic and economic distress of the German people. Immediate aid is the most urgent requirement of the hour.

The German Government is cutting down with a ruthlessness bordering on brutality all current expenditures for the administration of the State. Everything humanly possible is being done here to master the severe crisis. But the number of unemployed, the barometer of the economic situation, is being reduced all too slowly, despite the more favorable season of the year. Disaster lies ahead, unless at least a beginning of improvement in the financial and economic situation comes before autumn returns. Henderson's welcome proposal, which has won the approval of the Europe Committee, offers a single gleam of hope.

Bethlehem Steel's Battle Over Bonuses of Million

$31,000,000 in 17 Years Presented to Few High Executives; Only $40,000,000 for Holders of Common Stock in Same Time

Sometimes There Were No Dividends at All, Though "Incentives" for the President and Others Were Distributed by Chairman Charles M. Schwab, Without General Knowledge of Shareholders.

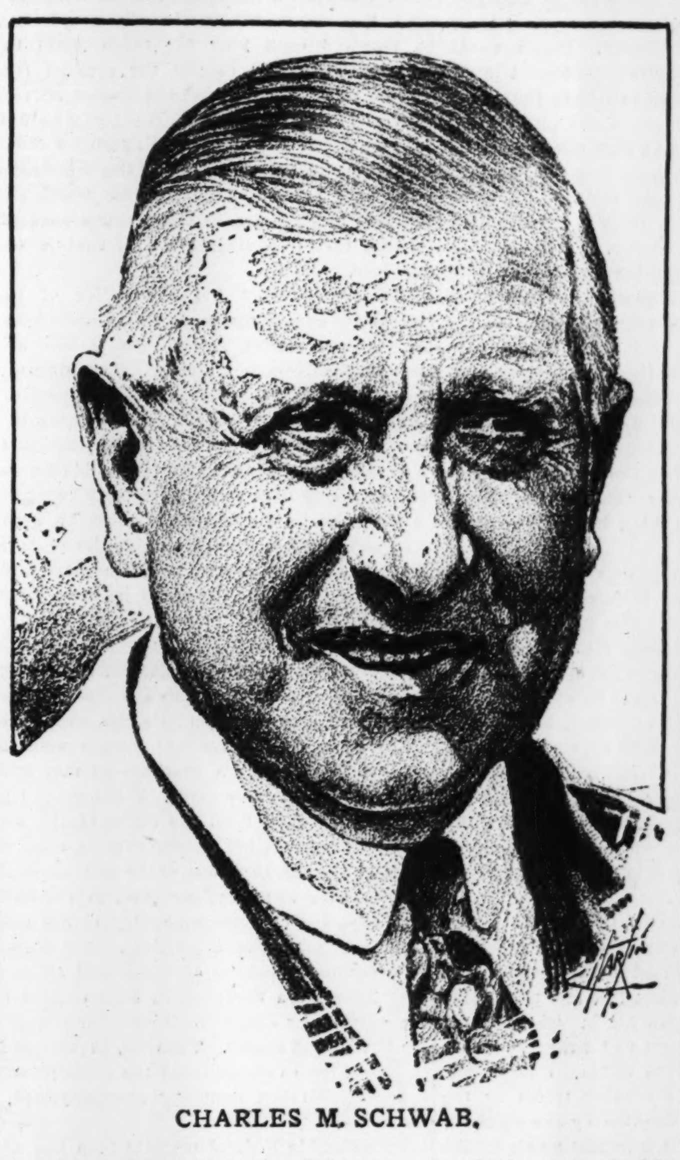
By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 30.

SAID Charles M. Schwab, with tears in his voice and eyes, at the annual meeting of the stockholders of the $800,000,000 Bethlehem Steel Corporation at Newark, N. J., in April:

"I had the feeling that this damn company belonged to me, you know, and I went ahead and did the best I could."

This remark by the chairman of Bethlehem's board of directors, in the course of a voluble defense of that corporation's bonus system for high executives, tells a good deal of the story that is here to be set down.



CHARLES M. SCHWAB.

"The old steel master," as he called himself, was compelled by unkind circumstances to discuss with the stockholders, the owners of the company, a little matter which for many years, except in vague outline, he had kept studiously under cover. He had to tell them, at last, about a bonus system, operated exclusively and secretly by himself, which has taken from the corporate treasury since 1911 approximately $37,000,000 and awarded it to select groups of executive officers at the head of the corporation.

"The Star of Bethlehem" (so dubbed by William B. Shearer, big-navy propagandist extraordinary, with whom a Bethlehem subsidiary once had certain interesting dealings) permitted the stockholders to know, for example, that he had dispensed largess of $3,425,306 from the treasury to 14 officers in the fat year of 1929, and $1,983,856 to the same number in the not so fat year of 1930. E. G. Grace, president of the corporation, whom Mr. Schwab has often extolled as the ablest of his "boys," was by far the most favored of these beneficiaries. He received, in addition to his $12,000 salary, $1,623,753 in 1929 and $1,015,591 in 1930.

EUGENE GRACE.

Why a Secret?

First in a letter to the stockholders and then in his speech at the annual meeting, Mr. Schwab, with his habitual air of complete frankness, laid these and related facts before them. Some of his hearers may have wept with him; the minutes of the meeting do not show. They do show that although Mr. Schwab won the proxy battle, as was inevitable, some hard-boiled stockholders were completely unmoved by his appeal for sympathy and support, or were moved in another way than Mr. Schwab intended.

These recalcitrants audibly wondered why the bonus system, if it was such a fine thing for their own interests as well as Mr. Grace's, had been kept secret. They failed to understand why Mr. Schwab, in his wisdom, had not told them about it before, and why there was no description of it in any of the annual reports of the corporation from 1918 forward.

Far more than by Mr. Schwab's oratory, these stockholders were impressed by the fact that he did not take them into his confidence with respect to the bonus system of the "damn company" that he thought belonged to him, until after the essential information about the bonuses had been corkscrewed out of Mr. Grace and other officials of the company on the witness stand at Youngstown, O., last summer.

Cost Schwab Nothing.

Moreover, it was in the minds of the protesting stockholders that when Mr. Schwab dipped into the treasury for bonuses to confer on Mr. Grace and the rest of his "boys," he was not giving away any of his own money. Mr. Schwab no longer holds any of the common stock of the company. His sole stock interest consists of 43,866 shares of preferred stock, and the annual dividends of the preferred stock have got to be paid before any bonuses are distributed.

One of the stockholders at the Newark meeting called pointed attention to Mr. Schwab's present status. With considerably more gumption than is commonly shown by Congressmen in examining Mr. Schwab, this man stood up in meeting and committed lese majesty as follows:

"You have forgotten that you sold your plant years ago to the stockholders.

"Years ago," he continued," Oliver Cromwell killed the slogan, 'The King Can Do No Wrong,' and nobody had ever dared to revive it until you indicated it in your letter to the stockholders. The King has, permit me to say, done wrong."

Here are some of the salient facts regarding the Bethlehem bonus system, as they have come to light through the Youngstown court proceedings, which stopped Bethlehem's proposed absorption of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., and later, under compulsion, through statements by Schwab:

Gifts Make Huge Totals.

That during the period in which the bonus system, initiated and administered by Schwab, has been operative, and up to the end of 1928, $31,878,255 was paid out under it to a few high officials, not exceeding 15 in any one year and usually fewer, as against $40,886,996 paid in dividends to common stockholders in the same period.

That, in other words, during the period in question the bonuses to these few executives were about 80 per cent of the amount distributed as dividends to the holders of common stock, now numbering about 51,000.

That in the four years from 1925 to 1928 inclusive, when the common stockholders received no dividends, $6,800,524 was paid in bonuses to the favored executives, the president alone receiving $3,105,963.

That Grace's bonus for the last 13 years has averaged $814,993, reaching its maximum of $1,623,753 in 1929, and his 1930 bonus of over a million was paid despite the fact that the company did not earn its dividends in that year.

That Grace's bonus for 1929, for a single year's services, was equivalent to a dividend of $6 a share on 270,925 shares of common stock, one-fourteenth of the issued and outstanding stock of the corporation, or 50 cents a share on the entire outstanding issue of 3,200,000 shares.

That Grace received in 1929 a bonus equal to a 5 per cent return upon an invested capital of $32,475,060.

How General Is Practice?

We shall return later to the details of the bonus system, to the steps being taken against it by a "protective committee" of indignant stockholders, and to Mr. Schwab's broken-hearted-warrior attitude.

The Bethlehem case raises the question: To what extent do similar bonus practices prevail in other large corporations? The answer, of course, must be largely speculative. As already shown, it took a court action to bring out the facts about Bethlehem. Schwab is now saying that on a number of occasions prior to the Youngstown suit he referred to Grace as a million-dollar-a-year man, but the fact remains that if the stockholders knew anything at all about the bonus system, they knew it only in the haziest way. If they had known the facts, some protest would certainly have been made in the lean years when the common stockholders were getting nothing on their investment while Grace and a dozen others were drawing down their bonuses as usual. The news that Grace was getting better than a million a year surprised even the New York financial community, which had questioned previous reports that he received $750,000.

There is solid reason to believe that if the lid could be pried off the whole corporate world, as cross-examination under oath pried it off Bethlehem, the system of concealed payments of huge sums to corporation executives would be revealed as far from uncommon. Such, at any rate, is the widespread conviction among competent observers in New York.

Stock Exchange Is Curious.

One encounters the expression of this belief, now and then, in the most unexpected places. For example, the Nation's Business, official organ of the conservative Chamber of Commerce of the United States, has just published an article by Mark Wolff, economist of Hamershlag, Borg & Co., of New York, in which he lists, among the schemes by which "the people in control of far too many corporations" are exploiting their stockholders, the secret payment of large bonuses and salaries to management. Wolff says that "the experienced security analyst can recall any number of instances of abuses about which stockholders were kept in ignorance or, if they knew about them, were only able to act by shouldering the expense of a proxy contest."

The protesting Bethlehem stockholders, incidentally, fall in this latter category; they have formed and are bearing the expenses of a hastily extemporized organization, while the management fights back with funds belonging to all the stockholders—including the opposition.

If Wolff's charges and the publication of them by Nation's Business are significant, even more so is the announcement of a few days ago that the Committee on Stock List of the New York Stock Exchange has under consideration a plan to require companies seeking listing privileges to publish data on bonuses paid to executives. When the New York Stock Exchange is willing to admit the existence of smoke, there must be a considerable fire.

But we are not confined to speculation. In addition to the Bethlehem matter, there is a pending suit by stockholders of the P. Lorillard Tobacco Co. to have the stock bonus scheme of that company adjudged unfair, and there is, more spectacularly, a suit by a minority group of stockholders against the American Tobacco Co.

That Tobacco Bonus.

The American Tobacco case, which is quite as illuminating, in its way, as the Bethlehem case and in some respects even more sensational, deserves treatment in some detail before we go back to Schwab.

Thanks to the delvings of Richard Reid Rogers, a New York lawyer and stockholder in the American Tobacco Co., formerly chief counsel for the Interborough Rapid Transit Co. and the Isthmian Canal Commission, it has been disclosed that George W. Hill, president of the company, is an even more highly paid executive than Eugene Grace of Bethlehem.

Hill's cash compensation in 1930 was $1,008,000, and on top of this he received the right to buy, "by way of additional compensation for services to be rendered during the year 1931," 13,440 shares of the company's B common stock at $25 a share. In a letter of protest to the stockholders in March, Rogers estimated, on the basis of the market price of the stock at that time ($120 a share), that Hill's stock bonus was worth a potential $1,275,000.

The total of this sum and Hill's million dollar cash compensation entitles him to be called the highest paid corporate executive on record—unless the redoubtable Schwab himself got more in 1901-2 when he headed Morgan's newly formed United States Steel Corporation. Hill's primacy is not invalidated by the fact that the stock has since fallen, in the bear market, to around $110. Wall street refers to him as the better-than-$2,000,000 salary-and-bonus president of the American Tobacco Co.

Stock at Bargain Rates.

Though the bonus arrangement of this company was called an "employes' stock subscription plan," it did not reach far into the rank and file. Rogers says, pertinently, that it should have been called an executive' bonus plan, like Bethlehem's. Of a total allotment of 56,712 shares of stock, Hill and the five vice presidents got 30,125, the rest being distributed to 529 persons in blocks tapering from 980 shares down to 10.

Rogers has pointed out, further, that although only 56,712 shares have been allotted thus far, the directors have set a side a total of 312,000 as available for allotment. The market value of these shares, as of the middle of March, was about $37,440,000. Sale of all this stock at the nominal $25 a share would bring the company only $7,800,000. The scheme, in other words, as Rogers stated in his letter to the stockholders, involved possible enrichment of a favored few officers and employes by $30,000,000, with a corresponding dilution of the equity of the other stockholders.

Hill's cash compensation is revealed by a simple mathematical calculation. Under the formula adopted by the board, each employe given a 100 per cent rating under the bonus scheme received shares having a par value of one-third of his total compensation for 1930. The par value of the stock allotted to Hill was $336,000. Hence his cash compensation was three times that amount, or $1,008,000.

Big Annual Incomes.

On the same basis of calculation, it is estimated that each of the five vice presidents is receiving, in cash compensation and stock bonus, an average of $567,000, or a total of $2,836,000.

Rogers sent a letter to the stockholders in March, asking for proxies with which to fight "these exorbitant payments" and to register disapproval of "a trend in corporate management in this country which is or may prove pernicious." He was defeated at the annual meeting of the stockholders, but announced that the battle he had started in the Federal Courts against the bonus system would go on. Through court proceedings now pending, Rogers is seeking to have the books of the company thrown open to his inspection and to have the stock bonus plan declared invalid and illegal. He wants the courts to compel restitution to the stockholders of amounts received by the president and the five vice presidents in excess of a "reasonable" compensation.

George W. Hill has been president of the American Tobacco Co. since 1925. Prior to that he was the head of a subsidiary. The company last year reported net earnings of $43,345,370, by far the greatest in its history.

To return now to the Bethlehem bonuses and the originator of the system, Charles M. Schwab:

The fact that huge sums in addition to their salaries were secretly being paid to a handful of executives came out, as related, in the trial last summer at Youngstown of Cyrus S. Eaton's suit to prevent the proposed merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Eugene G. Grace testified that his salary was $12,000 a year and that he received a bonus figured "at a factor of 1½ per cent." He declined to go further than that. Later, the facts were drawn from him and other witnesses on cross-examination.

Stockholders' Revolt.

It was one of the main contentions of the Eaton interests that the Youngstown directors who approved the merger had failed in a manifest duty to their stockholders by neglecting to search out and reveal the nature of the bonus burden that these stockholders, upon the consummation of the proposed merger, would have to assume. This contention was upheld by the trial Judge, David G. Jenkins, who, in his decision enjoining the merger, declared that the Bethlehem bonus system, under which about $3,500,000 was paid to executives in 1929, was a material factor that should have been investigated and reported upon to the Youngstown stockholders.

As a result of the Youngstown revelations, a group of stockholders formed a protective committee and engaged as counsel Ehrich, Royal, Wheeler & Walter of New York. In order that they might address their fellow stockholders, this group sought from the company a stockholders' list. The request at first was denied, and it was not complied with till after the protective committee had filed a mandamus suit to compel p of the list.

A Flexible Public Works Program

Suggestions for ending the depression run the entire gamut of thought from the definite proposals of the Republican progressives to the vague optimisms of Mr. Hoover and Mr. Schwab.

One group calls very faintly for reduced wages and prices. Another almost as faintly urges us to maintain wages and price levels at all costs. Neither group is right, because neither prices nor wages can be controlled by fiat. Many Democrats and some Republicans want a lower tariff; standpatters seek a solution in trade agreements. Some of those who suffered reverses in the stock collapse want to curb margining in stocks, while others merely yearn for a bull market. "Back-to-the-farm" suggestions continue with doubled force, but the means of going back are not provided. The advice to talk prosperity, which once boomed jovially, comes now in feeble gasps. Thoughtful people, the Mayor of Liverpool to the contrary notwithstanding, believe that the facts should be told.

Our Jobs and Micawbers tell us to wait; Henry Ford tells us to work. There are frequent calls for a shorter day, a shorter week, a guaranteed year for labor and a limit upon production; but Mr. Babson rests his case on the advice, "Work harder and produce more." Mr. Coolidge tells us to economize; Mary Roberts Rinehart tells us to spend. Borah wants us to recognize Russia; the State Department is deporting aliens in large numbers to relieve the unemployment pressure. Geneva beckons and invites; but we retire to our solitude, content with our hope of interest from Europe and trade from South America.

There is an increasingly loud call for an extra session of Congress, and also fervent prayers that Congress be dismissed permanently. "There can be no magic," says Mr. Mellon; but labor more and more insistently calls for a plan whereby it shall share dividends as well as salaries, which is magic to the nth power.

Pacifists want the cancellation or reduction of war debts and a smaller army and navy. Mrs. Sanger suggests birth control. Arthur Brisbane proposes to ship our unemployed to Russia, where there is a shortage of labor, and Clarence Darrow continues to urge Mr. Malthus' old theory that the wholesale slaughter of war is a good thing because we have too many people.

Increased income and inheritance taxes are suggested as a means of meeting increased government expenses in the United States. The land tax is proposed in England. Against these radical proposals, government economies are recommended by some, the issuance of more government bonds by others. Some, like Mr. Hoover, see salvation in industrial planning by great corporations; others, with eyes upon Russia, want the Government to do it. Railroads and power companies want rate increases; the public calls for lower public service rates. Penologists want to make convicts self-supporting; other students of crime want to leave them in solitary, sterilize them and continue to pay their living expenses.

The wets want the Government to begin to collect the $3,000,000,000 a year that now goes to the bootleggers; the drys recommend that we continue to catch as many as we can and give them free and permanent board and lodging if we starve for it. There is too much gold in the United States and France, say the economists; too much silver in China. Overproduction is inveighed against in ringing terms by the industrialists; unfair discrimination by the farmers; chain stores by the retailers; the middle man's profits by the consumers. Meanwhile, President Green of the American Federation of Labor warns the country that unless something is done at once we face a worse situation next winter than we did last winter.

Out of this wilderness of proposals the plan to start work at once upon new, large-scale Federal projects emerges clear as the sun at noonday. We have between 6,000,000 and 8,000,000 unemployed. They must be fed. Work or the dole are our alternatives, and immediate action is imperative. In the selection of projects, emphasis should be placed upon enterprises that pay for themselves. Certainly a nation that can afford to spend on one war $38,000,000,000, not one dollar of which will ever return into its treasury, can afford now to bond itself for an additional billion which, if invested in irrigation projects, power projects, road building, river channelizing, tree planting or direct loans to farmers, can be collected from those for whose benefit it is spent. Money for the financing of such projects would be instantly available. The Government is able to borrow today at lower rates than at any other time in its recent history, and this is one billion that would come back. More than that, it would call out another billion or more from the states. This in turn would put courage in the hearts of business men, and a general revival of trade would occur.

But no beginning can be made without a special session of Congress, and unless much heavier pressure is brought to bear than at present, this is not to be. The President has definitely and emphatically declined to call an extra session, and he alone has the power to convene one. The policy of the administration, which looks to private enterprise to play the leading part in the handling of this situation, is a policy of apathy. Despite the opinion of the Emergency Committee for Federal Public Works that a bond issue of $1,000,000,000 should be made at this time; despite the opinion of Dean Donham of Harvard that $3,500,000,000 in additional wages will be required each year for three years to set us on our feet again; despite the demand for such a session by La Follette and the uneasy stirring of the rank and file of the Republican party as well as the protests of the Democrats, the President complacently points to "total work by or for the Government" that "will exceed $520,000,000 for this fiscal year," and seems to be content with this pitifully inadequate provision's barrier against the wolf that is howling at our door.

Provision against the adversities of next year should have been made early this spring so that its benefits could have reached the farmer in time to help produce this year's crops. To continue to delay it means to add the idleness of summer to the lost opportunities of spring. It is maddening to face the now almost inescapable fact that so far as Congress is concerned no further help is possible before winter. The absurdity of a nation's business being dependent in many of its fundamentals upon an organization that can close up shop and go home is apparent enough to any thoughtful mind in normal times. In times like these, the absurdity becomes almost criminal. Is Mr. Hoover unable to see his way through this jungle of misery? Or is he afraid to offend the powers responsible for his election by forcing legislation, some of which will necessarily be unacceptable to the privileged interests by which he is surrounded?

Far from placing another burden upon backs already bending, such a program as this will relieve us of the load we now carry. We succeeded in removing 4,000,000 men from the ranks of the workers in war time, preventing unemployment even when the work of the 4,000,000 was death and economic waste. Russia, with her five-year plan, is preventing idleness now, the only large country in the world without an unemployment problem. Yet Russians are so notoriously lacking in industrial efficiency that they have for a dozen years been obliged to secure their efficiency engineers from other countries, notably the United States. Thus we, in war, and Russia, in peace, have demonstrated the same principle, that big-scale planning, removing unemployment, sustains the state.

This flexible Federal projects plan has advantages that will make it peculiarly suited to the present emergency. Its flexibility is perfect, for it is capable of expansion or contraction to meet the needs of the nation. Its scope can be enlarged or limited in accordance with the national need. Its economy is evident because we must support the unemployed by charity if we cannot give them work. Its profit to the Government is clear because it is a wealth producer for the future. And its strategy is not the least of its advantages, for it is a means of saving capitalism confronted by the necessity to justify itself by its works.

It is popular and practically certain of success if tried; but it is faced by only one obstacle capable of defeating it—the inertia of Mr. Hoover.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER.

Not long ago Senator Glenn announced that Lincoln's tomb never had been really dedicated and asked President Hoover to come out and do the job right. Just the other day Houdon's statue of Washington on the Virginia Capitol was dedicated after a lapse of 135 years. These belated ceremonies suggest a way to end a lot of the strife and discontent in the world. Let the people of every nation get busy with dedicatory exercises for their historic places, which probably came into existence without proper ceremonies. Fitting services at each of the pyramids, with a grand climax at the Sphinx, would keep the Egyptians out of mischief while considerable water ran down the Nile. If anything could effect a truce among the warring factions in China it would be an old settlers' day, topped off with dedication exercises at every fifth gate along the Chinese wall. Has Vesuvius ever been dedicated? We doubt it. In all the history of Italy, no one could do the job better than Mussolini. As for the British Empire, we suggest King George accept the Taj Mahal as a token of India's esteem for England. He and Gandhi sharing the speakers' stand ought to bring out a good crowd.

A THREAT BACKFIRES.

A blow at municipal ownership of natural gas distribution systems has been struck by pipe line companies, which threaten to refuse to sell their product to such systems. The threat was the subject of a resolution passed at a convention of the Missouri Association of Municipal Utilities, meeting at Carthage May 18 and 19. The resolution declares "it to be the inherent right of any incorporated city to own and operate a natural gas system, or any other utility, and to enjoy without discrimination the same rights to purchase natural gas wholesale from pipe line companies as are enjoyed by private franchise owners." The resolution calls upon Congress and the Missouri Legislature to enact such legislation as to make impossible discrimination in favor of private utilities.

We are not aware of any concrete case in which a pipe line company has refused to sell natural gas to a municipal plant, and we doubt whether a company would be so shortsighted as actually to adopt such a policy. Its immediate effect, as is shown here, would be to arouse public hostility and demands for legislative action. No business can thrive in such an atmosphere, and the owners of pipe line companies are primarily business men. It may be possible to check the spread of municipal ownership by reasonable rates and good service, but not by threats and unjust discrimination.

CHURCH AND STATE IN SPAIN.

The Spanish Republic's decree granting equal religious liberties to all sects is the first step toward separation of church and state. It is an inevitable result of the revolution. The united functioning of these two bodies is as obsolete as the divine right of kings, and is rapidly following that tenet into oblivion as democracy spreads among formerly monarchical nations. Our country did not find this a troublesome issue, but it complicated the success of most revolutions in modern times. The American attitude has consistently been that expressed by Jefferson: "The opinions of men are not the object of civil government, nor under its jurisdiction."

The church having played so important a part in the centuries of Spanish history, the Republic has a difficult problem in separating civil government from the hierarchy. Without considering the church's effect on education, government and finances in Spain, the essential fact remains that the alliance is in disharmony with the principles of democracy to which the Republic is dedicated.

In reaching a solution there need be no attack on the religion which the majority of Spaniards hold. Salvador de Madariaga, the new regime's Ambassador-designate to this country, in his recent book on Spain compactly sums up the problem: "It is extremely difficult to attack clerical abuses without seeming to attack Catholic institutions, or even being naturally drawn actually to attack them." The destruction of churches by rioters three weeks ago was the result of the misguided tendency which the writer mentions. The Government, frowning on this violence, indicated its sincerity in working for a peaceful transition. Should the moderates remain in power, and the church read aright the lessons of history, there is every hope that this inevitable step may be taken without strife.

WHY NOT, MR. HOOVER?

Why the U. S. Needs a Building Program

Despite depression, country has been extremely tolerant of party which won power through prosperity myth; optimistic predictions have failed, and promised building program has not resulted; patient public, realizing administration's "watchful waiting" policy has proved fruitless, is ready to consider La Follette's plan.

From the Portland (Me.) Evening News.

HAD Congress been in session during the last two and one-half months, we should doubtless have been deafened (no, not by the deliberations of Congress) by the anvil newspaper chorus echoing certain persons in high authority declaring that "Congress" and "politics" were hindering the return of prosperity and prolonging depression. Congress has not been in session for nearly three months. It is now close to 19 months since the Wall street crash ushered in hard times, and, despite an unlimited number of optimistic statements by administration spokesmen, hard times are still with us.

There has been, on the whole, throughout the country, a very tolerant attitude toward the administration concerning the events of the last year and a half. If anyone doubts it, let him compare the attitude of the press, Democratic as well as Republican, with the terrible "panning" which Woodrow Wilson received in the year of his first term, 1913-14, when there was a severe depression. That depression, however, was in no sense comparable to what we are going through now. But the jeers and invective which were hurled at the President and the Democratic party contrast strongly with the attitude of the press today. The Boston Herald, for instance, taking up President Wilson's book, "The New Freedom," made a daily play on these words, publishing each day under the title of "The New Freedom," some adverse piece of business news such as the reduction of a dividend, the laying off of workers, the shutdown of a factory.

In contrast with this, there has been during the last year and a half a very general disposition to let down extremely easily the party which so long has ridden into office and maintained itself in office on the prosperity myth—myth in the sense that good times were attributed solely to the political party in power. The contrast is all the more glaring since President Hoover campaigned directly on this issue and indicated that his election would come close to bringing about the "abolition of poverty." It is not only in the wide divergence between promise and performance that there lies a legitimate basis of criticism, but in the utter failure on the part of the administration to take any effective remedial measures.

It will be recalled that immediately after election, the Hoover administration indicated a far-reaching purpose and program in the event of business slackening. This program was none other than a vast revolving fund which would be released for the building of public works in such hard times—roads, public buildings, breakwaters, bridges, etc. Such enterprises would not be "pork," but actually useful and needed undertakings. The essence of the program was that such undertakings, which in the normal course of events might have been carried through over 10 or 20 years, would be undertaken immediately.

The crash came. The administration's first reaction was to minimize it, to say that it portended no business depression. Business would be normal in 60 days, announced President Hoover. Similar statements were issued at regular intervals throughout the spring of 1930 by the President, Secretaries Mellon, Lamont and others.

The close of the spring—just a year ago—brought forth a barrage of statements that as soon as the tariff was disposed of business would pick up. It is useless to retail more fully the continuity of unfulfilled prophecies and promises of Government spokesmen and business "leaders." (The less said about their leadership the better.) Secretary Wilbur is the latest to tell us that depression will end "this summer."

The promised public works program never materialized. The difficulty in getting action on the long-promised (pre-crash promised) Portland postoffice is an indication of the ineptitude of the administration in failing to furnish even the minimum of relief. The holding up of the courthouse building is another bit of evidence.

Given the great patience with which the American public has taken what has happened, it seems reasonable to consider seriously any concrete proposals that are offered.

In a statement released for publication on May 21, Senator Robert M. La Follette, chairman of the Committee on Unemployment and Industrial Stabilization of the Progressive Conference, reviews business conditions in detail. He points out that despite certain bright spots—and there are plenty of dark ones—it is quite impossible for business to pick up sufficiently before next winter to take care of the 6,000,000 unemployed. He points out that the third winter of unemployment will be infinitely more serious than the preceding, because first, so many of the unemployed will by then have completely used up their savings, and second, municipalities will by that time have gone to the financial limit in affording relief. Senator La Follette calls immediately for the launching of the great public works program which the administration promised but did not carry out.

The proposal is sound and wise. If it was a good plan to promise the country in times of prosperity, in the fall of 1929, in the event of depression, why is it not an excellent plan after a year and a half of deep depression as we enter the summer of 1931?

This much is undeniable. The policy of "watchful waiting" which the administration has pursued has been utterly without result. Surely it is time for those whose attitude and policy have been wholly negative, who have rejected all constructive measures for unemployment relief, to let those who have a plan and a program more constructive than "wishful hoping," have their way and to give that program of action a chance.

THROAT, NOSE AND EAR DOCTORS TO HOLD CONVENTION

American Society of Specialists to Meet at Coronado Hotel Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

SOME SESSIONS AT HOSPITALS

Visitors to Attend Municipal Opera as Guests of St. Louis Fellows — Dinner at Country Club.

The thirty-seventh annual meeting of the American Laryngological Rhinological and Otological Society, Inc., will be held in St. Louis next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. In layman's terms, this is the professional organization of throat, nose and ear doctors, a national group of specialists.

It comprises about 400 active fellows, 13 emeritus fellows and 14 honorary fellows. Among the actives are 16 St. Louis physicians. It is popularly believed that St. Louis has rather more than its share of throat and nose trouble, partly because of the smoky atmosphere.

Headquarters for the society's meeting, where business and scientific sessions will be held Wednesday and Friday, will be the Coronado Hotel. Wednesday evening the society will go to the Municipal Opera as guests of the local fellows and the annual dinner will be held Thursday evening at the St. Louis Country Club.

On Thursday a unique program has been arranged, under the direction of Dr. Max A. Goldstein of St. Louis, president of the society. The whole day will be devoted to demonstrations of medical research work. This, it is believed, will be the first time such a society has had so extended a research program. To make the event more outstanding is the fact that all but two of the long list of participants are St. Louis physicians and investigators who are engaged in professional practice or connected with the internationally known medical center here.

The morning session on Thursday will be held at the new Oscar Johnson Institute and McMillan Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Hospital, part of the Washington University Medical School affiliation. The demonstrations, divided into four groups, will be under the direction of Dr. Lee Wallace Dean, head of the department of otolaryngology of the medical school. Those who will take part, all St. Louisans, are: Drs. Alexis F. Hartman, Bernard J. McMahon, French K. Hansel, Arthur W. Proetz, A. J. Cone, Allen Potter, P. R. Nemours, G. E. Hourn, Louis Birsner and Louis K. Guggenheim, physicians; Drs. C. C. Bunch, W. F. Wenner and A. M. Lucas, doctors of philosophy; Miss Dorothy Wolff and C. S. Linton.

Luncheon at Institute.

Luncheon for the society members, as guests of Dr. and Mrs. Goldstein, will be served at Central Institute for the Deaf, of which Dr. Goldstein is director. The afternoon session will be at the institute. Pupils of this school will give a demonstration and play, under the direction of Miss Julia M. Connery, principal, and members of the faculty. Others on the scientific program will be Dr. Philip Romonek of Omaha, Neb., Prof. G. Oscar Russell of Ohio State University and these St. Louisans; Dr. E. Lee Myers, Prof. Max F. Meyer, Dr. Goldstein and Prof. August G. Pohlman of St. Louis University.

Coinciding with the research day program will be the opening of the fourteenth annual meeting of the Society of Progressive Oral Advocates, of which Dr. Goldstein is president. Its headquarters will be at Central Institute. Its members will attend the research demonstrations on Thursday and will hear a number of papers on the teaching of the deaf on Friday and Saturday. Demonstrations for this organization also will be made by pupils of the institute.

Dr. Goldstein has gathered from his home, private office and the school his valuable collection of early medical works on deafness and speech. In arranging the volumes at the institute for the benefit of the members of the two societies, he has seen them all together for the first time. Perhaps his favorite one, because of his interest in medieval art, is a book embellished with a large water color or painting of a man, whose thoracic and abdominal cavities are exposed to show their anatomy in symbolical detail, similar to the signs of the zodiac.

Ancient Lip Reading.

The title page of another volume, published in London in 1648, the first work on lip reading, reads: "The Deafe and Dumbe Man's Friend. Exhibiting the philosophicall verity of that subtile Art, which may inable one with an observant Eie, to Heare what any man speaks by the moving of his lips."

Another book, published by an English doctor in 1842, describes an acoustic chair invented by the author, which consisted of an ear trumpet built into a wing chair and connected by tubes to a remote speaking device, such as a perforated plate concealed in a vase in another room. This device, utilizing the principle of acoustic tunnels, was intended for the deaf, but the writer, having a prevision of communication demands, perhaps, declared that it would permit the sending of a message from Dow..ng street or the Horse Guards to the Mansion House in a minute and a half, or communication between St. James Palace and the Houses of Parliament, or "from London to the Queen at Windsor."

This book also described instruments with "caoutchouc bags," the forerunners of rubber bulbs. Included in the collection is the first book written on rhinoplasty, or nose straightening, printed in Venice in 1597. It pictures a strap device, rigidly holding the patient's arm, in grafting skin from the arm to improve the contour of the proboscis.

Pictures in some of the other works show early ideas of anatomical drawing; old surgical instruments and their application, looking to a layman much like the shi implements in the specialist's offi today; cleverly joined internal a external views of the ear, nose a eye, and an ear trumpet 10 fe long, shaped like a cigar. BLIGHT STRIPS SYCAMORES IN COUNTY OF THEIR LEAVES

Superintendent Pring of Shaw's Garden Says Warm Weather Will Renew Foliage.

Dozens of St. Louis County residents have been alarmed, as indicated by telephone calls to Shaw's Garden, by a blight which is causing sycamore trees to lose their leaves.

The advice of Supt. Pring in each case is to spray with Bordeaux mixture if the tree is not too large, otherwise not to worry, since new leaves will come with warm, dry weather.

Although the blight has not materially affected trees at the garden, Pring related, he observed on Friday's trip to the 1600-acre Gray Summit garden that 90 per cent of the sycamores along the 34-mile route had been wholly stripped of leaves within a week.

The blight appears superficial, attacking only leaves and tender twigs, he said. A culture of the fungus causing it has been taken by Dr. David H. Linder, Shaw's Garden mycologist, to determine if it is the common sycamore blight, which it appears to be. Its prevalence is caused, Pring says, by recent cool, wet weather, allowing the fungus to thrive, and will end as summer brings conditions less favorable for its growth.

WASHINGTON U. ANNOUNCES CHANGES IN ITS FACULTY

Promotions and Appointments in School of Medicine and College of Arts and Sciences.

Promotions to clinical professorships in the School of Medicine announced yesterday by Washington University include Dr. J. Albert Key, orthopedic surgery; Dr. Lawrence T. Post and Dr. Meyer Wiener, ophthalmology, and Dr. Albert E. Taussig, medicine.

Those promoted to associate professorships are: Dr. Gordon H. Scott, cytology; Dr. Drew H. Luten and Dr. Joseph H. Larimore, clinical medicine. To assistant professorships: Dr. Donald Hetler, bacteriology, immunology and public health; Dr. George Hourn, clinical oto-laryngology, and Dr. Helen Treadway Graham, pharmacology. Dr. Louis K. Guggenheim was appointed assistant professor of oto-laryngology.

In the College of Arts and Sciences, Theodore F. Lentz Jr. was made associate professor of education and Herbert R. Grumann assistant professor of mathematics. The James Harrison Steedman traveling fellowship in architecture was awarded to Kenneth E. Wischmeyer for 1931-32.

18 PAINTINGS ON EXHIBITION AT NO-JURY ART SHOW SOLD

One Artist Disposes of Three Displays; Association Members to Address Club.

Eighteen paintings displayed at the second annual no-jury show of the Independent Artists of St. Louis at the Old Courthouse have been sold to residents of St. Louis and St. Louis County. Only one painting was taken by a purchaser at last year's show.

One artist, Gustav Goetsch, sold all of the three paintings he entered.

Arrangements have been made for talks on paintings and sculpture by members of the association at club meetings throughout the city. Tanasko Milovich, 3522 Franklin avenue, is president of the Independent Artists.

JOHN HENDERSON, ILLINOIS COAL MINE OPERATOR, DIES

Former President of West Virginia Coal Co. Lived With Relatives in University City.

John Henderson, operator of coal mines in Southern Illinois, died yesterday at De Paul Hospital following an appendicitis operation. He was 57 years old. The funeral will be held at Lupton's undertaking establishment, 4449 Olive street, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Henderson formerly was president of the West Virgin' Coal Co., control of which passed into the hands of his wife when they were divorced two years ago. Since then he has conducted his business under the name of John Henderson Co., Inc.

He lived at 7400 Williams avenue, University City, with a brother, Beacham Henderson. His mother, a brother, Robert, and a sister, Mrs. Nellie Axline, also survive.

THROAT, NOSE AND EAR DOCTORS TO HOLD CONVENTION

American Society of Specialists to Meet at Coronado Hotel Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

SOME SESSIONS AT HOSPITALS

Visitors to Attend Municipal Opera as Guests of St. Louis Fellows — Dinner at Country Club.

The thirty-seventh annual meeting of the American Laryngological Rhinological and Otological Society, Inc., will be held in St. Louis next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. In layman's terms, this is the professional organization of throat, nose and ear doctors, a national group of specialists.

It comprises about 400 active fellows, 13 emeritus fellows and 14 honorary fellows. Among the actives are 16 St. Louis physicians. It is popularly believed that St. Louis has rather more than its share of throat and nose trouble, partly because of the smoky atmosphere.

Headquarters for the society's meeting, where business and scientific sessions will be held Wednesday and Friday, will be the Coronado Hotel. Wednesday evening the society will go to the Municipal Opera as guests of the local fellows and the annual dinner will be held Thursday evening at the St. Louis Country Club.

On Thursday a unique program has been arranged, under the direction of Dr. Max A. Goldstein of St. Louis, president of the society. The whole day will be devoted to demonstrations of medical research work. This, it is believed, will be the first time such a society has had so extended a research program. To make the event more outstanding is the fact that all but two of the long list of participants are St. Louis physicians and investigators who are engaged in professional practice or connected with the internationally known medical center here.

The morning session on Thursday will be held at the new Oscar Johnson Institute and McMillan Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Hospital, part of the Washington University Medical School affiliation. The demonstrations, divided into four groups, will be under the direction of Dr. Lee Wallace Dean, head of the department of otolaryngology of the medical school. Those who will take part, all St. Louisans, are: Drs. Alexis F. Hartman, Bernard J. McMahon, French K. Hansel, Arthur W. Proetz, A. J. Cone, Allen Potter, P. R. Nemours, G. E. Hourn, Louis Birsner and Louis K. Guggenheim, physicians; Drs. C. C. Bunch, W. F. Wenner and A. M. Lucas, doctors of philosophy; Miss Dorothy Wolff and C. S. Linton.

Luncheon at Institute.

Luncheon for the society members, as guests of Dr. and Mrs. Goldstein, will be served at Central Institute for the Deaf, of which Dr. Goldstein is director. The afternoon session will be at the institute. Pupils of this school will give a demonstration and play, under the direction of Miss Julia M. Connery, principal, and members of the faculty. Others on the scientific program will be Dr. Philip Romonek of Omaha, Neb., Prof. G. Oscar Russell of Ohio State University and these St. Louisans; Dr. E. Lee Myers, Prof. Max F. Meyer, Dr. Goldstein and Prof. August G. Pohlman of St. Louis University.

Coinciding with the research day program will be the opening of the fourteenth annual meeting of the Society of Progressive Oral Advocates, of which Dr. Goldstein is president. Its headquarters will be at Central Institute. Its members will attend the research demonstrations on Thursday and will hear a number of papers on the teaching of the deaf on Friday and Saturday. Demonstrations for this organization also will be made by pupils of the institute.

Dr. Goldstein has gathered from his home, private office and the school his valuable collection of early medical works on deafness and speech. In arranging the volumes at the institute for the benefit of the members of the two societies, he has seen them all together for the first time. Perhaps his favorite one, because of his interest in medieval art, is a book embellished with a large water color or painting of a man, whose thoracic and abdominal cavities are exposed to show their anatomy in symbolical detail, similar to the signs of the zodiac.

Ancient Lip Reading.

The title page of another volume, published in London in 1648, the first work on lip reading, reads: "The Deafe and Dumbe Man's Friend. Exhibiting the philosophicall verity of that subtile Art, which may inable one with an observant Eie, to Heare what any man speaks by the moving of his lips."

Another book, published by an English doctor in 1842, describes an acoustic chair invented by the author, which consisted of an ear trumpet built into a wing chair and connected by tubes to a remote speaking device, such as a perforated plate concealed in a vase in another room. This device, utilizing the principle of acoustic tunnels, was intended for the deaf, but the writer, having a prevision of communication demands, perhaps, declared that it would permit the sending of a message from Downing street or the Horse Guards to the Mansion House in a minute and a half, or communication between St. James Palace and the Houses of Parliament, or "from London to the Queen at Windsor."

This book also described instruments with "caoutchouc bags," the forerunners of rubber bulbs. Included in the collection is the first book written on rhinoplasty, or nose straightening, printed in Venice in 1597. It pictures a strap device, rigidly holding the patient's arm, in grafting skin from the arm to improve the contour of the proboscis.

Pictures in some of the other works show early ideas of anatomical drawing; old surgical instruments and their application, looking to a layman much like the shiny implements in the specialist's office today; cleverly joined internal and external views of the ear, nose and eye, and an ear trumpet 10 feet long, shaped like a cigar. A Berlin book of 1841 pictures an operation to cure stammering by slicing a generous segment from the tongue. There is a volume published in 1600 by Gabriel Fallopius, medical pioneer; one on American Indian sign language and an account of Laura Bridgman, who was born blind, deaf and mute.

COMMENCEMENT BEGINS THURSDAY AT WASHINGTON U.

Degrees Will Be Awarded to 564 Students June 9 and Certificates to 54 Nurses.

Washington University's seventieth commencement exercises will begin Thursday with a buffet supper in McMillan Court given by young women of the junior class for women of the senior class. Degrees are to be awarded to 564 students June 9 and certificates will be presented to 54 graduates of the nursing school.

Candidates for degrees will march on the campus in academic procession next Sunday morning to Graham Memorial Chapel where the baccalaureate sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. Jay T. Stocking, pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational Church.

On the following day seniors and alumni will gather at the chapel at 2:30 o'clock for the presentation of scholarship, fellowships and other awards. This will be preceded by a luncheon on the chapel lawn for seniors, alumni and the presidents of lower classes. The senior class play, written by Dorothy Deibel, will be enacted after the luncheon. At the chapel Jack Conreux, president of the senior class, will present a gift to the university from the class.

The commencement exercises will be held in the field house beginning at 10 o'clock Tuesday, June 9. Dean Shailer Mathews of the Divinity School of the University of Chicago, will be the speaker. His subject is: "The Administration of Optimism."

Members of the Washington University corporation of the faculty and the graduating students will assemble on the campus at 9:30 o'clock that morning for the customary procession in cap and gown to the field house. Chancellor Throop will confer the degrees there.

Other pre-commencement activities include the annual banquet of alumnae of the school of nursing at the Congress Hotel next Saturday night, the banquet for alumni of the law school at the Century Boat Club the following Monday night, a tea for members of the graduating class at the nursing school at 4 o'clock on that afternoon, and a reception in the Women's Building at 9 o'clock that night for members of the faculty, graduating class and alumni.

WAGE RATES HOLD UP BUT ACTUAL EARNINGS ARE LOWER

Industrial Conference Board Survey Shows Increased Rail and Utility Earnings.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 30.—Findings of a seven-year survey of wage conditions in the United States disclosed today by the National Industrial Conference Board, stated there is "little evidence of a widespread reduction in wage rates." The report pointed out, however, that "actual weekly earnings were decidedly lower in 1930 than in 1929."

The board found utilities and railroads provided an exception to 1930 conditions by showing weekly earnings distinctly higher in 1930 than in the preceding year. The report explained the curtailment of hours of those actually at work brought down the earnings in most industries.

"On the whole," the report stated, "the current depression does not appear to have been quite as severe on wages and employment as was the depression of 1921."

The conference board found average hourly earnings in 24 industries in 1930 were the same as in 1929, namely 58.9 cents. The decline of $2.68 or 9.4 per cent in weekly earnings showed clearly the effects of the depression, the report stated.

"The real significance of changes in money earnings," the board pointed out, "lies in the relation between these changes and the cost of living." The indices of real earnings indicated, according to the board's statistics, that hourly earnings were 4 per cent higher than in 1929, but real weekly earnings declined 5.9 per cent in 1930.

N. D. LAUGHLIN, FORMER M. A. C. MANAGER, DIES

Once Well-Known Hotel Man Succumbs at 70—Funeral Tomorrow at Old People's Home.

Funeral services for Nicholas D. Laughlin, once manager of the Missouri Athletic Club and before that manager of the St. James Hotel at Broadway and Walnut street, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock at the home of the Little Sisters of the Poor, 3400 South Grand boulevard, where he had lived for several years. Laughlin, who was about 70 years old, died there Friday.

Mr. Laughlin was well known to an earlier generation of St. Louisans when the Olympic Theater, the Southern Hotel and Tony Faust's restaurant, all in the vicinity of Broadway and Walnut, comprised the center of night life in St. Louis. He was manager of the Missouri Athletic Club several years before the fire there in 1914.

Bethlehem Steel's Battle Over Bonuses

of that character of even of any considerable amount of the common stock."

That the bonus system as administered by Schwab is "too obviously a manifestation of favoritism to such of the defendants as receive bonus payments to be a stimulus to employes not within the inner circle of favored executives."

That the facts about the bonus system were concealed from the stockholders of the numerous companies which the Bethlehem has absorbed, although the basis on which the bonus payments are calculated became enlarged by the acquisition of these other companies.

That the bonus payments "have been and are vastly in excess of the remuneration enjoyed by like officials of competing companies or other industries generally, even in the case of corporations having a larger business than the Bethlehem Steel Corporation."

It may be noted at this point, in connection with the preceding statement, that the United States Steel Corporation, with resources more than twice as great as those of Bethlehem, has never paid bonuses approaching those handed out by Schwab. The highest paid man in the Steel Corporation was the late Elbert H. Gary, chairman and chief executive officer, who in the most prosperous years of the corporation received $500,000 annually.

At the last annual meeting of the Steel Corporation, a report was made to the stockholders from which it appeared that the recipients of bonuses numbered more than 2500 and that no individual received over $71,000 in any one year. The Bethlehem stockholders are contrasting these figures with Grace's $1,000,000 to $1,600,000, and the fact that only about a dozen executives divided the whole Bethlehem pot.

Court Criticises Plan.

The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, to name one other great concern, has a bonus system from which the president, Walter C. Teagle, has excluded himself. This is understood to have yielded to directors who were also active operating officials about $60,000 each in 1929.

The insurrection in the Bethlehem Co., as we have seen, took the form of a proxy fight and also of a court action to recover for the stockholders the amounts paid to Grace and the other beneficiaries "in excess of a fair and reasonable compensation for their services." The protective committee, which started the proxy battle, made common cause with the other protesting stockholders by intervening in the suit.

As it happened, Vice Chancellor Backes of the New Jersey Chancery Court, handed down an opinion on the morning of the day on which the Bethlehem stockholders assembled in Newark for the annual meeting. The opinion, while not final, was a body blow at Schwab and the bonus system. It permitted the vote to be taken on the Schwab immunity resolution, but, pending the determination of the suit on its merits, restrained the corporation from announcing or recording the vote.

The opinion of Vice Chancellor Backes sustained the contention of the petitioners at several important points. He found that "the administration of the bonus system has been sedulously suppressed from the stockholders, the result only coming to their notice recently." He told of the handicaps under which the complainants had labored in getting their case before the other stockholders, and added:

"Those of the stockholders who have given proxies to the directors —signed on the faith of the management, and without knowledge of the real things at stake in this suit. The informing circular letter to them (from the management) is barren of explanation of the integrity of the bonus and of the charges of which its integrity stands challenged."

Battle of Proxies.

Referred to the contest between Schwab and the protesting group, he said:

"It will be a battle of proxies, not of wits. It is a foregone conclusion that if the management has a majority, the resolution will be passed. Explanation will be idle, frivolous, falling upon ears not allowed to hear and minds not permitted to judge; upon automatons, whose principals are uninformed of their own injury, if the charges of the bill be well founded."

It was the attitude of the defendants (the management), said the Court, that he resolution in some manner would defeat the complainants' right to relief or obstruct their remedy. "Undoubtedly," the opinion continued, "they (the defendants) hope for some advantage that threatens the rights of the complainants to their injury."

The Court intervened, therefore, "to prevent the perpetration of the colorable resolution as a shield or screen from responsibility for the charges laid in the bill, and granted an injunction against the corporate adoption of the resolution.

With this opinion before them, the stockholders met at Newark, where the company has offices, on April 14 last. Some 500 persons were present. Grace presided as chairman and the star performer was Schwab. He made a long speech, filling the greater part of the bulky record of the meeting. He was at his histrionic best—and that best, as those who have heard Schwab before congressional committees at Washington will testify, is very good indeed.

"For the first time in 50 years of active life in the administration of great business," said Schwab, "have I been required to make any explanation of my conduct."

Defense of Schwab.

(Had Mr. Schwab forgotten, perhaps, that after the war the Government sued a Bethlehem subsidiary for $15,000,000 on the ground that it took "unreasonable and unconscionable" profits on shipbuilding contracts, and that Mr. Schwab wept openly at a hearing as he told of his "sacrifices, physical and financial, for this great Government of ours?" The Government's suit, which the company attacked with counter claims, is still pending).

"You must forgive my agitation," he continued, addressing the Bethlehem stockholders, "because this is the work of a lifetime. But your generous response to my appearance heartens me to go on and to express to you everything that is in my heart."

He said he was the author of the bonus system and fully responsible for it. He called it "compensation on an incentive basis."

As to the bonuses awarded Grace and the other executives, Schwab continued:

"The amounts paid to them were no larger than was necessary to insure their retention by the corporation and above all their wholehearted and undivided attention to its affairs."

It occurred to some of the protesting stockholders—and they said so when their turn came—that it was a poor compliment to Grace to say that his complete loyalty could only be had at the price of $1,000,000 to $1,600,000 a year.

One of the prime objections to the Bethlehem bonus system, aside from those already mentioned, is that the amount of the bonus payments (which may go as high as 8 per cent) is calculated on net earnings before deducting depreciation.

Mr. Schwab was asked about this. He explained:

"If the bonus payments were calculated only after depreciation, it is clear that the incentive of the executives would be to keep the depreciation as low as possible, in order that the bonus payments might be the greater. Our system induces the officers of the corporation to make as large charges for depreciation as is consistent with the good conduct of business."

Whittling Down Taxes.

He explained, further, that by depreciation charge-offs, the corporation had saved vast amounts that it would otherwise have had to pay in taxes.

"Today," he elaborated, "whatever is charged off for depreciation reduces to that extent the net income of the corporation subject to Federal income taxes and results in a saving of Federal taxes of $125,000 in cash for every million dollars of depreciation.

"Now you must see that every officer must endeavor in every way to get as liberal a depreciation as he can. That was the primary purpose of putting that into the bonus system."

What Schwab said here, though of course he did not put it in that way, was that he had to pay Mr. Grace and the others, at the expense of the stockholders, to make sure they would do the right thing by the company as against Uncle Sam.

Again, Schwab urged that there was no relation between compensation to executives and the payment of dividends to stockholders. He said that when it appeared that the corporation would suffer a loss, there would be, without the bonuses, "no incentive whatever to the officials to make a special effort to prevent loss or to make the loss as small as possible, because, in either of such cases, they would receive no compensation whatever by way of bonus for such effort."

Calls Bonus "an Incentive."

Replying to the argument that bonuses should not be paid in years when the stockholders got no dividends, Schwab said that the "incentive" under such an arrangement would be for the executives to refrain from making necessary improvements or to raise money by borrowing, in order that dividends might be continued.

He appealed to the stockholders to have faith in "this old steelmaster of yours, who has had 51 years in the steel industry."

"This is the first time I have met this sort of criticism," he said. "It has taken 10 years off my life."

"Boys, I want you to be a happy family. I want you to encourage. I want you to approve. I want you to go along with me and pat me on the back and say, 'Good boy! Do better the next time!' That is the way I do. People say, why do I boost Grace and the rest of them? Because they work all the better for my doing it. I put them on a pedestal that they have to work damned hard to keep up to. . . .

"I have been the highest paid man in the United States for my services for many years—sums that would stagger you."

But, he went on, from Bethlehem he had received an average income of only $86,000 a year, with never a penny of bonus.

The Chairman's Salary.

(Figures presented at the meeting showed that from 1921 to 1929 Schwab's salary was $150,000 a year. In 1930 the board voted him $250,000.)

"The crowning star in a diadem of long steel management," continued Schwab, "is the approval of the people associated with you. It is not the millions that have been made, and it is not the vast fortunes piled up or the aggregations of works that mark the success of a man—not from my point of view. I want the good approval of my stockholders, as, thank God, I have had the good approval of the people of the United States in many trying circumstances.

"I am 70 years old now. You won't see the old man many years before you." And so on.

But a good many of Schwab's hearers remained cold.

"There is no man in the steel industry today," said H. F. Holthusen for the protesting group, "who needs the incentive of $1,600,000 a year. I don't think that Mr. Grace could stand on his feet today and say that if he had received substantially less he would not have given his best services to the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

"My concept is that corporations truly belong to their shareholders."

Charging that the bonus system had been kept secret from the stockholders, that it had never been reflected in Schwab's annual statements, Holthusen continued:

"I appreciate all his (Schwab's) service, his general utility to the nation, and all that. It is an interesting story, covered with reminiscences of the old steel days—but they do not bear on the subject."

View of Stockholder.

William H. Gilman of Watertown, N. Y., spoke bluntly:

"The President of the United States gets $75,000 a year. Mr. Grace has been drawing an average of $814,992, or 11 times the President's salary. I think you are doing your friend a great injustice when you say that is the only means by which you can get the best results out of his labor.

"It is wrong in principle, it is outrageous in practice, it is contrary to justice to take this money out of these stockholders and put it into the laps of a few men.

"When the company is earning large money, sometimes $15 a share, and yet we are denied a dividend, we feel ugly about it.

"If Congress should give the President $814,000 a year there would be a revolution. Can you wonder that there is almost a revolution on the part of the stockholders of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation?"

Schwab objected to the comparison of Grace's salary with the President's.

"I don't mind saying," he said, "that I would give five times $75,000 a year and take no salary to be President of the United States. I don't mind saying that I myself had active control of more men during the war than any other man except Gen. Pershing—something over a million men. I got $1 a year and felt good in getting it." (He was referring to his war service as Director-General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.)

Loyalty's High Price.

Still the insurgents were unimpressed. "I have difficulty," spoke up one, "in seeing the necessity of paying one man $800,000 a year to keep him loyal. That is the milk in the cocoanut."

Schwab launched upon a eulogy of Grace: "Now here is a boy that I took out of the mill as a crane man 25 years ago. He is the leader, executively, of the steel industry of the United States today. Mr. Grace would disdain a present. This (the bonus) is a part of his legitimate income."

But, the minority group wanted to know why did Mr. Schwab keep the bonus system a secret from the stockholders? They came back repeatedly to that point.

Schwab's answer was not wholly responsive. The secrecy, he said, was secrecy from one another among the bonus recipients. None of them knew what the others were getting. If the amounts had not been kept secret there would have been jealousy in the executive offices. Morale would have suffered.

One of the minority said he had only been a stockholder since 1923, and he couldn't understand why he should be asked to ratify acts of the chairman of the board prior to that date. Why had not the matter of the bonuses been presented to the stockholders year by year?

"I am not a lawyer," said Mr. Schwab, "and I do not know about those things." He had felt, he added, that the "damn company" belonged to him, and he had gone ahead and done the best he could.

Authority for Bonus.

The vote on the ratification resolution was taken, and the Schwab forces, with their superior proxy strength, won. Owing, however, to the decision of the New Jersey Chancery Court that morning, forbidding the vote to be made of record, they did not thereby secure the immunity bath they had sought.

The protective committee of stockholders has received numerous letters expressing support of its effort to end the bonus system and obtain reparation on account of the bonuses already paid. Among the letters have been a score from Bethlehem employes, at Johnstown, Lackawanna, Bethlehem and other places where the plants of the company are situated, saying that coercion was used among employes to obtain proxies to be voted for the Schwab bonus system.

It has been brought out that the bonus system is administered solely by Schwab as chairman of the board. He it is who decides what employes shall benefit, and how much each shall receive. Schwab and his fellow directors rely for their authority on a by-law of the corporation, adopted in 1918, which permits executive bonuses to be given up to "8 per cent of the consolidated net earnings after deducting all fixed charges and an amount equal to the annual dividends upon preferred stocks outstanding, but before deducting depreciation."

The complainants contend that this by-law has not only not been administered with the fair discretion that the stockholders have a right to expect, but has actually been exceeded and violated. They point out that Schwab has construed "depreciation" to inlude also "depletion and absolescence," which are large items in the steel industry. The write-offs of the corporation for "depreciation, deple-tion and absolescence" have aggregated about $200,000,000. It is contended that if this item were broken down, it would show at least as much for depletion and obsolescence as for depreciation. On this assumption, the by-law has been exceeded to the extent of 8 per cent of $100,000,000, or $8,000,000.

Vicious Circle Created.

It is pointed out, moreover, that the base on which the bonuses are calculated has been expanded greatly by the acquisition of competitors, and that the increase of income effected in this way has only a "superficial and fictitious likeness," to an increase brought about by greater operating efficiency.

"Such aquisitions," charges the bill of complaint in the New Jersey court," not requiring the consent of the stockholders of the defendant corporation, were in fact made by its directors and managing officials without consulting the stockholders and were made with the object in view of producing an increase in the amounts of the bonus payments, but without disclosure to the stockholders that such would be the effect."

Attention is called also to a vicious circle created by the bonuses. Schwab said at the annual meeting that it was part of his understanding with the bonus recipients that their bonuses should be invested in Bethlehem common stock. If it was so invested, then it follows that $6,800,000 of bonuses, which were paid during the four recent years when common dividends were passed were used by Grace and the other beneficiaries for the purchase from their fellow stockholders of common stock whose market value had been adversely affected by the non-payment of dividends. That is to say, the bonus system carries with it the potentiality of large profits to the bonus recipients, in addition to their bonuses, through the purchase of stock at depressed prices and its sale after the value has been increased by the resumption of dividends.

How the bonus payments cut into earnings could be shown year by year, but one example must suffice. The total bonus payments in 1925, one of the years in which the common stockholders received no dividends, were $1,750,000, calculated as 7.66 per cent of the earnings, which amounted (before allowance for depreciation, obsolescence and depletion) to $25,863,180. The allowance for these items, according to the annual report of the company, was $12,004,984, leaving a net income for the year of $13,858,196. Of this net income the bonus payments constituted nearly 13 per cent.

Summing it all up, the complainants charge that Schwab's administration of his "incentive" bonus system is "extravagant, improvident, a waste of the income and assets of the corporation and a fraud upon the stockholders," for the benefit of a small inner circle of executives—"Charlie's boys." They want—these insurgents—something more from Mr. Schwab than his smiles and his tears.

Bobby Jones Gives Advice As To How To Play in Wind

By Bobby Jones,

There is probably no shot in the game that bothers the average golfer so much as any shot into a head wind where distance is of importance. Of all the hazards likely to be encountered on a golf course, wind is the most formidable for nine-tenths of the people who play the game, because of its disturbing effect upon the mind. It is simply impossible, and understandably so, for an inexperienced player to maintain his mental equilibrium in the face of a strong gale.

JONES.

There are two things which it is most natural to do in this situation; one to press the shot in order to make up the distance which the wind takes away, and the other to try to hit the ball low so that it will escape the effect of the wind. The first of these, pressing, is, of course, fatal. The second is all right for the expert, but is usually bad for the ordinary player because he does not know how to accomplish his aim.

Now, let's just stop and look at the thing for a moment. There is no way for me or anyone else to tell a man how he can hit a golf ball as far against the wind as he can with it, or in calm air; it simply cannot be done. So let's not consider that as a possibility. If we suppose that a certain player, at his ultimate, can reach a 400-yard hole in two shots when there is no wind, then, if the wind against him takes 10 yards off each shot, his limit will be reduced to 380 yards, and the 400-yard hole will be beyond his reach. Most likely if the hole actually measured 20 yards more than his limit, in calm air, he would not worry about reaching it. Then let him regard the wind as adding just so many yards to the hole.

Direction Important.

I prefer to regard the wind hazard in just this way—to treat it as part of the golf course—and to direct my efforts toward doing the best I can with respect to it. The main thing I think about is holding the ball on line. I try to get as much distance as I possibly can with safety, but I never try to do more than I can. Direction is always of the first importance, and since an opposing wind magnifies errors in striking it allows fewer liberties than could be taken at any other time.

I think the best advice, when hitting a shot into a breeze, is to take things even a bit more quietly than usual, the very opposite of pressing. Primarily, of course, the reason for this is to give better direction, but it will be found also, surprisingly perhaps, that in this way the actual loss of distance will be lessened.

It is a most natural thought that a very low drive flies best into a breeze. As a matter of fact there is one thing which is of far more importance than elevation, and that is the character of the flight of the ball. Those who yield to the inclination to hit the ball sharply down into a wind, soon discover that this kind of a stroke does not actually keep the shot low. It merely starts it out close to the ground and when it travels a distance it begins to rise on the wind, and when it drops it comes straight down. It has no ability whatever to bore its way along; it is simply at the mercy of even a light breeze.

Sweeping Blow Most Effective.

Sometime when the opportunity comes, stand directly behind one of the best pros when he is hitting a drive against the wind and watch the flight of the ball. You will see the ball come up, and it may even go comparatively high, but you will notice that it has no abrupt rise just before it drops. The ball will almost seem to be looping over in the air and when it strikes the ground it will be still going.

This sort of a flight is not accomplished by hitting the ball down. The best stroke is the one which takes the ball almost squarely in the back, while the clubhead is moving just about parallel to the the ground. It applies only a very little backspin to the ball, and the more it can be made a sweep instead of a sharp hit the better.

I suspect that some of those who are finding it hard to accept the new standard ball are being troubled in much the same way as they were with the old ball in driving against the wind. The soaring proclivities of the larger ball have been so greatly exaggerated that the duffer thinks that he must press for distance and also try to keep the ball down—just exactly the two ideas he has when driving into a wind. One of these days, when he puts aside his prejudices, and goes on to play the new ball sanely and quietly as he did the others we have had, he will find that he has been making a lot of trouble for himself over nothing.

Interpark Net Title Tourney To Start Today

Play in the men's and women's divisions of the Municipal Inter-Park Tennis League will start today if the weather permits, on municipal courts throughout the city. There are 79 entries in the men's group and 41 in the women's.

The league schedule differs from last ytar, in that all 12 teams are now listed in one group, whereas last year there were two divisions, north and south.

Today's schedule: Men's division —Concordia at Carondelet; Marquette at Sublette; Kingshighway at Oakland; Sherman at Forest; St. Louis at Fairground; Baden at O'Fallon. Women's division—Carondelet at Concordia; Marquette at Sublette; Oakland at Kingshighway; Forest at Sherman; Fairground at St. Louis; Baden at O'Fallon.

Carondelet Park won both the men's and women's championships last year in the Southern Division, and O'Fallon was victor in the Northern Division. In the play-off, O'Fallon defeated Carondelet for the championship.

Leading players among the men this year will include Ted Drewes, Robert Norton and William Bell, O'Fallon; Charles Sigoloff, Forest Park; Sam Schneider, Kingshighway. Among the top women contestants will be Mrs. Virginia Baer Ducker, Ann Lindemann and Wilma Benson, O'Fallon; Mercedna Weiss, Rose Adler and Mrs. Dietz-Felbinger, Forest Park; Bernadine Lutz, Frances Jacobson and Clara Stolz Groerich, Carondelet, and Beatrice Slater, Sherman Park.

MISSOURI U. STAR TO PITCH FOR WELLSTON IN U. CITY CONTEST

The Wellston Chamber of Commerce team, leaders in the University City Muny League, should be extended in keeping their record of no defeats intact today, when they meet the strengthened St. John Business Men's Club at Heman Park in University City.

The management of the St. Johns club has promised to send Norman Wagner, star University of Missouri pitcher, to the mound. Wagner, who last year hurled for the United team in the U. City League, has just finished pitching Missouri University into the Big Six conference championship and should make it interesting for the league leaders.

The game will start at 2:30 o'clock on diamond No. 1.

The Millers meet the Knapps in the other league game on diamond No. 2. The Millers have lost their first two games by lop-sided scores but with practically an entire new team, promise to give the second place Knapp a hard fight.

Admission Prices To Be Reduced for Amateur Boxing

Despite the fact that two interesting boxing programs have been held at the Winter Garden recently under the auspices of the Winter Garden A. C. of which Earl Reflow, manager of the building, is head, both of them have proved costly to the sponsors.

Various reasons have been advanced for the failure of the shows to attract customers but the prevailing opinion was that the prices were too high, so Reflow has decided to reduce prices for the show which he plans for June 9 to 50 cents, 75 cents and $1.

It is likely that the card will have a welterweight contest between Herbie Hahn of the Winter Garden A. C. and Nathan Crystal, East St. Louis, in the headliner. Hahn made a fine showing at the recent National A. A. U. tournament in New York while Crystal has impressed in his two recent victories of Chicago and Cleveland amateurs.

Reflow, through Robert L. Probst, president of the Western A. A. U., is negotiating with the A. A. U. in New York with a view to sending the Italian team of amateurs now in this country here for a tournament. The outcome of the negotiations will be known shortly.

The Winter Garden is a great spot for boxing and its operators claim that it can be cooled during warm weather. It's surely cold enough during the winter.

LEWIS-LONDOS BOUT OK WITH COMMISSION

Seneca C. Taylor, Missouri Athletic Commissioner for the St. Louis district, has just returned from a trip to Jefferson City for a meeting of the commission at which the subject of a wrestling match between Jim Londos and Ed Lewis was discussed and a resolution adopted declaring that the Missouri commission "would like to see" such a match but did not feel that it was its duty to either force such a contest or promote it.

Harry Davis, Kansas City Commissioner, it is understood, is friendly to the Lewis faction of wrestlers while Taylor leans toward the Londos group of which Tom Packs, local promoter, is an important member.

Lewis recently challenged Londos to a match and agreed to divide the profits with the Kansas City American Legion.

Wesley Senn of Little Rock and Sammy Offerman, principals in the 10-round main event of a professional fight card at the Battery A Arena tomorrow night, together with most of the boxers in the supporting attractions, went through stiff workouts at the National Gymnasium yesterday afternoon.

Senn, who reported to Matchmaker Jack Tippett yesterday morning, boxed three rounds with Tommy Wilson, who will be Lou Terry's opponent on the Monday night card. Senn, who is but 20 years of age, says he has participated in 61 fights during his professional career and has won a majority of them. The most noteworthy battle that he has won of late was his eight-round knockout of Johnny Franks, who has fought in St. Louis several times. Between his fights, Senn has been spending much time in the outdoors recently and looks to be in good condition.

Offerman also went through three rounds of sparring. Sammy has been working hard all week.

Lou Terry went through a drill with Salvina Fabia, the Chicago Filipino, who meets Frankie Doxey in a four-round bout which will open the card. Since his last St. Louis appearance, Terry has engaged in four out-of-town bouts and won all of them.

Eddie Terry will meet Tommy Bambrough of Springfield in one of the six-round supporting attractions.

The Battery card is unusual inasmuch as three Terrys will be in action. In addition to Lou and Eddie, there will appear in another six-rounder, Peewee Terry, the brother of Eddie, Peewee will meet Dave Barry of Springfield.

Bambrough and Barry, the opponents of the Terrys, notified Tippett that they would arrive in St. Louis this morning.

In addition to the 34 rounds of boxing, there will be a battle royal featuring five Negro fighters.

CENTRAL ROWING CLUB WILL CELEBRATE 40TH ANNIVERSARY, JUNE 14

The Central Rowing Club, located at the foot of Angelica street, will celebrate its fortieth anniversary, Sunday, June 14, by a flag-raising ceremony, by christening of the club's new eight-oared shell, and by sponsoring a series of races in which other St. Louis crews will compete. Judge Anthony F. Ittner will be the principal speaker at the flag raising.

AMERICAN ENTRANTS ARE WANTED FOR BOAT RACES IN ENGLAND

LONDON, May 30. — American competitors are wanted for an international motorboat meeting which is being organized to take place on the River Thames the end of July.

Star motorboat pilots from Italy, Germany, France and Great Britain are expected to compete and the Sussez Motor Yacht Club, which is promoting the race, has issued on appeal for American competitors.

GRAVOIS RECREATIONS ROLL INTO 6TH PLACE IN WOMEN'S PIN EVENT

The Gravois Recreations of St. Louis rolled into sixth place last night in the interstate women's bowling tournament here.

It was the only change among the leaders. Five Kansas City teams bowled, but none of them finished among the leaders. Their scores: Woody Drugs, 2323; Harveys Market Square, 2254; Pickwick-Greyhounds, 2249; Women's Benefit Association, 2193; Palace Alleys, 2064.

Mrs. Myrtle Schulte, world's individual and all-events champion, bowling with the Martin Dreit team of St. Louis, shot 534. The team score was 2339.

CALIFORNIA U. COACH GLOOMY OVER CREW'S POUGHKEEPSIE CHANCES

BERKELEY, Cal., May 30. — To win the national regatta at Poughkeepsie this year a crew will have to beat the best field in 10 years, in the opinion of Ky Ebright, coach of the California Golden Bears. Normally pessimistic, Ebright says California can hardly expect to place and that "it is just foolishness" to think that California, beaten by Washington, will be the runner up.

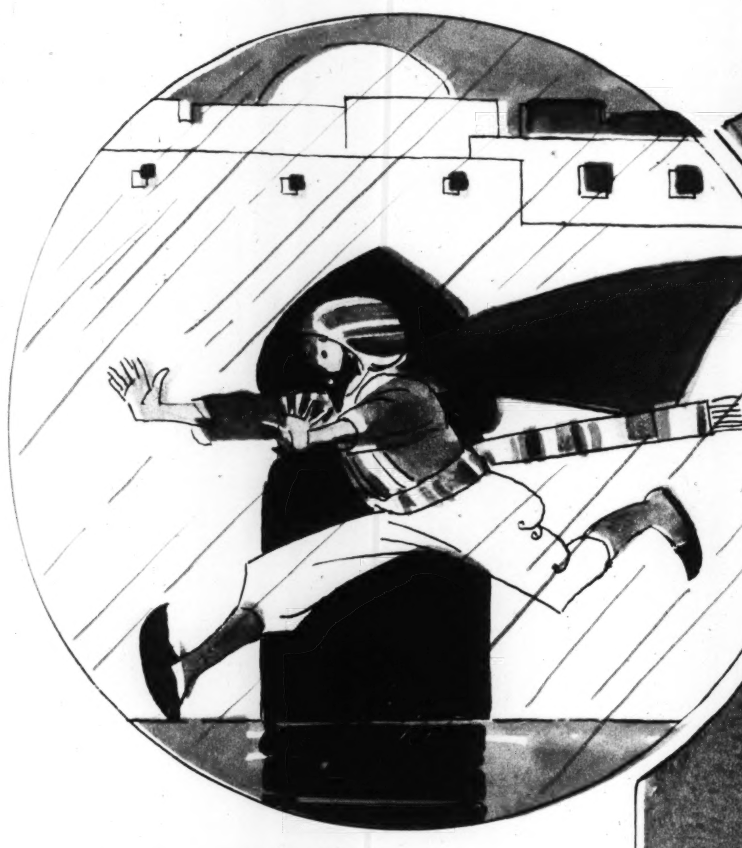
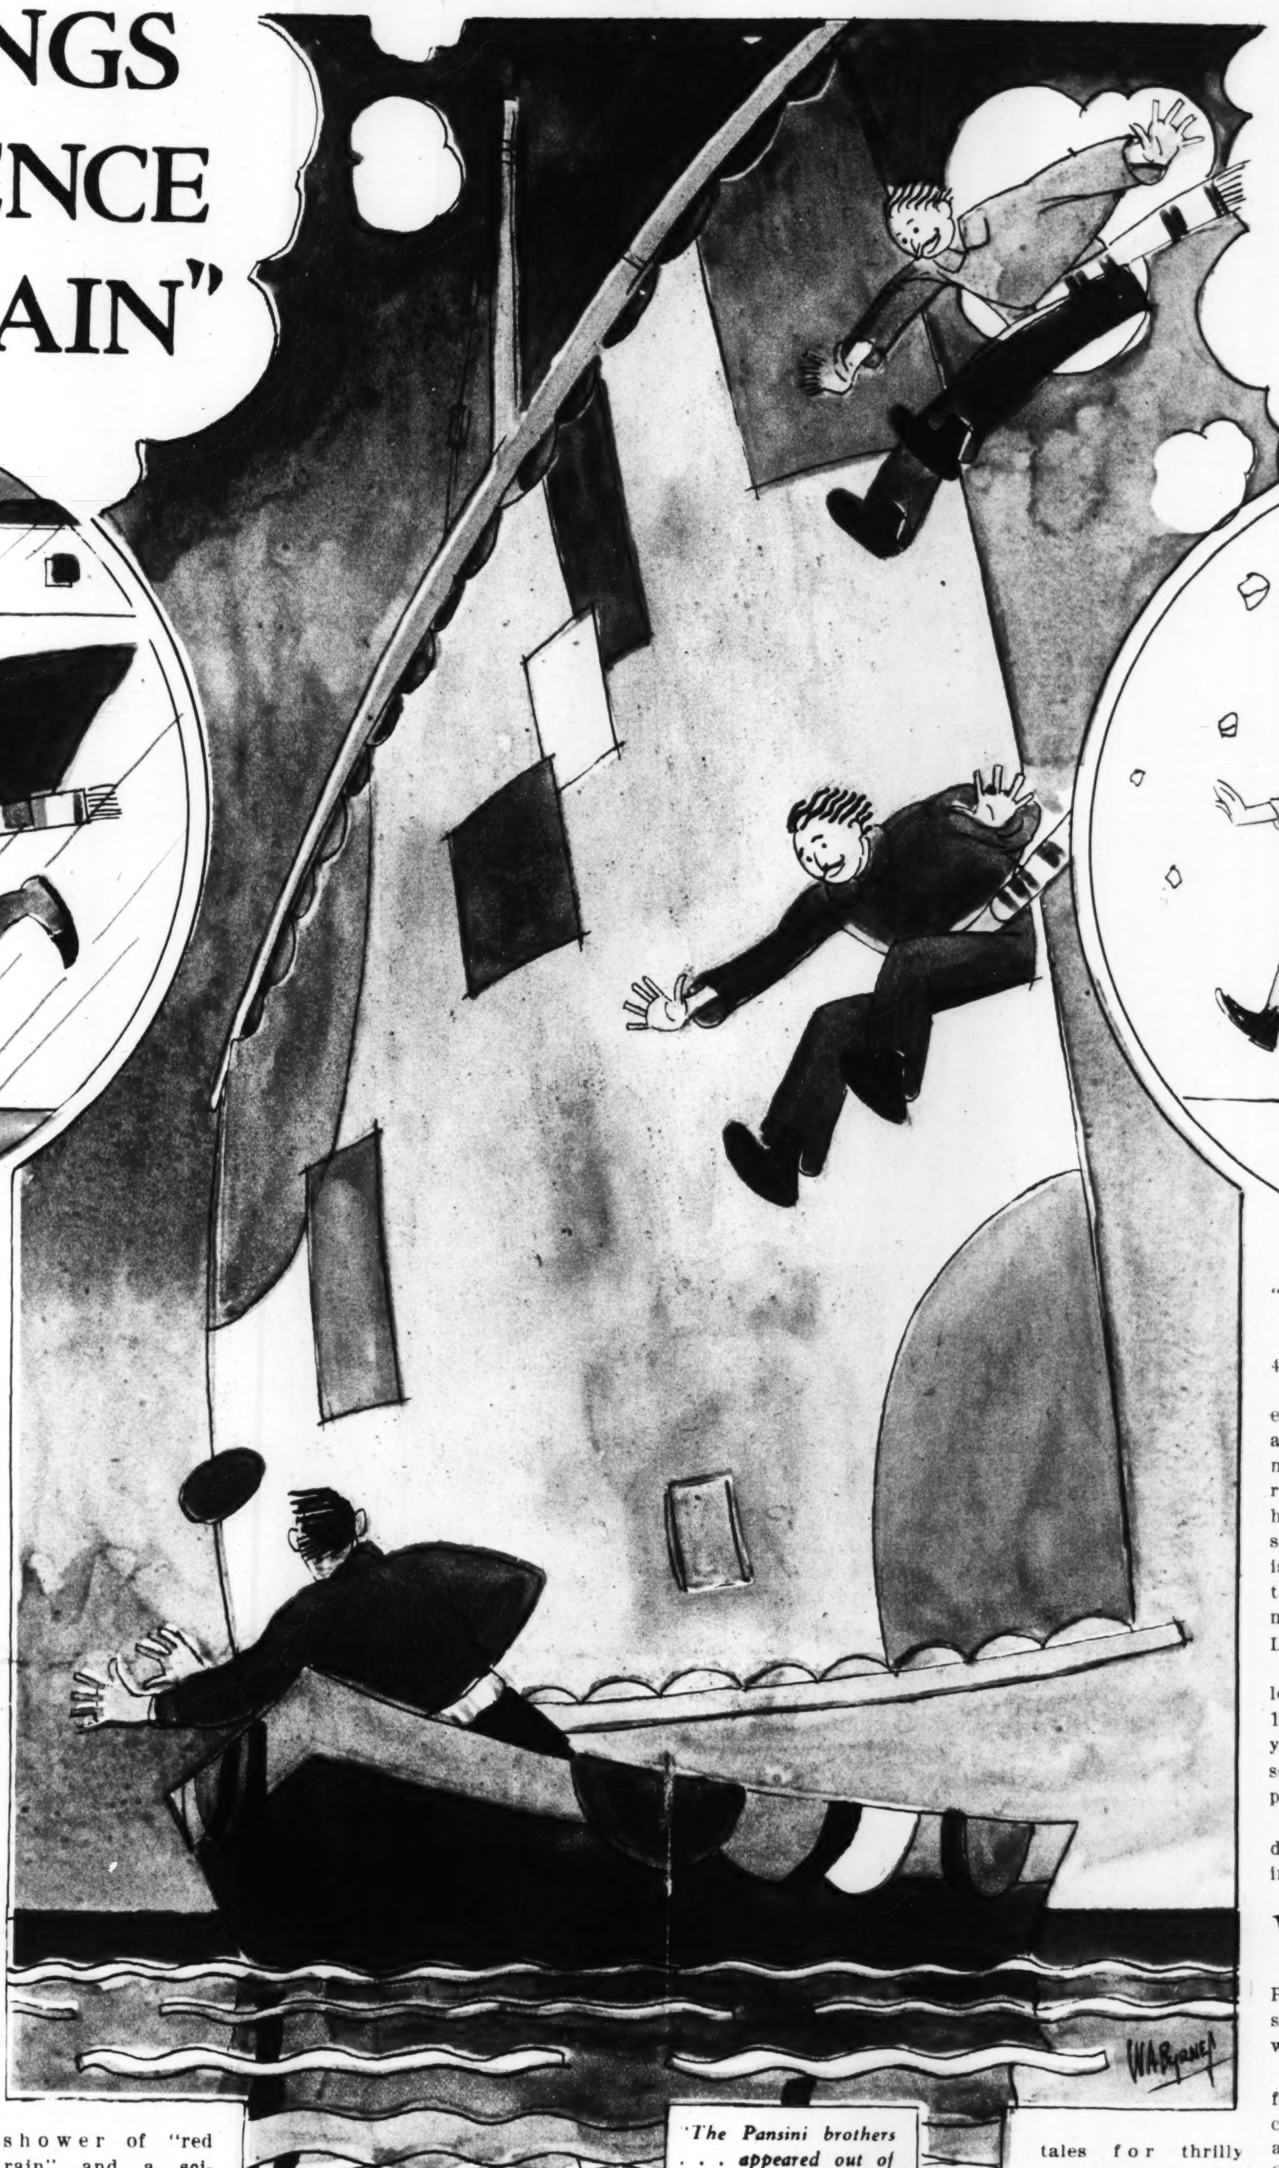
70,000 THINGS THAT "SCIENCE CAN'T EXPLAIN"

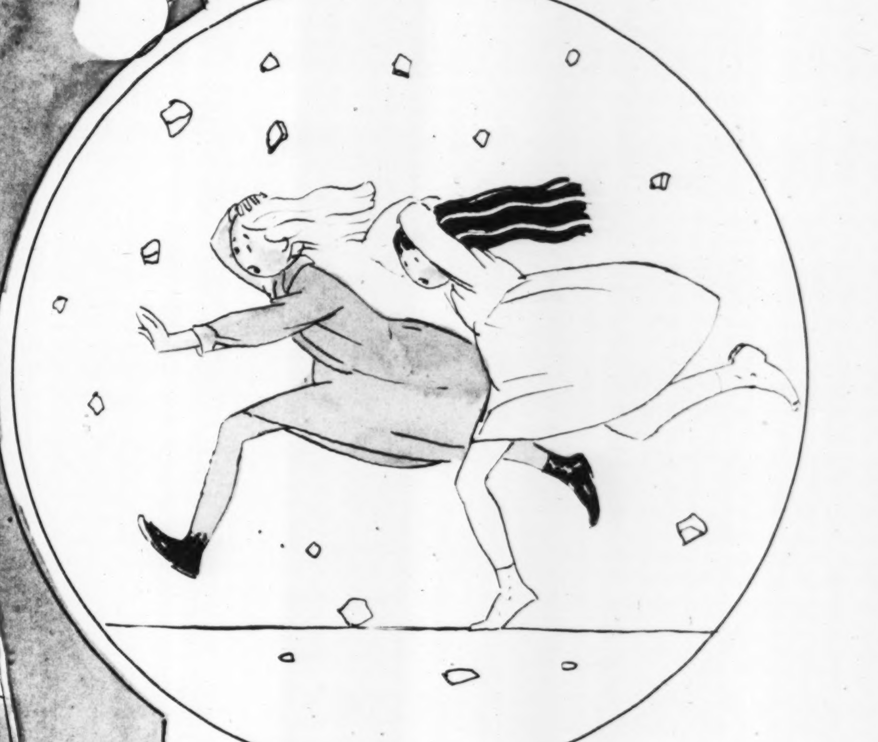
Charles Fort of New York —a Specialist in "Miracles"—Has Assembled Evidence to Show That Everything From Red Rain to a Cow That Gave Birth to Sheep Has Happened in This World.



"A blood red shower fell in Morocco."



"The Pansini brothers . . . appeared out of nowhere in a Mediterranean harbor and plumped down on a fishing boat."



"Stones fell around two little girls who were picking leaves from the ground near Clavaux, France."

By JACK ALEXANDER

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

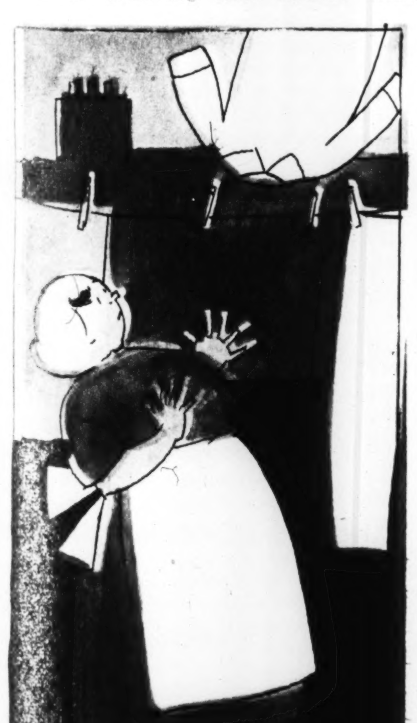
IF Charles Fort of New York is right (and, mind you, he doesn't say he is), life holds far more prospects of romantic adventure than Stevenson ever visioned.

One may, for instance, on the way home in the fog, suddenly be yanked to another planet. Or in broad daylight. Or wake just before sunrise and find a tufted savage kneeling beside one's bed, the caked mud of Africa still soft on his bare feet.

All this, please observe, is contrary to science and one hoots. Just so, says Mr. Fort; believe everything the scientists say. Science is the religion of the moderns and the scientists are medicine men. Moderns thumb their noses at the old orders but take everything the scientists say, ex cathedra. This is absurd, says Mr. Fort, who collects notes on things scientists have been unable to explain. He has 70,000 such notes in his files. In his own quiet way, Mr. Fort is becoming the gadfly, the enfant terrible (French for pain in the neck) of science. Men of science have been known to skim through his latest book, "Lo!" and hurl it across the laboratory. A well-known British scientific journalist tossed it into the wastebasket with the remark that "the man who wrote that must have been drunk." H. L. Mencken said "Poppycock!"

Yet a professor at Columbia University, whose name is known throughout the civilized world, is secretly a Fortean. Ben Hecht claims the honor of being the first follower of Charles Fort, and claims it seriously. Theodore Dreiser waxes indignant if anyone pokes fun at Fortean ideas. It isn't safe to sneer at Dreiser, as Sinclair Lewis will tell you.

Booth Tarkington, Burton Rascoe, Edgar Lee Masters, John Cowper Powys and Tiffany Thayer do not sneer when Dreiser plugs for Forteanism, because they are all members of the Fortean Society, which was organized to promote Charles Fort's idea. Ben de Casseres once castigated a scientist at great length, in an article, for poking fun. Harry Elmer Barnes is a Fortean to the extent of believing that science really ought to try to explain some of the phenomena Mr. Fort has collected.



Clothes were taken from a clothesline and led off into space."

It is an amazing list. Included are 294 instances of living things having been showered from the sky—toads, frogs, periwinkles, crabs, worms, fish, lizards. Objects like coffins, nails and stones have dropped out of the sky, as have lakes of water. Animals of an unearthly species have been found. Sailors have seen sea serpents. Wild beasts have been discovered in lands thousands of miles away from their natural habitats. Mice have appeared suddenly in droves. Human beings have disappeared like mist, before the eyes of others. In one place there was a shower of "red rain" and a scientist said it was blood. The moon has turned green, the sun red. Black rain has fallen.

Science, says Mr. Fort, has blandly turned its back on all these, except in a few cases where it has explained them with fantastic statements. It had nothing to say, for instance, about Benjamin Bathurst, who, in the presence of his valet and secretary, walked around to the other side of his horse in Perleberg, Germany, and vanished. Or of the odd Pansini brothers (according to the Annals of Psychic Science) who slipped out of sight in Ruvo, Italy, in 1901, and appeared in Malfatti, 30 miles away, half an hour later; or of the neat trick the brothers pulled in appearing out of nowhere in a Mediterranean harbor and plumping down in a fishing boat, much to the fisherman's consternation. Or of the disappearance in 1910 in Central Park of Dorothy Arnold and the simultaneous appearance on a nearby park lake of a black swan.

The whole business has tended to make Mr. Fort a thorough skeptic. He disbelieves what the astronomers say about the distance between stars and "expresses" or "accepts" (he doesn't "believe" anything) that perhaps the stars are fairly close to the earth; that there is a force, which he calls teleportation, by which things may be transported from one part of the earth to another or from planet to planet; that this may explain the disappearance of persons and ships which have been lost without trace like the collier Cyclops; that the "bowl of heaven" is actually a shell and the earth stationary.

Charles Fort.

One talks to the man and reads his books and emerges with a composite picture of Jules Verne, Leonardo da Vinci and Professor Lucifer Butts. Charles Fort is no ignoramus. He is well educated and bears the marks of an unusual culture. Yet his works are outlandish. While a newspaper man in New York, writing weird imaginative tales for thrilly magazines, he became interested in weird things happening in the world. Having a small fortune, he traveled the world collecting strange data. For six years he almost lived in the British Museum. He combed French scientific journals. He devoted, and still devotes, all his time to his hobby.

Far up in the Bronx, Charles Fort lives in a simple third-floor flat. It is kept in speckless order by his wife, a quiet woman, who flees at the approach of reporters. Nothing about the living room to indicate its lord "accepts" that people on other planets are chucking missiles at us on earth, and that we may some time be week-ending on Orion.

He shows the visitor his files, long, black boxes about the size of a player piano roll box, filled with little slips of paper. Sources, such as "Comptes Rendus," organ of the French Academy of Sciences, other scientific publications and newspapers are noted on each slip.

Here, indeed, is a collection of notes that would bewilder the author of "Arabian Nights," had there been one author. A few of Forte's notes may as well be listed.

George C. Stoker, a writer upon geological subjects, was driving through Newark Valley, one of the largest desert expanses in Nevada, when, in the midst of a thunderstorm, he was pelted with a shower of frogs.

The northern part of London, on August 17, 1921, was crawling with thousands of little frogs that fell during a storm.

Red worms, from one to four inches long, streaked like scarlet ribbons through a snowfall at Halmstead, Sweden, January 3, 1924, according to the London Evening Standard.

Brown worms, of a species that were unknown to the locality, fell from the sky near Clifton, Indiana, February 4, 1892. Scarlet worms fell in Massachusetts 10 days later.

Acres along a road near Worcester, England, were covered with crawling periwinkles and crabs when inhabitants awoke on May 28, 1881. Local explainers said a fishmonger and his helpers must have dumped them. Mr. Fort remarks that periwinkles and crabs were bringing unusually high prices at the time and wonders why a fishmonger should waste money in such prodigal fashion. Worcester is 50 miles from the sea. On the following June 4, in a thunderstorm, tons of perwinkles fell, covering a square mile in the same locality, according to a correspondent of Land And Water.

Stones fell around two little girls who were picking leaves from the ground near Clavaux, France, January 13, 1843, according to a dispatch to the London Times. Two young farmers, hoeing in the field near Trenton, New Jersey, June 22, 1884, ran for shelter when stones began dropping from the sky.

Crowds assembled to watch the shower and the amateur detectives of the neghborhood were stumped. In both these instances the stones fell with astonishing slowness.

WATER seems to have had a queer habit of falling from a point directly above trees. Instances are noted in Stillwater, Oklahoma, and Brownsville, Pennsylvania. Agricultural experts have attributed the shower to the presence of insects. If this surmise be true, writes Mr. Fort, they must be torrential bugs. But——

The Charleston News and Courier reports instances of falls of water upon a spot 10 feet square, with the sky clear. The same thing happened in an area of 26 square feet at Dawson, Georgia, in 1886. The New York Sun of October 24, 1886, records that for 14 days water has been falling from a cloudless sky in Chesterfield County, South Carolina. Similar instances are recorded in the Monthly Weather Review, October, 1886.

The same review tells of three showers of hot stones in Charleston, September 4, 1886, and attributes them to practical jokers. Mr. Fort states that this was a few days after an earthquake had desolated Charleston and wonders aloud if the most hardened practical joker could detach himself from the sad scene of wreckage and funerals long enough to heat stones and shower them upon fellow sufferers.

The case of Mr. D. Neaves, chemist, of Roodeport, South Africa, is interesting. His house was being showered with stones, and after four days Mr. Neaves put the police on watch. Suspicion fastened on the maid, a Hottentot. The police led her to the garden, where stones fell vertically about her. After a few days it was announced the maid conspired with a friend to hide in an outhouse and throw the rocks. Mr. Fort sniffs politely and casts significant glances at the well-known police method of getting people to confess.

More distressing even than the plight of Mr. D. Neaves was that of Mr. W. G. Grottendieck, resident of Dortrecht, Sumatra, who, early one morning in September, 1903, according to the Journal of the Society for Psychical Research, was

"The northern part of London was crawling with thousands of little frogs that fell during a storm."

CHASING the GHOSTS OUT of the VALENTINO HOME

Falcon Lair's Weird Illuminations and Unearthly Sounds Are Discovered by Harry Carey to Be the Work of an Enterprising Caretaker and Such Homely Creatures as Bats.

Falcon Lair.

Harry Carey, his wife and children.

The late Rudolph Valentino.

Carey on the hunt.

By A. L. WOOLDRIDGE

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

HOLLYWOOD, California.

NOBODY wants to hobnob with a ghost. Principally because nobody knows exactly what a ghost is. Mediums are able to get in communication with departed spirits, they say, but spirits disclose their identity. Which makes them better—or worse—companions than ghosts.

Falcon Lair, former home of the late Rudolph Valentino, in the hills back of Hollywood, appears to have had both. There have been ghosts flitting mysteriously about in the deserted mountain-side mansion, according to stories circulated the past four years. And there have been spirits, too. A caretaker, who is accredited with having been an accomplished medium or a clever electrician, is believed to have brought the spirits in. Now he has gone, leaving behind him a mysterious cabinet and a net-work of carefully concealed wires which indicate that a very clever hoax has been worked upon credulous persons who sought to commune with Valentino's spirit in the astral world.

The palatial residence of the former screen idol stands at the end of Benedict Canyon in Beverly Hills and is reached by a tortuous road up the mountainside. The house, with its furnishings, is said to have cost in excess of $250,000. The lawns and gardens were not completed when their owner died suddenly in New York, August 23, 1926. Since then, following disposition of the furnishings, the place has remained unoccupied save for the presence of caretakers who lived in quarters over the garage. The estate has been in the hands of S. George Ullman, the administrator.

Shortly after the body of Valentino was placed in a Hollywood mausoleum stories began circulating that Falcon Lair was haunted—that the spirit of the actor came back at night and drifted through the bedroom he built for Natacha Rambova, the wife who divorced him in Paris a short time before he died. There were tales of strange sounds, of moans audible in the dead of night, of phosphorescent lights which came and went through the rooms of the mansion. The lonely howling of the Great Danes, mastiffs and other favorite dogs of the former star could be heard when all else was still.

"Rudy comes back to earth!" the credulous whispered. "He goes to the room he planned for his beloved Natacha. His spirit is lonely."

SOMETIMES a door would slam and once a box, for no explainable reason, suddenly tottered from its moorings and went bouncing down the hill. One caretaker after another left because of the mysterious carryings-on. The administrator of the estate could neither sell nor rent the property.

"The house is not haunted," Mr. Ullman insisted. "That's foolish."

Nevertheless, he himself went to the deserted home two nights in succession to investigate. The first time, armed with nothing but determination to stay awake, he occupied a chair in Rudy's bedroom, hoping that the spirit of his former friend would return and they might have a little chat. About 2 a. m., he fell asleep. He was awakened by the sun shining in his face. The next night he managed to stay awake. But there wasn't a rap or an unseemly sound of any kind.

Mr. Ullman went to a spiritualistic seance in Pasadena to talk to Valentino, if possible, about the strange happenings in his former home. The "spirit" appeared, all right, but when Ullman arose to shake hands or extend a more hearty greeting, it promptly vanished.

Judging from psychical revelations, however, the spirit of Valentino has been globe-trotting in gay abandon since the actor's death nearly five years ago. Miss Rambova was reported to have been in communication with the spirit in Paris. "Tex" Guinan and Mae West attended a seance in New York during which Rudy is said to have appeared. But apparently his spirit has maintained general headquarters at Falcon Lair in Hollywood and a caretaker is accredited with being its confidante.

Now caretakers are not supposed to entertain parties in the property they guard. They are expected to keep people out instead of taking them in. But for one, the possibilities at Falcon Lair were too good to pass up, particularly when so many persons wanted to peep inside the Valentino mansion. So, a few years ago, little groups began appearing at the massive iron gates along about twilight and were admitted. The beautiful hand-carved doors would swing open and the guests would be conducted through halls to a room where a few rough seats had been placed. The caretaker would excuse himself for a moment and go shuffling into the basement. Presently he would return and begin invoking the spirit of the departed Valentino to come in and be sociable.

Now just what method was used to hail the astral body from its peregrinations, is not clear. A cabinet downstairs had sliding panels and a network of wires and switches and gadgets but no one will believe that Valentino's spirit was kept housed in there. Nevertheless, after the caretaker's trip to it, a soft blue-green light would become diffused about the occupied room and something ghost-like or etherial would drift in. The light was barely discernible through the closed window from outside, yet many persons re-reported seeing it at times. And more stories would be told about whosts haunting the deserted home.

A short time ago while in quest of a residence with stables, Harry Carey, the motion picture actor, rented Falcon Lair.

With his wife and two children he moved in.

Now Carey was reared in the great open spaces. Most of his life before he became a motion picture actor had been lived on the ranges. His nerves were steady and, furthermore, he but recently had returned from the African jungles where he had gone to make a picture.

Two days after he took possession of Falcon Lair, he "found out." A little after midnight a low moan broke the stillness. Then there was another. And another.

"Harry," said his spouse, "did you hear that?"

"I heard it the first time," he replied.

"What do you think it was?"

"I don't know but I'm going to find out."

CARRYING a flashlight, he crept downstairs toward the place from whence the sounds had come. He came to the end of a darkened hallway. Right at his elbow, the moan came again. The wind was blowing. Shrubbery was being whipped against the side of the house. The dog, outside, barked sharply.

Carey went back to bed.

"There's a sheet of copper weather-stripping loose at the side door," he said to his wife. "I'll nail it tight in the morning. When the wind hits it, the thing vibrates. You'll probably hear it the rest of the night."

They did. Then the strip was nailed down and the moaning ceased.

A few nights later they were awakened by a tapping on the wall. A thud or two was followed by a slight commotion in the basement.

"Now what the——?" began Carey.

Next morning Mr. Carey went on a trip of investigation. He looked into doorways. He looked into windows. He examined the copings and peered into the kennels. He went through the stables. And he looked under the house.

"There's some physical reason for those noises," he pondered. "Now what is it?"

In the rear of the house he discovered a door entirely hidden by a bush and vines. It was dark and mouldy there. Evidently it long had been in disuse. An opening of two or three inches was visible. Mr. Carey pushed wide the door and strode inside. He was greeted by a flock of bats blinded more or less by the sunshine.

"Here's the thumping against the wall!" he decided. "Bats used to do that in my adobe houses in Arizona."

The flying "varmints" were routed and the door locked. That ended the mysterious tappings on the wall.

One by one the "spooks" were being traced to their lairs. Thus far, there had been no indication of the supernatural. And then, the other day, peering back of a built-in bookcase, Mrs. Carey found a pair of electric wires. They passed through a hole in the wall and appeared to be of no earthly use whatsoever. A day or two later, down in the basement, Mr. Carey espied a mysterious cabinet into which electric light wires led. Then he began a search of the house. In Valentino's bedroom, barely protruding from beneath the carpet, he found two terminals. Next to the drawing room's fireplace were two more. In the Natacha Rambova bedroom was another pair. An electrician was called who determined that these wires did not connect with the central lighting system.

In the basement were found, too, several cardboard cartons wired for electric lights. There were cardboard boxes with hidden switches. For an abandoned house, these did not seem essential.

In a large box in the basement Carey found bottle after bottle of a strange fluid beginning to crystallize.

While this investigation was under way, a former caretaker, a woman, came to the door.

"Mr. Carey," she said, "I think I can explain some of the things which have transpired here. Spiritualists have been holding seances. They produced the weird lights and glows that persons outside have seen. They did not bother me because I slept in quarters over the garage."

THERE came one morning about 3 a. m., a rasping sound on the bedroom window. First a low grating, then a nasty swishing.

"I'll cut that off in the morning," Carey said.

The shrubbery had grown.

A few nights later the Careys gave a party. Along about midnight while a couple was in the kitchen, "flam!" went a door to a hallway and a sheet of newspaper shot out into the room.

Exit the couple.

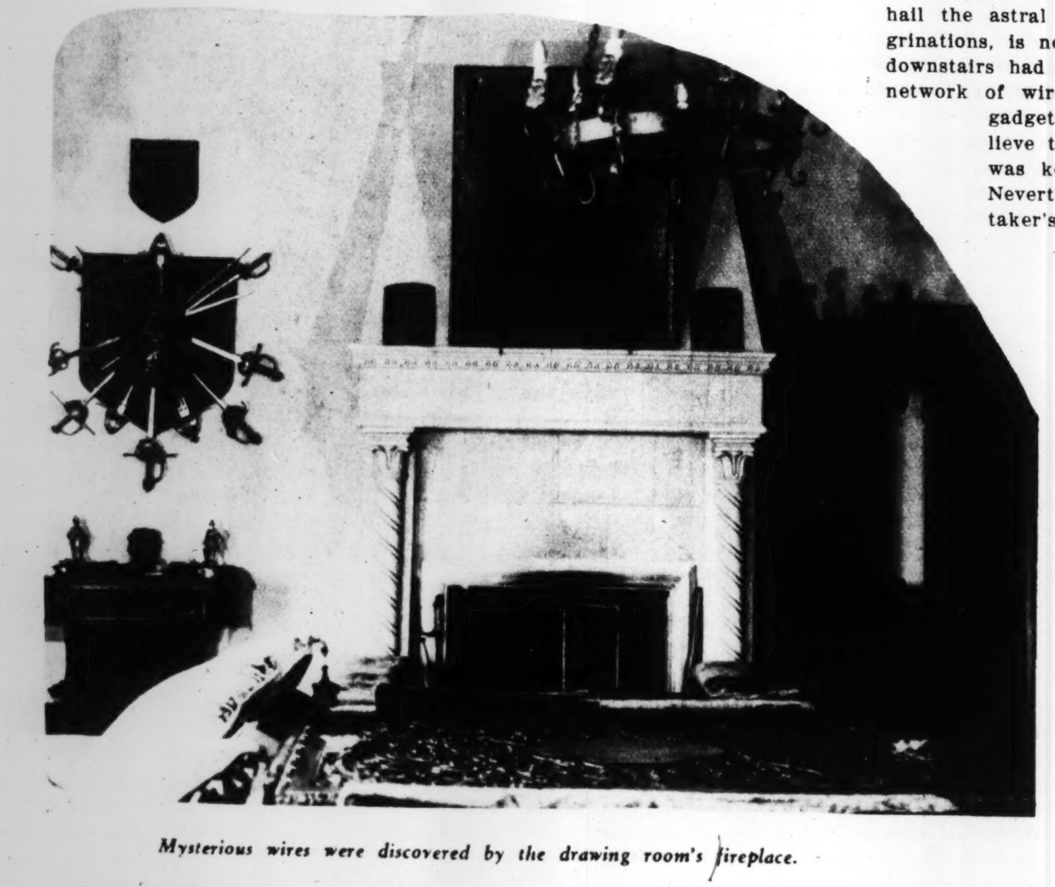
Investigation disclosed that a basement door had been left open and a gust of wind swept up through the airway to dislodge the paper covering on a shelf. Guests put on their wraps and went home.

But there is no explanation for usage of the mysterious cabinet found in the basement. Nor for the strange chemicals in the bottles. The electrician who examined the cabinet found that all wiring had been removed. If there were storage batteries, all evidence of their existence had been obliterated.

"If a caretaker ever held spiritualistic seances in the house, I never knew about it," said Administrator Ullman.

"I am satisfied they were held here," says Carey. "And I am confident that all the strange, weird noises and lights were here, all right. And that they came from that cabinet. There are no unusual noises about the place now. When we got rid of the bats and the whipping shrubbery and nailed down the loose metal door-facing, the spooky sounds ceased."

"Withal, however," says Mr. Carey, "there is something spooky in the thought that you are living in a 'haunted house.' The first few nights we were nervous. Our friends repeatedly warned us about the place. There are sixteen rooms and the house seemed so lonely and sequestered that it looked haunted. But we've about outgrown our uneasiness now. I took a lease for a year and we'll stick it out for that long, anyway."



Mysterious wires were discovered by the drawing room's fireplace.

Edith Mason's

Edith Mason in "Madame Butterfly."

CHICAGO.

THE romance of Edith Mason and Giorgio Polacco has not ended, after all. A separation of two years and her marriage to another man have proved to be merely an interlude in the long and highly-colored attachment which has led the temperamental opera singer and the eminent conductor into fame and through divorce courts.

When the break came in 1929—when, after 10 years of married life, in which she had borne him a child, Miss Mason sued Polacco for divorce—the affair did seem to be definitely over. She charged him with cruelty, characterized him as a person of "low, vicious and vulgar habits," declared he had brandished a revolver before her, tried to strike her and committed various other indignities against her.

The Court was sympathetic and granted the decree. Without losing much time, Miss Mason then married Dr. Maurice A. Bernstein, a Chicago doctor. And Polacco appeared to have passed into history, as far as she was concerned.

A FEW weeks ago the singer divorced Dr. Bernstein. And scarcely had news of it leaked out before she was on the ocean, speeding to Italy to rejoin Polacco. A few days after her landing the American diva and the Italian genius of the baton were again man and wife. The romance of two of the most prominent figures in modern opera goes on.

Romance has always played an active part in the life of Edith Mason. It must have been romantic dreams of operatic fame that determined her, as a girl in St. Louis, to become a professional singer. It certainly was not the need to earn a living that spurred her. Her father was a well-to-do grain dealer, Baron S. Barnes, who was able to send his daughter to private schools and provide ample financial backing for a social career. But that was not the kind of life the girl wanted. Fame beckoned imperiously.

She had to struggle to get what she wanted. It was difficult to avoid social distractions. And when her family found out she was bent on adopting singing as a profession serious objection developed. It was all right for her to take enough musical training to be able to sing nicely for her friends or at amateur entertainments, but it was a different matter to prepare actually to go on the stage. which electric light wires led. Then he began a search of the house. In Valentino's bedroom, barely protruding from beneath the carpet, he found two terminals. Next to the drawing room's fireplace were two more. In the Natacha Rambova bedroom was another pair. An electrician was called who determined that these wires did not connect with the central lighting system.

In the basement were found, too, several cardboard cartons wired for electric lights. There were cardboard boxes with hidden switches. For an abandoned house, these did not seem essential.

In a large box in the basement, Carey found bottle after bottle of a strange fluid beginning to crystallize.

While this investigation was under way, a former caretaker, a woman, came to the door.

"Mr. Carey," she said, "I think I can explain some of the things which have transpired here. Spiritualists have been holding seances. They produced the weird lights and glows that persons outside have seen. They did not bother me because I slept in quarters over the garage."

Edith Mason's Off-Again, On-Again Romance

Five Marriages and Four Husbands Have Marked the Matrimonial Career of the Famous Prima Donna.

THE romance of Edith Mason and Giorgio Polacco has not ended, after all. A separation of two years and her marriage to another man have proved to be merely an interlude in the long and highly-colored attachment which has led the temperamental opera singer and the eminent conductor into fame and through divorce courts.

When the break came in 1929—when, after 10 years of married life, in which she had borne him a child, Miss Mason sued Polacco for divorce—the affair did seem to be definitely over. She charged him with cruelty, characterized him as a person of "low, vicious and vulgar habits," declared he had brandished a revolver before her, tried to strike her and committed various other indignities against her.

The Court was sympathetic and granted the decree. Without losing much time, Miss Mason then married Dr. Maurice A. Bernstein, a Chicago doctor. And Polacco appeared to have passed into history, as far as she was concerned.

A FEW weeks ago the singer divorced Dr. Bernstein. And scarcely had news of it leaked out before she was on the ocean, speeding to Italy to rejoin Polacco. A few days after her landing the American diva and the Italian genius of the baton were again man and wife. The romance of two of the most prominent figures in modern opera goes on.

Romance has always played an active part in the life of Edith Mason. It must have been romantic dreams of operatic fame that determined her, as a girl in St. Louis, to become a professional singer. It certainly was not the need to earn a living that spurred her. Her father was a well-to-do grain dealer, Baron S. Barnes, who was able to send his daughter to private schools and provide ample financial backing for a social career. But that was not the kind of life the girl wanted. Fame beckoned imperiously.

She had to struggle to get what she wanted. It was difficult to avoid social distractions. And when her family found out she was bent on adopting singing as a profession serious objection developed. It was all right for her to take enough musical training to be able to sing nicely for her friends or at amateur entertainments, but it was a different matter to prepare actually to go on the stage. Finally an ultimatum was given by her mother: Edith must give up her strange notion about a career in music or her allowance would be discontinued. She was then studying in New York. It wasn't pleasant to think of being cut off from money from home, but the young woman stuck to her determination. The allowance stopped. The rebel got a job singing, thereby both earning a living and gaining valuable experience. When her mother learned of this she went to New York, heard her daughter sing, and capitulated. If Edith really wanted to become a noted singer, her mother would do what she could to help by providing the money for study.

So the St. Louis girl—she was born in St. Louis in 1893—continued her musical training.

A youthful romance, culminating in marriage, provided a brief distraction from her early studies. In Grand Rapids, Michigan, she married Dexter Sones of that city. The first of her series of marriages soon ended in divorce.

Presently the young woman was proceeding with her work in Paris. There she met another young American, Norman Mason, an architect, who also was interested in singing. He became her second husband and furnished the name she has used throughout her professional career.

In 1915, after a season with the Boston Opera Company and appearances in France and Italy, Miss Mason joined the Metropolitan Opera Company and met Polacco. He was already famous. A native of Venice, he had won recognition in Europe before seeking success in the United States. He had conducted operatic performances in the principal Italian cities and in Russia, and had had several seasons in South America. In the spring of 1915, a few years after joining the Metropolitan he was called upon to take Toscanini's place, when that noted conductor became ill.

Miss Mason was well on the road to success. She had beauty, health and a clear, high, soprano voice of remarkable freshness and charm. She was enthusiastically received at her debut as Sophie in "Der Rosenkavalier."

It was love at first sight between Polacco and the young singer, people said. Both were married, but love has a way of ignoring that obstacle. The husband of Miss Mason and the wife of Polacco did not ignore it, however. Mason filed suit for divorce in 1917, shortly after Mrs. Polacco, the daughter of an Italian official, had taken similar action against the conductor.

After both Polacco and Miss Mason were free of marital ties, she refused for a time to marry him because he was not a citizen of the United States. So the conductor took out citizenship papers. And on June 29, 1919, they were married, the ceremony taking place at the summer place in New Jersey of Mr. and Mrs. John Keith of New York. The bridal couple went to Colorado for their honeymoon.

Edith Mason, Giorgio Polacco and their daughter, Grace Edith, on the beach of the Lido.

For several years life seemed to go well with the artistic pair. Miss Mason became a famous prima donna in Europe and South America, as well as the United States, with Madame Butterfly as her most popular role. It was said that Polacco had no little to do with her development into an operatic soprano of the first rank. The conductor himself continued to gather laurels by the artistry of his work. After a season with the Chicago Opera Association, they joined the Chicago Civic Opera Company in 1923, with Polacco as musical director, and during their years with this organization both probably rose to the greatest heights of their careers. A daughter, Grace Edith, was born to them in 1925. Polacco immediately had his life insured for $500,000 in the child's favor, with the reported comment: "My daughter will need a lot of money if her tastes run like her mother's."

Then, in 1929, while her husband was in Europe, Miss Mason met Dr. Bernstein at a dinner at the home of a friend in Highland Park, a suburb of Chicago. Their acquaintance progressed rapidly. As the physician explained later: "We found we had so many things in common. I love music and artistic things, and Miss Mason was interested in the troubles of the unfortunate little children with whom I come in contact in my practice."

Rumors of trouble between the Polaccos began to be heard. They were strengthened by the fact that the singer left Chicago just before her husband returned from Europe.

Polacco went back to Europe, and in a short time it became known that the rumors were well founded. Miss Mason had filed suit for divorce in Circuit Court here. She asked for custody of the daughter and for an injunction to prevent her husband from disposing of real estate and other property valued at $300,000.

There was reason to suppose that the action for divorce was not the result of long premeditation. The bill was filed June 28—the day before their tenth wedding anniversary. Less than three months before the Polaccos had taken a six-mouths lease on a Lake Shore drive apartment.

IN HER bill Miss Mason charged her husband with various acts of cruelty. She alleged that one day in 1927 when they had gone on a vacation to Italy, Polacco flew into a rage, brandished a revolver in her face and threatened to kill her. She asserted that in February, 1928, he attempted to strike her, and in December of the same year he shook and cursed her. And in April, 1929, she recited, when they were in the Hotel Roosevelt, New York, about to sail for Europe, he shook her again and threatened to disinherit her. She also declared that her husband told her once he hated her, and that he tried to spoil some of her performances by carrying on domestic scenes backstage. She made no accusations in regard to other women.

Apprised of the divorce suit, Polacco, in Paris, expressed surprise and consternation. In fact, he said he was "dumfounded." But he did not contest the divorce. On July 20 Judge Hugo Friend granted the decree. Miss Mason was given custody of the daughter, Grace Edith, although the father was to have a voice in the education and care of the child. There was no alimony—the wife had asked for none—but it was announced a property settlement had been made out of court.

When the court proceedings were over, Polacco, through his attorney, made a statement in which he said: "I have nothing to say but that I am heartbroken. I am sure that during my absence some misunderstanding brought this about. I wish Mrs. Polacco every happiness and shall always hold her in the highest regard and affection."

Miss Mason had this to say: "This affair is regrettable, but I have done what I consider my duty. Yes, he made attempts at reconciliation. I refused to see him. I have no animosity toward Mr. Polacco; I merely did my duty."

FOR a time after that there were rumors that a reconciliation was being effected. Miss Mason was quoted as saying, a few days after the divorce: "It is quite true that Mr. Polacco and I had a pleasant day and evening together Monday. In the afternoon we were in the office of Mr. Samuel Insull attending to business matters. In the evening we were guests of friends in Highland Park and later attended the opera at Ravinia. There is no reason why we should not continue to be good friends."

There was a good deal of speculation as to what would happen during the next season of the Chicago Civic Opera, with the prima donna singing under the direction of her divorced husband. It turned out, however, that that interesting situation did not occur. Both Miss Mason and Polacco failed to renew their contracts.

Less than three months after she had been freed from Polacco, Miss Mason married Dr. Bernstein at Antioch, Illinois. The public didn't learn about it for a couple of weeks. "So much of my private life has been the subject of public discussion," the singer explained, "that I feel such matters are my private business. There was nothing so very secret about my marriage to Dr. Bernstein. I simply did not think it necessary to make a public announcement." Her new husband was 43 years old. They began domestic life in his home in Highland Park.

It didn't take long for things to go wrong with the soprano's fourth marriage. The next spring she and her husband were found to be living apart, he in his Highland Park home, she in her Chicago apartment. Inquiring reporters received various explanations. One was that the singer had just recovered from a cold and feared to catch

FOR 3500 years the savage and virile Kurds of the Mesopotamian highlands have pastured their flocks, built their mud villages and lived their wild, nomadic lives under the nominal rule of other peoples. Never have they risen to the importance of a political entity or a unified state. Never has Kurdistan appeared on any world map as anything other than a vague region with shadowy boundaries. Never have the Kurds had a potentate of their own. But now they are demanding their independence and a King. They complain that the Government of Iraq, as administered by King Feisal, is not sympathetic toward their aspirations. They want a King of their own and, strange to say, the man these wild people want as a ruler is an Oxford graduate—Emir Zeid. Not a fierce tribal chieftain in flowing burnoose, but a suave, mild-mannered young man of European tastes and ideas, a sportsman, traveler and all-around good fellow, popularly identified as the "Prince of Wales of the East."

News of the situation confronting Prince Zeid reaches St. Louis directly from the Prince himself. In a letter to Dr. Israel Treiman, assistant professor of law at Washington University, Zeid describes political troubles besetting his half-brother, Feisal, with whom he resides at Bagdad, and incloses a London newspaper clipping telling of the Kurdish demands. Zeid and Dr. Treiman are friends of long standing, their friendship dating from their Oxford days, when they roomed together at Balliol College and were fellow members of the rowing crew. The Emir is in his early thirties.

As the independence of the Kurds is a matter that must be settled by the League of Nations if it is to be settled at all, Zeid reserves comment on the probable outcome of the movement and gives no hint as to whether or not he would accept the throne in the event that the Kurds win their argument. The mere suggestion, however, of the cultured Zeid as ruler over a people made up principally of roving mountain tribes invites speculation as to what sort of monarch he would make and what sort of subjects the Kurds would make for a ruler actually living among them and reigning on the spot. In the past they have never been governed by a resident potentate, nor have they shown any desire for national unity. They have preferred to live in their mountains as individual tribes, paying homage to whatever Government was in power, so long as it exercised only nominal authority. They have been under Turkish, Persian, French and British rule, but they have mocked at all these distant Governments alike. Even the Mesopotamian Kurds who are now seeking independence seem to have no fault to find with the British mandatory authority over Mesopotamia. Their dispute is with the Mesopotamian King, Feisal.

Whatever may be the outcome of the movement, Dr. Treiman's opinion, based upon acquaintance with both men, is that Zeid, the athlete, sportsman and hale fellow, is better equipped by nature to win the admiration and loyalty of a vigorous, semi-wild people than Feisal, the dreamer and philosopher. Feisal is visionary, Zeid intensely practical and resourceful. Feisal is slender and of somewhat fragile appearance, Zeid robust and active. His muscles bulge through his shirt. He is an expert horseman and an excellent boxer. He also knows how to work with his hands. He went to Oxford to study agriculture and is said to be able to milk cows and wrangle mules with any farmer.

THERE are other differences, too, and all in favor of Zeid, so far as getting along with the Kurds is concerned. Feisal is haughty, regal, inclined to hold himself aloof. Zeid is democratic to a marked degree, a good mixer in any company. He dislikes titles to such an extent that never while he was at Oxford did he sign his name as Emir Zeid. It was simply E. Zeid, and throughout the university he was known familiarly as "Emmie." Feisal is a conservative, while Zeid is anything but a conservative, either in politics or religion.

His liberal leaning in politics has been particularly in evidence in his championship of the movement to give Moslem women more freedom than the traditional veil allows. Zeid is an outspoken supporter of the feminist cause. In religion, too, he is a thorough modern and something of an iconoclast. That may be partly due to an overdose of religion early in life. His father, Hussein, was until recent years Caliph of all the Mohammedans and intensely devout. He prayed six times a day, which was enough to cure almost any son of being deeply religious.

Taking religion lightly, Zeid ought to suit the Kurds very well, for they aren't so devout themselves. Captain W. R. Hay, a British officer who lived among them, has something to say about their religious life in his "Two Years in Kurdistan."

"The majority of the Kurdish race," he writes, "now belong to the Sunni, or orthodox Mohammedan sect. With the exception of a few tribes, the Kurds adopted Mohammedanism at a very early date, but their faith sat lightly upon them, and they were practically heathen until the Turks, with considerable political acumen, saw that the sole means by which they could attach the race to themselves was through their religion, and did everything possible to promote Islam amongst them. The result is that though traces of heathendom still exist in 'high places' upon the hilltops, and though the Kurdish peasant will neglect Ramazan and eat the flesh of the pig, the better class Kurd is very strict in his devotions, and says his prayers regularly and at the proper time—but rather with the air of a small boy praying because he is told to by his betters, and not because of any conviction of the efficacy or necessity of prayer. I have often seen Kurds interrupt their devotions, without changing their positions, to add some remark to a conversation that interests them. Hence it follows that the Kurds are normally by no means fanatical, though they are powerfully influenced by the shaikhs and mullas in whom they place the most implicit trust."

As matters stand now, Zeid, the youngest of four half-brothers, is the only one of ex-Caliph Hussein's sons who has never held down a throne. Zeid did sit as Regent for Feisal at Bagdad one summer while Feisal made a trip to England, but he agreed to do this only after being assured that his absence wouldn't cause him to lose his rooms at Balliol College. Pinch-hitting for Feisal, Zeid had no kingly functions to perform except that of opening Parliament, and then he got into a row with the Prime Minister as a result of trying to make changes in what he termed a "stupid" speech the Prime Minister had written for him. That one summer as Regent, however, has been the sum total of Zeid's experience as a ruler.

THE eldest of Hussein's sons, Ali, succeeded his father as Caliph at Mecca and King of Hejaz when civil war compelled Hussein to abdicate. But the son's reign was brief for he, too, was soon driven out by Saud. Saud is now King of Hejaz, and both the aged Hussein and Ali are out of jobs. Hussein is a non-paying guest at the royal palace at Amman, capitol of Trans-Jordania, where Abdullah, his third son reigns. Ali lives at Bagdad.

Feisal, King of Iraq, or Mesopotamia, is the second son. He rules at Bagdad so far as anybody rules under a British mandate, his territory comprising the richest and most highly civilized of all the Arabian states. Except for the great Syrian Desert in the south, Mesopotamia lies largely in the Tigris and Euphrates valleys, a land celebrated from the time of ancient Babylon as a garden spot of the earth. The vast Mosul oil fields to the north of Bagdad are another main source of Mesopotamian wealth and a sufficient explanation of Great Britain's lively interest in the region. These three states, Hejaz, Mesopotamia and Trans-Jordania, together with Palestine and Syria (Syria is a French mandate), constitute the civilized portion of the enormous country known vaguely as Arabia.

The name Kurdistan may be found written across some maps of the East, but on no map does one find any boundary indicated, because Kurdistan has no boundaries. It includes a large portion of Northern Mesopotamia, it laps over the mountains and comprises a broad strip along the western border of Persia, it takes in a considerable area under Turkish control around the towns of Van, Ezerum, Bitlis, Kharput and Diabekr, and a portion of the Syrian territory, under French control, to the north of Aleppo. Altogether, it comprises a territory as large as Italy and the number of its inhabitants is between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000.

Street scene in a town in Kurdistan.

The Kurds are an Aryan race and supposed to be direct descendants of the ancient Medes. Few peoples have remained in one location longer. Xenophon and his 10,000 Greeks found them there 2500 years ago, and most of them have changed their manner of life but little since that time. They have no written language—though their spoken language is like a rough dialect of Persian—and they have produced no literature. They have produced but one renowned figure, Saladin, who recaptured Jerusalem and stemmed the tide of the Third Crusade in the year 1189. Prominent tribal chiefs have established independent states on several occasions, but these usually fell to pieces within a few years.

"The Kurdish peasant is generally short, broad and wiry," writes Captain Hay. "He is rarely over 5 feet 6 inches in height, except in the plains, where bigger men are sometimes found. He allows his beard to grow, but normally shaves his head except for a small fringe. His face is typically Aryan, except in rare cases, where the eyes have a narrow Mongolian appearance. The hair is normally black or dark brown, the eyes brown, and the complexion a light olive, as light or lighter than that of the Italian or Spaniard. It is not rare to find bright red hair, blue eyes and a freckled face."

An eternally restless people, the Kurds are forever on the move with their herds and meager possessions. In summer they go up into the mountains; in winter, back into the valleys. Captain Hay declares there are few more beautiful sights in the world than a camp of black Kurdish tents pitched among the desert flowers in spring, with a group of hot-blooded young Kurdish aghas in their fine clothes standing outside or galloping up and down on high-spirited horses.

KURDISH homes in the winter are mud villages for the most part. In these mud houses the beams supporting the roof are the only valuable portion, so if a Kurd does not like the site of his village he simply pulls off the roof, loads the wood on his donkeys and moves elsewhere. All Kurds, even the poorest, have donkeys.

Hospitality is said to be one of the finest traits of the Kurd's character. A chief will consider it an insult if you pass his house without coming in for a cup of tea. But in many parts of Kurdistan, especially among the wilder tribes, this hospitality ends when you pass out the door. Your erstwhile host does not scruple to meet you around the corner and hold you up. Highway robbery, indeed, is first and foremost among the Kurd's few pastimes. He always goes well armed. Usually he carries a dagger and one or two pistols in his belt, four bandoliers of ammunition round his waist and a Turkish rifle slung over his shoulder. He is especially fond of a belt knife and is expert in the use of it. This dagger has a blade about a foot long, slightly curved at the end. Nobody argues much with a Kurdish robber.

Highway robbery, it appears, has diminished considerably under British rule but in Turkish times every young chief would maintain a body of "khubzas," or armed retainers—in other words, a gang—who lived at his house and fed at his table. When not engaged in warfare with his neighbors he would send his gang out to watch the main roads and pounce upon caravans. The gang would carry the loot to their master and he would divide it, keeping the lion's share for himself. If the owner discovered the identity of the robbers he might recover his property by asking the chief for it; but the chief always deducted a percentage for his trouble.

If the Kurds succeed in their attempt to break away from Mesopotamia, Arbil, ancient sacred city of the Assyrians, is likely to be their seat of government. Arbil lies in the great plain to the east of Mosul. It existed under its present name as early as 1800 B. C. Here Assyrian conquerors flayed their capties alive before the altar of Ishtar. Here Alexander the Great pursued the beaten Darius. Here ruled Saladin. And if the Kurdish independence movement strikes no snags, here may rule the democratic, good-humored Zeid.

Kidnaped H

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazi

MADISON, Wisconsin.

NO ONE can honestly doubt the ardor of young Harry H. Drill's love for his wife. He kidnaped her the other day, with the aid of two friends, and brought her all the way to Madison from New York City. Apparently he hoped that if only he could get her alone with him for a time she would forget past quarrels and grievances and become reconciled again.

And Drill's plan was partly successful. For when it came to a question of actual kidnaping charges against her young 20-year-old husband, Mrs. Drill—who is a year his junior—had to confess that en route in the car she had kissed and hugged her principal kidnaper and had playfully asked him to shave off his new moustache because it interfered when they kissed. The Judge held that that was scarcely a kidnaping. It looked, he remarked, more nearly like an elopement, an elopement with modern improvements. For a time it appeared that the two friends, Howard Caldwell, 20, and Elmer Peterson, 27, alone would bear the legal responsibility for abducting Mrs. Drill.

But, all in all, Drill's coup was in vain. Mrs. Drill is as eager to escape from him as she was before she went to New York, took an assumed name and became a student at City College there. She is even more reluctant than before to contemplate settling down to domesticity with him.

The kidnaping is, of course, only another episode in the brief but stormy history of the Drills' romance and subsequent marriage. In three years there have been an elopement, an annulment, an attempted suicide, a second marriage and a separation.

They met in 1928, when they were both students at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis. He was 17, she was 16, then, and they fell hard for each other. Altogether, it comprises a territory as large as Italy and the number of its inhabitants is

They have pro- one renowned figure, Sala- recaptured Jerusalem and e tide of the Third Crusade r 1189. Prominent tribal chiefs have established independent states on several occasions, but these usually fell to pieces within a few years.

"The Kurdish peasant is generally short, broad and wiry," writes Captain Hay. "He is rarely over 5 feet 6 inches in height, except in the plains, where bigger men are sometimes found. He allows his beard to grow, but normally shaves his head except for a small fringe. His face is typically Aryan, except in rare cases, where the eyes have a narrow Mongolian appearance. The hair is normally black or dark brown, the eyes brown, and the complexion a light olive, as light or lighter than that of the Italian or Spaniard. It is not rare to find bright red hair, blue eyes and a freckled face."

An eternally restless people, the Kurds are forever on the move with their herds and meager possessions. In summer they go up into the mountains; in winter, back into the valleys. Captain Hay declares there are few more beautiful sights in the world than a camp of black Kurdish tents pitched among the desert flowers in spring, with a group of hot-blooded young Kurdish aghas in their fine clothes standing outside or galloping up and down on high-spirited horses.

KURDISH homes in the winter are mud villages for the most part. In these mud houses the beams supporting the roof are the only valuable portion, so if a Kurd does not like the site of his village he simply pulls off the roof, loads the wood on his donkeys and moves elsewhere. All Kurds, even the poorest, have donkeys.

Hospitality is said to be one of the finest traits of the Kurd's character. A chief will consider it an insult if you pass his house without coming in for a cup of tea. But in many parts of Kurdistan, especially among the wilder tribes, this hospitality ends when you pass out the door. Your erstwhile host does not scruple to meet you around the corner and hold you up. Highway robbery, indeed, is first and foremost among the Kurd's few pastimes. He always goes well armed. Usually he carries a dagger and one or two pistols in his belt, four bandoliers of ammunition round his waist and a Turkish rifle slung over his shoulder. He is especially fond of a belt knife and is expert in the use of it. This dagger has a blade about a foot long, slightly curved at the end. Nobody argues much with a Kurdish robber.

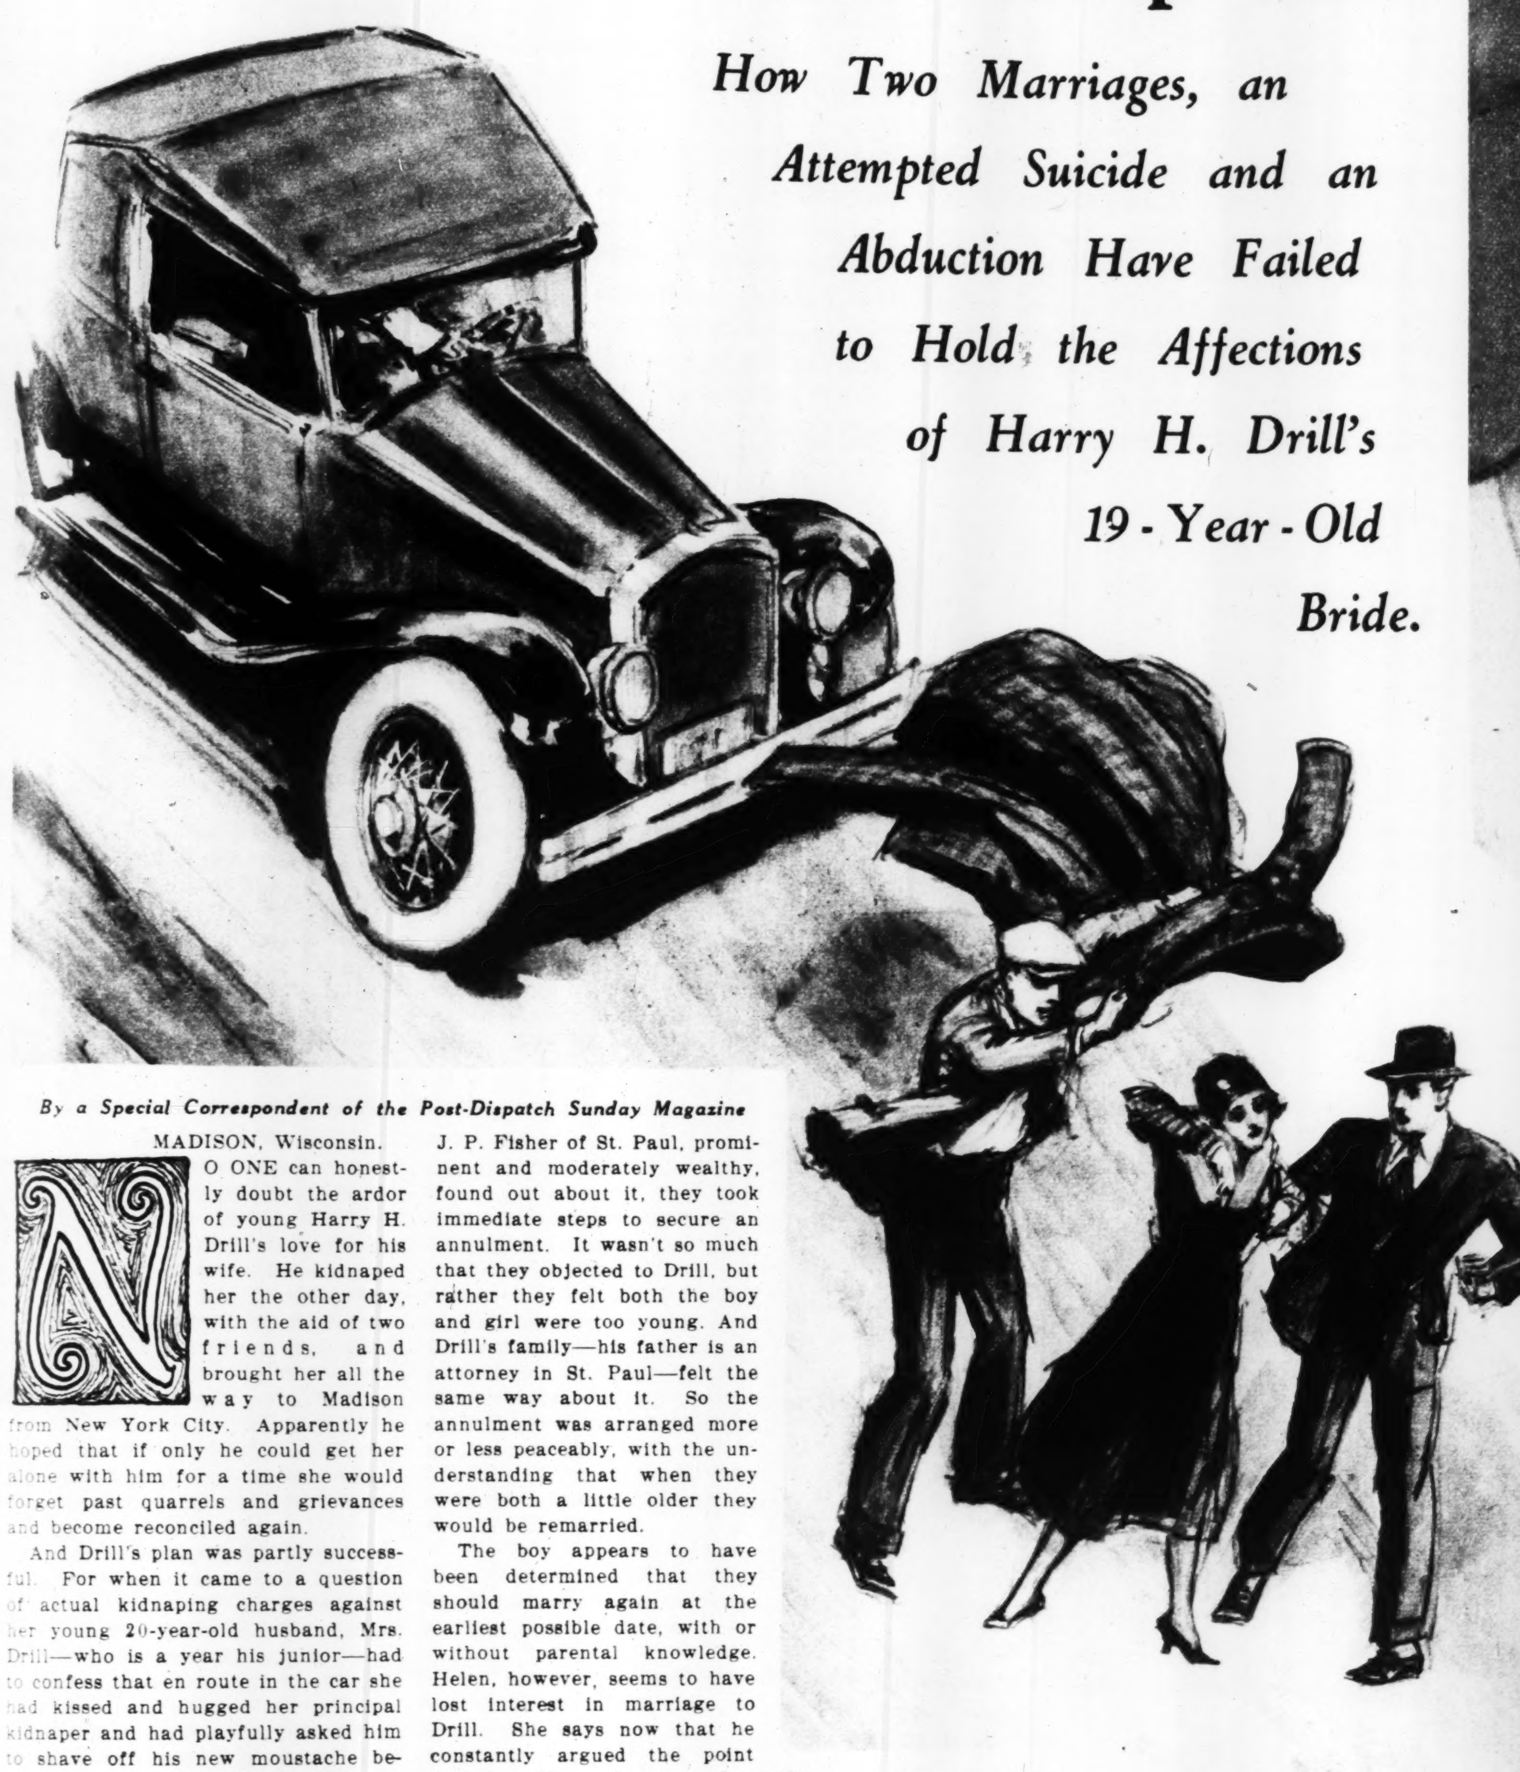
Highway robbery, it appears, has diminished considerably under British rule but in Turkish times every young chief would maintain a body of "khubzas," or armed retainers—in other words, a gang—who lived at his house and fed at his table. When not engaged in warfare with his neighbors he would send his gang out to watch the main roads and pounce upon caravans. The gang would carry the loot to their master and he would divide it, keeping the lion's share for himself. If the owner discovered the identity of the robbers he might recover his property by asking the chief for it; but the chief always deducted a percentage for his trouble.

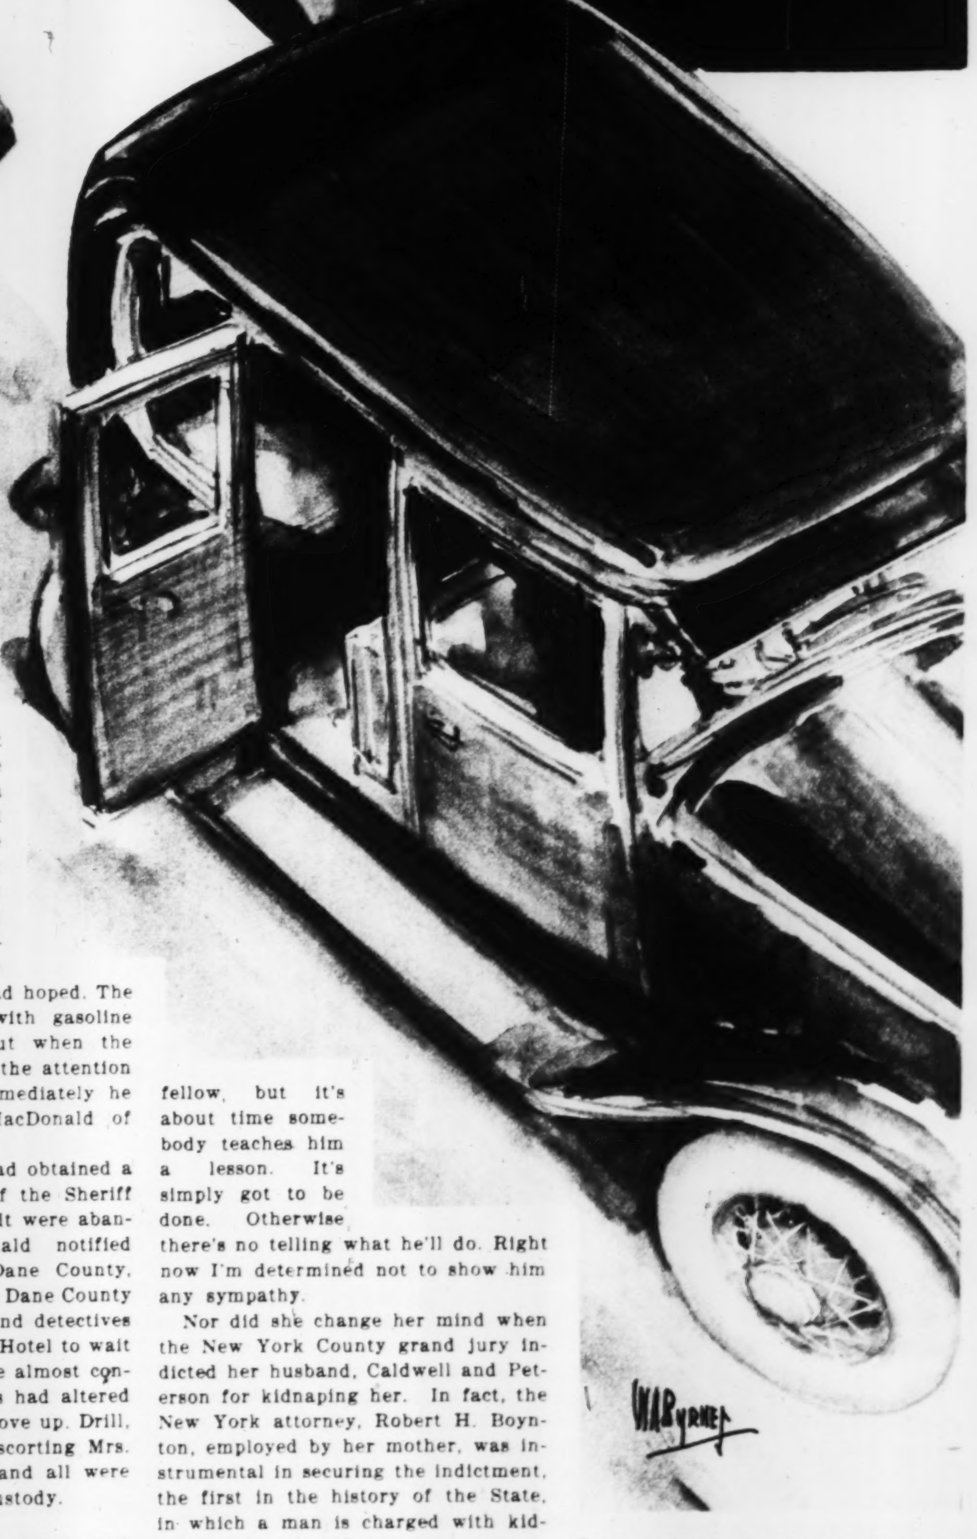
If the Kurds succeed in their attempt to break away from Mesopotamia, Arbil, ancient sacred city of the Assyrians, is likely to be their seat of government. Arbil lies in the great plain to the east of Mosul. It existed under its present name as early as 1800 B. C. Here Assyrian conquerors flayed their capties alive before the altar of Ishtar. Here Alexander the Great pursued the beaten Darius. Here ruled Saladin. And if the Kurdish independence movement strikes no snags, here may rule the democratic, good-humored Zeid.

Kidnaped His Own Wife and Still Couldn't Keep Her

How Two Marriages, an Attempted Suicide and an Abduction Have Failed to Hold the Affections of Harry H. Drill's 19-Year-Old Bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Drill.





By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

MADISON, Wisconsin.

NO ONE can honestly doubt the ardor of young Harry H. Drill's love for his wife. He kidnaped her the other day, with the aid of two friends, and brought her all the way to Madison from New York City. Apparently he hoped that if only he could get her alone with him for a time she would forget past quarrels and grievances and become reconciled again.

And Drill's plan was partly successful. For when it came to a question of actual kidnaping charges against her young 20-year-old husband, Mrs. Drill—who is a year his junior—had to confess that en route in the car she had kissed and hugged her principal kidnaper and had playfully asked him to shave off his new moustache because it interfered when they kissed. The Judge held that that was scarcely a kidnaping. It looked, he remarked, more nearly like an elopement, an elopement with modern improvements. For a time it appeared that the two friends, Howard Caldwell, 20, and Elmer Peterson, 27, alone would bear the legal responsibility for abducting Mrs. Drill.

But, all in all, Drill's coup was in vain. Mrs. Drill is as eager to escape from him as she was before she went to New York, took an assumed name and became a student at City College there. She is even more reluctant than before to contemplate settling down to domesticity with him.

The kidnaping is, of course, only another episode in the brief but stormy history of the Drills' romance and subsequent marriage. In three years there have been an elopement, an annulment, an attempted suicide, a second marriage and a separation.

They met in 1928, when they were both students at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis. He was 17, she was 16, then, and they fell hard for each other. Meeting in May, they were secretly married in the little town of Northwood, Iowa, five months later. For nearly a year they kept the marriage a secret.

When Helen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Fisher of St. Paul, prominent and moderately wealthy, found out about it, they took immediate steps to secure an annulment. It wasn't so much that they objected to Drill, but rather they felt both the boy and girl were too young. And Drill's family—his father is an attorney in St. Paul—felt the same way about it. So the annulment was arranged more or less peaceably, with the understanding that when they were both a little older they would be remarried.

The boy appears to have been determined that they should marry again at the earliest possible date, with or without parental knowledge. Helen, however, seems to have lost interest in marriage to Drill. She says now that he constantly argued the point with her. To get her away for a time, Mr. and Mrs. Fisher sent her to a summer session at the University of Wisconsin here and she enrolled for the fall term at Carlton College, Northfield, Minnesota. Drill followed her here. He demanded that she marry him. She refused. And he shot himself before her eyes on the campus. The bullet entered his lung, but he recovered, and when he was well again Helen married him. She did it, she says now, because he threatened to shoot himself again.

THEY lived together only nine days, when Helen decided that the marriage simply was no go. She left her husband on the pretext of visiting relatives in Chicago and Indiana, and went to New York, where she enrolled at City College under the name of Mary La Terre. For more than a year the refuge of this pseudonym was successful. After a time Mrs. Drill got a job and continued her English courses at City College at night. Her father had died, leaving her more than $50,000.

But young Drill was not to be eluded quite that easily.

Mrs. Drill had taken steps in New York to secure a second annulment. She had made many friends under the name of Mary La Terre. She had an apartment under that name at 504 West 112th street. One of her friends was Robert Hufnagle, a student at Columbia University.

It was as a matter of course that she accepted his invitation one day not long ago to take a ride in his car. It was a pleasant day and they drove as far as Scarsdale, a suburb up the Hudson. On a quiet residence street Hufnagle stopped the car, pointed to another machine parked just ahead and said someone in it wanted to see her. Mrs. Drill got out, two young men came up to her and, before she could even cry for help, had thrown a coat over her head and whisked her into the second car, which drove away at high speed through the quiet streets.

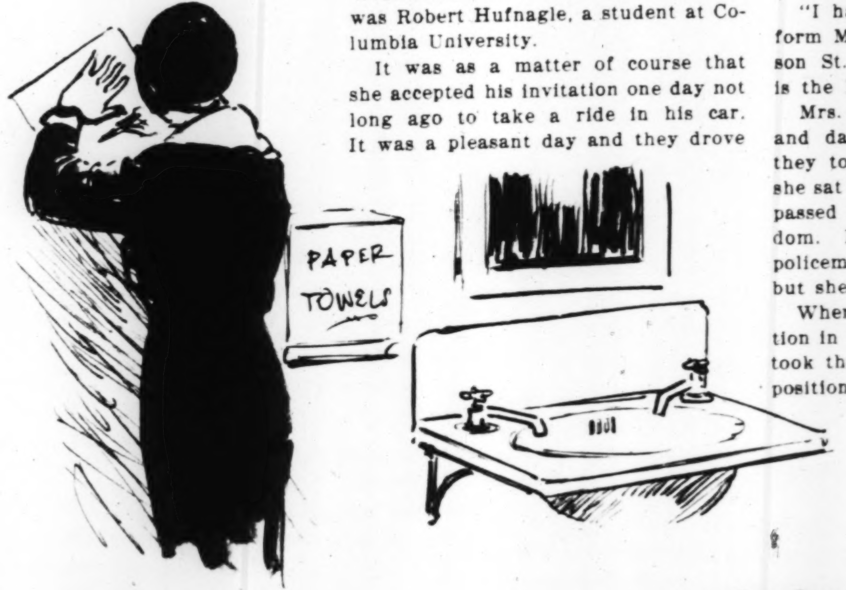
Hufnagle was taken completely by surprise. He had known Drill for several years. Drill had told him of his search for his wife, and it soon developed that Hufnagle's friend, Mary La Terre, was none other than Mrs. Drill. Hufnagle agreed for $50 to drive her to Scarsdale in order that the desperate husband might talk to her and try to persuade her to come back to him. The kidnaping, according to Hufnagle, was part of the plot on which he had not been consulted.

He waited for three days before he notified the police, afraid that his part in the episode might implicate him. But the authorities already had been informed. When Mary La Terre did not return to her apartment during the night the woman in charge of the building informed the police. And the police had already received from La Porte, Indiana, a report of the discovery of a note signed by Mrs. Drill. The note said:

"I have been kidnaped. Please inform Mrs. A. J. Sharett, 406 Herbertson St., Richmond, N. Y. Next stop is the Park Hotel, Madison, Wis."

Mrs. Drill says that they drove night and day. After the first few hours they took the coat off her head and she sat in the back seat with Drill. She passed up one chance to win her freedom. In a small Ohio town a traffic policeman came quite close to the car, but she did not call out.

When they drove up at a filling station in La Porte a day later, Mrs. Drill took the occasion to make known her position. While the car was taking gasoline, Mrs. Drill went to the washroom, where she wrote the note on a paper towel and pinned it to the wall. To make sure that the attendant would find it, she left the basin faucet turned on full force. Her anticipation was fulfilled even more quickly than she had hoped. The car had been refilled with gasoline and had just pulled out when the running water attracted the attention of the garage man. Immediately he notified Sheriff Tom MacDonald of La Porte County.



SHE WROTE A NOTE ON A PAPER TOWEL AND PINNED IT TO THE WALL

Drill's car, however, had obtained a good start and efforts of the Sheriff and a squad to overtake it were abandoned. Sheriff MacDonald notified Sheriff Fred Finn of Dane County, Wisconsin—Madison is in Dane County—to watch for the car, and detectives went at once to the Park Hotel to wait for the party. They were almost convinced that the kidnapers had altered their plans when a car drove up. Drill, Caldwell and Peterson, escorting Mrs. Drill, entered the lobby and all were immediately taken into custody.

DRILL showed signs of fight and protested the arrest vigorously. "You've no right to interfere," he insisted to detectives. "This is my wife and we're driving home to St. Paul together."

But Mrs. Drill shouted: "I was kidnaped. Save me from them."

The three men were taken to the county jail and held there pending communication with New York authorities. Then Mrs. Drill told her story.

"Harry forced me to marry him," she said. "I went to New York to get away from him. I didn't suspect anything when I went riding in the first car, but I became suspicious when I was transferred to the other one. I nearly dropped when I saw Harry sitting at the wheel of the second car, but I didn't have much of a chance to say anything because a coat was thrown over my head before my surprise disappeared.

"Harry's always been an impulsive fellow, but it's about time somebody teaches him a lesson. It's simply got to be done. Otherwise there's no telling what he'll do. Right now I'm determined not to show him any sympathy."

Nor did she change her mind when the New York County grand jury indicted her husband, Caldwell and Peterson for kidnaping her. In fact, the New York attorney, Robert H. Boynton, employed by her mother, was instrumental in securing the indictment, the first in the history of the State, in which a man is charged with kidnaping his own wife.

There was considerable legal talent on both sides of the dispute. Mrs. Fisher was determined that her daughter would not have to go through such an experience again, even though it would be necessary to put her daughter's husband in jail. Other attorneys were retained here in Madison. Drill's father, an attorney, came to his aid, as did his uncle, who is United States District Attorney, Louis L. Drill, at St. Paul.

Dane County was not interested in the case. Local warrants charging kidnaping were sworn out, but only in order to hold the trio for New York authorities. And the local warrants were quashed following a hearing before Judge S. B. Schein in Superior Court. The Judge listened to Mrs. Drill's account of the kisses and the hugs and the request to shave off the moustache and of the failure to warn the traffic policeman and then the Court ordered the charges dismissed.

"Apparently," he said, with biting irony, "a good time was had by all. It is the escapade of a bunch of kids, all of whom ought to be spanked."

And he added that, regardless of the facts, a man cannot kidnap his wife in Wisconsin. But because of requests from New York authorities, indicating that they would be brought back to answer to the kidnaping charges, the three boys remained in jail voluntarily, on advice of their attorney.

The days dragged on and no word came from the New York officials. The patience of District Attorney Fred Risser was at last worn out and he ordered all three turned out of jail.

Mrs. Drill was in court when her husband was released and directed by the Judge to return to St. Paul. "I don't know what I shall do," she said. "I don't feel safe on the street any more."

And she went into hiding again.

A TURN IN LUCK

By BERNICE BROWN

SYBIL THURSTON was so lovely to look at that it was impossible not to think her good. But, of course, she couldn't be. No woman with an income of 200 pounds a year could manage goodness who dressed as equisitely as Sybil and went about with the people she did. Where she came from no one knew exactly. She referred on occasion to an aunt in Sussex.

"But after all," as the Duke said, "Sussex is awfully diffuse. There must be no end of aunts scattered about over it."

Nevertheless, the Duke cast an eye of appreciation on Sybil. Most men did, and the strange thing was that more women did not hate her. She carried off her triumphs with so little bravado that it might almost be said she left them behind her. Sybil had learned humility along with the capacity to put up with hours of boredom if the boredom were cast in a setting of sufficient attractiveness.

It was the Duke who insisted on his aunt's inviting her to the house party. The Duke, for all his title, was poor. But his aunt, who had married into the higher distilling circles, possessed a fortune. It was believed, since Lady Pondice had no children, that the Duke would inherit; and since the Duke had spared no pains to plant this belief in the minds of his creditors, he lived thoroughly, idly and satisfactorily.

"He is so completely useless," explained Lady Pondice, "I expect him to marry extremely well."

Indeed, the good woman would be content with nothing else. "One mesalliance in the family is sufficient," she told him firmly, "and I made that one."

"That was extremely selfish of you," said the young nobleman.

"I shouldn't be surprised if I married you off to the daughter of a Bishop."

"Do raise it to an Archbishop," the Duke murmured. "After all, we might as well aim at the highest."

Lady Pondice scented ridicule. "Unless I leave you something, you will have nothing to offer her except your debts and highly uncertain tips on the races."

But here the Duke raised his hand in protest. "That, my dear relative, is unfair of you. Did you not clean up 700 pounds on Half-a-Cantaloupe, and who, if I may ask, put you on to that?"

Lady Pondice showed signs of restlessness. "Of course, you know I employ a large portion of the proceeds of such ventures in bettering the condition of the poor of the village.

The Duke offered to take up residence at once in the village, but Pondice saw fit to overlook this remark.

"I gave 7 pounds," she went on, "to the Society for the Suppression of Gambling. The poorer classes, as you know"——

The Duke nodded. "I myself did not bet on Half-a-Cantaloupe. There is almost nothing concerning the poorer classes that I am not conversant with."

So unstable was the Duke's financial condition that when he insisted on his aunt's including Sybil Thurston among the guests at the house party, he ran the risk of incurring her serious displeasure. This the Duke could ill afford to do. The land of his estates was as old as the title, and as unproductive. Moreover, it was taxed sufficiently highly to disturb even a rich man. As for assets, the Duke knew how to dress, and he knew a good horse from a bad one.

"I COULD be either a tailor or a head groom," he said blithely. But this, of course, was a foolish statement. The Duke had no intention of working.

"Now, about this Sybil girl?" said his aunt.

"She is pretty."

Lady Pondice sniffed. "You needn't have told me that."

"She has excellent manners."

"That," said Lady Pondice, "is a gift of the lower classes."

"She plays flawless bridge."

"Ah!" Lady Pondice's eyes opened. "That would make you and Miss Thurston and Colonel Fitzmorris and myself." She paused. "What stakes would you suggest?"

Her nephew shifted one well-tailored leg over the other. "As Your Ladyship chooses. I have no doubt the Society for the Suppression of Gambling could do with another small donation."

And so it happened that Sybil Thurston was invited. The Duke had not known until he met her at the station in his own quite shabby motor how much he had wanted her to come. He had been in love before, times without number—but never with anyone quite so exquisite. It was time out, of course, but it was delightful time out.

"The other guests are being met in a better car," he explained as he gathered up her luggage, "in two or three better cars. But not by me, if that can be of the slightest interest."

She smiled up at him from under curling lashes. "Possibly not to them."

"Then I may assume," he said as he helped her in, "that it is to you?"

"I have no power"—she smiled shyly—"over your assumptions."

They jolted slowly through the village. "This pavement," said the Duke, "is as old as the crusades, and almost as useless."

"It's a sweet village," said Sybil.

"You'd be surprised," said the Duke, "at the inferiority of the plumbing."

"I've read English novels, too."

"That hat is extraordinarily becoming"—the Duke looked down at her—"except that it hides one eye."

"I've another eye," said Sybil, "almost exactly like the one that's hidden."

"This," said the Duke, "is the country. You can tell, because we have just left the village. You don't think you could move that hat so that I might have the benefit of both eyes?"

She shook her head. "That's the way it goes. I know; I trimmed it myself."

"You poor darling!"

She glanced up at him. "Yes, really very poor."

"Never mind. We shall play bridge tonight; and my aged aunt, though a strong holder, is not England's foremost player." He looked down at her. "If I were to stop the car, say on the top of that hill where the hawthorne stands, would you go the lengths of taking off your hat?"

Sybil smiled. "My hair is quite nice when the wind blows in it." She smiled again. "Most hair isn't, you know."

The Duke laughed out loud. "Everything about you is nice." He stopped the car under the hawthorne tree. The country sloped away in all directions, and there was no one else anywhere.

"It all belongs to us," said Sybil, "earth and sky and that small bird up there. Do you hear him?"

The Duke took one of her hands in both of his. "If only anything belonged to us!"

"I know." She stopped. "Darling, you really mustn't fall in love with me. It would be too dreadfully foolish, wouldn't it?"

"So I have told myself." There was a moment. "You were right about the wind in your hair."

SHE looked up at him. "I was right, too, about the other." Her face was even lovelier when it was grave. "You see, I'm not at all the sort you ought to care about, seriously."

"Even," he stopped, "though you were to care about me?"

She nodded her head. "Now give me back my hat. I shall put it on and cover up both eyes at once."

"You make we wish," said the Duke, "I had ever amounted to anything."

"And you me."

Then she smiled, a little sadly. "What a frightfully dreary afternoon we're giving each other!" she said.

"What would you do if I were to ask you to marry me?"

"First I should cry," said Sybil, "and then I should tell your aunt. And then I should run away."

"But suppose I were running right beside you?"

She looked away from his eyes. "Please, my dear, let's be a little happy now." She smiled. "I do believe that small bird up there against the sun must be a skylark" . . .

All the rooms in Lady Pondice's castle were lighted by candles except the cardroom.

"When I play bridge," explained Her Ladyship, "I don't care whether I look my age or not. Candlelight removes the wrinkles, but it might also remove an ace from my hand."

Sybil smiled, and the Duke thought that even a battery of searchlights could not endanger Sybil's beauty.

Lady Pondice settled herself at the table, where Colonel Fitzmorris was already waiting for them, like an ocean liner drawing up against a pier. "Colonel Fitzmorris and I shall play against you and Miss Thurston for two shillings a point."

The Duke glanced at Sybil and back at his aunt. "A bit steep, isn't it?" He laughed. "I mean for you?"

Lady Pondice smiled. "Of course it is. I meant that Colonel Fitzmorris and I should play for one shilling. You and Miss Thurston for two. Such a handicap appears to me no more than reasonable."

The Duke heard Sybil give a little gasp. "We thank you, madam." He bowed. "And we decline the honor. If Miss Thurston consents, we shall all play for one shilling; and you, my dear relative, know well one shilling is more than I can afford."

"Very well," said Lady Pondice, "you and Miss Thurston play us for a shilling. We play you for a half. If you have any sense of fairness, you will see the justice of that arrangement."

The Duke flushed a deep red. "We shall abide by Miss Thurston's decision. I trust she insists on lowering the stakes."

But Sybil only lowered her head. "As Lady Pondice wishes."

"Quite right, my dear." Her Ladyship beamed with restored good humor. "No use in pretending you children don't play for outrageous stakes, because I know you do. Besides, you hold everything. It's a gift."

"Very well," said the Duke, "if you guarantee the weapons with which to beat you."

Colonel Fitzmorris murmured thickly about not wanting to force a stake on anyone, even a superior; and Lady Pondice, with the gesture of a General, swung the cards in a half-ricle across the table.

Colonel Fitzmorris flicked over the ace of spades. "Mine."

Lady Pondice beamed across at him. "A good omen. We shall use these cards, partner. I am never superstitious. But I believe in taking no chances."

In that moment the Duke hated his aunt, who had more than once paid his bridge debts for him, with a righteous fury.

"One no trump," announced Colonel Fitzmorris.

"Pass."

"Three," said Lady Pondice.

"Pass."

"Pass."

"Double." The Duke knew how a couple of aces went to his aunt's head, like champagne.

Lady Pondice watched her partner draw in the tricks with sardonic composure. "There, my lad!"

The Duke looked across at Sybil. "I'm sorry, partner."

She smiled. "That's quite all right. I'd have doubled, too, on your hand."

"I don't believe you would," said the Duke.

"Of course she wouldn't," snapped Lady Pondice. "Women have much more patience. Besides, Miss Thurston is a rather conspicuously good player."

Sybil smiled. "One club."

"Two spades," said Colonel Fitzmorris.

The Duke passed.

"Four spades." Lady Pondice was making no attempt to conceal her pleasure. . . .

"Four bid, five made," announced the Colonel. "Seven hundred rubber."

The Duke smiled wickedly across at Sybil. "It's a gift."

The hours slid by—one, two, three, four. The other guests had gone to bed, and that uneasy quiet that so narrowly precedes dawn settled down upon the castle.

"If my partner and I were not so far behind," said the Duke, "I might be tempted to ask whether this were a six-day bicycle race or a bridge game."

"Nonsense!" said Her Ladyship. "It can't be late."

"Behind those shutters," said the Duke, "you will find the morning."

"An excellent reason for shutters," said Her Ladyship. "Two hearts."

"Pass."

"Four."

"Pass."

Would this horror never end? The Duke thought of the little hat Sybil had trimmed herself. Poor Sybil! What a fool he had been not to take a firm stand about the amount of the stake. Sybil couldn't afford to lose as she was losing. Somehow he'd have to make it good to her, even though he should have to go to work. Work! It would take him 10 years to make up this one night's losses.

THEN Sybil turned to Lady Pondice. "I wonder"—— How tired she looked, and yet how pretty, very young and pretty.

"You wonder what?" snapped Her Ladyship.

"I wonder," Sybil repeated, "if we might have two new packs to go on with?"

"Why?" demanded Her Ladyship.

The Duke's color rose. "Any player has a right to demand two new packs."

Colonel Fitzmorris nodded.

"There," said Sybil, "on the desk."

The Duke rose and fetched the two fresh packs.

"I never heard such nonsense," said Her Ladyship.

"My deal, isn't it?" said Sybil. "Five spades."

"Pass."

"Six," said the Duke.

Lady Pondice looked up, startled. "Slamming, are you?"

"Six spades," the Duke repeated savagely.

"Pass," snorted Her Ladyship.

Two rubbers passed. Three. A servant put her head in the card-room and withdrew it, startled. In the corridor outside were sounds of footsteps.

"Good morning," said the Duke. He glanced down at the pad beside him. "The score stands about even, as I made it. Would it not be just as well to call this the last rubber?"

Lady Pondice fastened her gaze first on her nephew and then on his partner. "About even? Are you content, then, to let us off so easily? Are you, indeed, Miss Thurston?"

Colonel Fitzmorris drew out his watch. "It is 8 o'clock."

"Just one moment," said Her Ladyship. There was a new quality in her voice. "These cards"—— She fingered them with insulting slowness. "Curious that Miss Thruston should have noticed them on that desk. Cards are never left on that desk. My butler, if not I, has a sense of order. All extra packs are kept there, in the cabinet." She pointed. "At the end of the second rubber this evening I chanced to notice these"—she stopped significantly—"and wondered just how long it would be before they might be requested for this table."

THE Duke stood up. "There is only one way of interpreting your remark." His voice grew low and even. Its calmness gave him a sensation of achievement. "Very well, then—I put them there just before we sat down."

"You!" Sybil gave a little gasp.

Lady Pondice turned on her sharply. "That, too, was my reaction."

Colonel Fitzmorris fingered his watch chain. "We are all overwrought," he said. "Our judgments will be calmer later."

"Perhaps," said the Duke. He turned to Lady Pondice. "I am hoping Miss Thurston will consent to motor down to London with me in an hour's time." He held out his hand to his aunt. "Good-by, and thank you."

"Oh!" gasped Sybil. Then she, too, turned to Lady Pondice. "He didn't put those cards there. You know he didn't. I"——

But the Duke, to the amazement of all, stooped and kissed her. "There's nothing," he said, "that bores me quite so much as a bridge post-mortem."

* * * * *

Back of the small smart shop where Sybil Thurston, now the Duchess of Throckmorton, designed and sold hats, was a pocket handkerchief of garden. Sybil had made an enchanting place of it. Their rooms above the shop suited the Duke admirably. Moreover, they were only 15 minutes by bus from the riding academy in which he was, after two years, a half partner.

THE Duke, on a particularly agreeable late afternoon in spring, was lounging in the garden, admiring a magnolia tree and glancing from time to time at an evening paper. Suddenly a line of print caught his eye, and he lost all interest in the magnolia, though he had planted it himself and was very proud of it.

"Good Lord!" he exclaimed. And then again, "Good Lord!"

"What is it, darling?"

The Duke jumped up and in one stride met the Duchess halfway across the garden. He tilted her face up to his and kissed her, kissed her twice.

"Guess who bought a hat from me today?" demanded the Duchess.

"Who?"

"Lady Pondice."

"No!"

Sybil nodded. "We had the merest altercation about the price."

"Who won?"

"The Duchess."

The Duke sat down on the arm of the Duchess' chair. It was very peaceful there, and it smelled like a much larger garden. He would have to do something about the roses, though. If he could only get the formula from Lady Pondice's head gardener.

"She asked about you," said the Duchess. "She wondered if you had any suggestions for the Derby. I think she relies a bit on your judgment."

The Duke laughed.

"She's not a bad old thing," said the Duchess.

"No." The Duke picked up the paper. "Have you seen this?" he pointed.

The Duchess bent her head. Then she sat up sharply. "Colonel Fitzmorris! Oh, how awful!"

A moment they stared at each other. Then the eyes of the Duchess filled with tears. "Oh, my darling!"

He put his arm around her and drew her to him. "So you thought all the time I was responsible for the turn in our luck?"

She shook her head violently. "I thought you thought all the time that I was."

Again there was silence.

"We've been fools," said the Duke.

"And very happy," said the Duchess.

But for a time they both felt sad that old Colonel Fitzmorris had been asked to leave a certain club because he had been discovered playing bridge with a marked deck of cards.

"The score stands about even, as I made it. Would it not be just as well to call this the last rubber?"

Lady Pondice fastened her gaze first on her nephew and then on his partner. "About even? Are you content, then, to let us off so easily? Are you, indeed, Miss Thurston?"

Sybil's eyes met hers. "As you wish."

Colonel Fitzmorris drew out his watch. "It is 8 o'clock."

"Just one moment," said Her Ladyship. There was a new quality in her voice. "These cards"—— She fingered them with insulting slowness. "Curious that Miss Thruston should have noticed them on that desk. Cards are never left on that desk. My butler, if not I, has a sense of order. All extra packs are kept there, in the cabinet." She pointed. "At the end of the second rubber this evening I chanced to notice these"—she stopped significantly—"and wondered just how long it would be before they might be requested for this table."

"You!" Sybil gave a little gasp.

Lady Pondice turned on her sharply. "That, too, was my reaction."

Colonel Fitzmorris fingered his watch chain. "We are all overwrought," he said. "Our judgments will be calmer later."

"Perhaps," said the Duke. He turned to Lady Pondice. "I am hoping Miss Thurston will consent to motor down to London with me in an hour's time." He held out his hand to his aunt. "Good-by, and thank you."

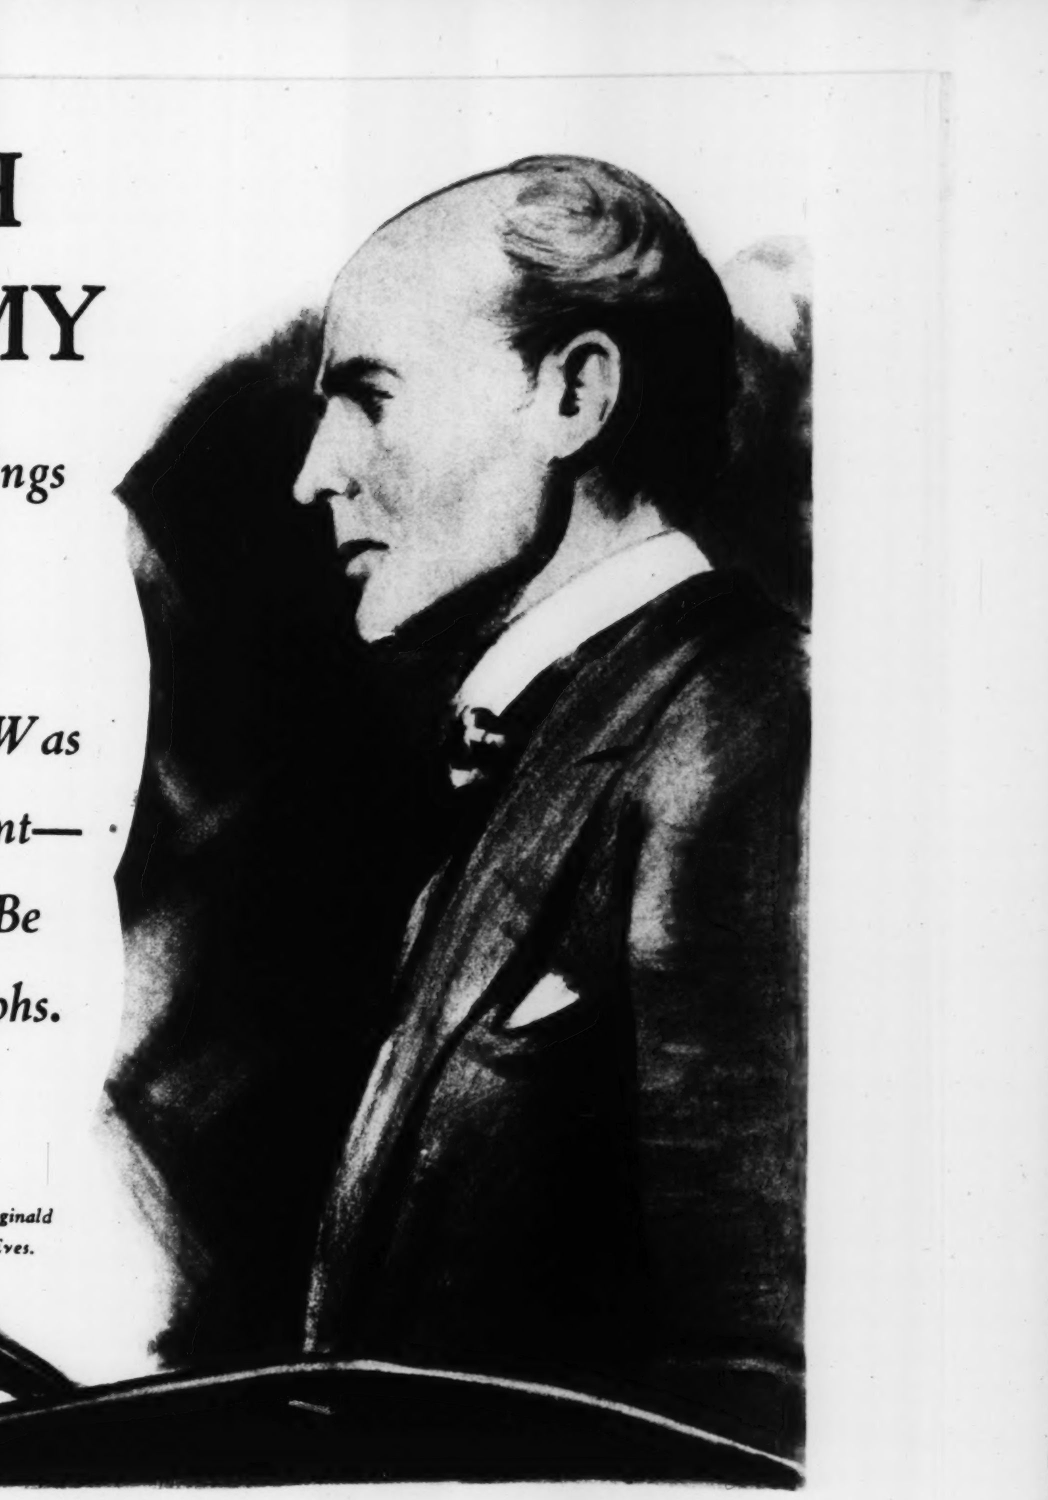
THE SCANDAL IN THE BRITISH ROYAL ACADEMY

How Three Paintings Entered by Reginald Eves—the Artist Who Was Discovered by Sargent—Were Found to Be Colored Photographs.



Reginald Eves.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

LONDON.

THE British Royal Academy has just experienced the most profound sensation in its history and its dignified members are still making free with the smelling salts.

The furor results from the discovery that three paintings entered by a world-famous artist and hung in this year's Academy are photographs painted over. The artist is none other than Reginald Eves, member of the Royal Society of Portrait Painters who was "discovered" by Sargent and who numbers among his greatest works the portraits of the Prince of Wales, the late Thomas Hardy, Lord Darling and Stanley Baldwin. The Academy has expressed its disapproval of his entry of colored photographs by withdrawing his works. It has also denied him membership, for the present at least, in its dignified circle.

The revelation that Eves had attempted to palm off colored photographs as paintings came in very dramatic fashion. The council of 50 Academicians and Associates had met to elect a new Associate and Reginald Eves was put up as a man worthy of the distinction. He polled a considerable number of votes, but failed of election. Sir William Llewellyn, president of the Academy, then said he had discovered something that might have a bearing on the candidate's eligibility and led the mystified artists to the exhibition rooms and showed them the Eves paintings. There were two London scenes and one Venetian scene and all of them, upon close scrutiny, proved to be merely painted photographs.

Because of the painter's high standing, Sir William explained, the pictures had not been scrutinized closely when submitted. Later, however, his suspicion had been aroused by the mechanical perfection of the drawing. Architectural lines achieved a perfection that was amazing. Upon closer examination, he had then found that this perfection was due to photography. Photographs had been enlarged and colored over. And in some places the canvas had not been touched by paint at all. It left the solemn gentlemen of the Academy gasping. Such audacity was unheard of. And to think that Reginald Eves was the offender—member of the Royal Society of Portrait Painters, member of the Royal Institute of Oil Painters.

When the excitement had abated somewhat, a course of action was decided upon. It was determined that the council should telephone the artist and ask him to come before the body with an explanation. Sir William did the telephoning and Eves replied that he would appear.

Later that day, however, Sir William received a telegram from Eves asking that the paintings be withdrawn and, still later, a letter containing his explanation. Subsequently, Eves gave an explanation to the correspondent.

"First of all, I want to make it clear that I have no complaint against the president and the council of the Royal Academy," the artist said.

"They were justified in their action. At the same time, it came as a great shock to me because I never realized the construction that might be placed on my treatment of the paintings.

"It has been brought home to me now that I did a foolish thing. The consequences are most serious to me coming at the time when I was in sight of achieving a most coveted distinction. My name was on the list for election as an A. R. A., which was one of my life's ambitions.

"THIS is how the whole unfortunate incident came about. It dates back to last year when my wife and I were in Venice, where I was painting pictures for an exhibition of my work to be held in London.

"I was pressed for time. There were so many canvases to be done and so little time to complete them that I developed severe neuritis—what you might call 'writer's cramp'—in the right hand. This was the result of having to make a great many architectural drawings in minute detail.

"I was worried because I was afraid that I could not complete my work in time for the exhibition, so I had some of the London scenes photographed.

"The method I employed was to obtain a faint impression of the particular view and have it reproduced on a sensitized canvas. I did this purely to save time in consequence of the difficulties under which I was working. I want to emphasize that I have employed this method only for a few of my architectural paintings and not for any other of my works.

"I did not know at the time that this method was contrary to the rules of the Academy, and never at any time did I have any intention of deceiving Sir William Llewellyn or members of the council. I used the photographs only for a guide and painted thickly on the canvases. The great mistake I made was in sending these pictures to the Academy. They were not painted for that purpose."

While the correspondent was in the Eves home, Mrs. Eves was frequently called to the telephone to speak to friends of her and her husband who were trying to express their sympathy. It was apparent that the occurrence had stirred much excitement.

"My husband feels that he owes the president and council of the Royal Academy an apology for having put them to so much inconvenience," she said. "He withdrew all his pictures as soon as the objection was raised. He does not wish to excuse himself, but it should be remembered that a number of great painters used various methods to assist them in their work.

"Canaletto, for example, used the camera obscura, and it is not disputed that a great many artists make use of photography as an aid to memory of a pose and to help them paint out their pictures.

"Some of the old masters often had the main part of their work done by pupils while they, themselves, worked on larger or more important figures."

Sir William Llewellyn.

Sir William Llewellyn expressed keen regret that a painter of Reginald Eves' caliber should mar his record by resorting to colored photographs. He said it was the first time in the history of the Academy that such a thing had taken place, adding that, as a rule, the council did not even look for any form of imitation. As to the possibility of the artist reinstating himself in the esteem of the Academy, Sir William said it would depend on his future paintings.

Eves lives in London and has exhibited three pictures regularly every summer at the Academy's show. He also has exhibited at the principal salons and has painted members of the Royal family, the Bench and the Bar, and prominent politicians. Sargent "discovered" him when he was a struggling beginner living on 18 shillings a week. One of his most cherished possessions is a drawing that Sargent did of him in those early days of struggle.

Since the affair, several other artists of prominence have had comments to make, notably John Collier and C. W. R. Nevinson.

"It has been decided before now that coloring photographs is not a legitimate form of painting," Collier said. "The action of the Royal Academy seems to be fully justified. There is no reason, however, why an artist should not make use of photographs as an aid to memory, and I think that more use of photographs might be made in this legitimate and proper way."

Nevinson, however, was not so quick to take up the cause of the Academy. He went so far as to intimate that the Academy show was a fitting place for a colored photograph.

"The discovery of painted-over photographs in the Academy does not surprise me in the least," he declared, "for the Royal Academy has always set a photographic standard for art. Millais used a magic lantern to project pictures on his canvases and, in fact, had a false wall in his studio to conceal the lantern.

"You can see for yourself that the Academicians must work from photographs, for they are always painting dead men. It seems to me to make no difference whether they paint from photographs or on top of photographs.

"But, after all, modern art does seek expression rather than photographic representation. It stands for the tradition of Raphael, while the Royal Academy carries the tradition of Raphael Tuck."

70,000 Things That "Science Can't Explain"

awakened by the slow falling of tiny black stones from the dried-leaf roof of his hut. The stones were appearing just below the roof, not passing through it. He tried to catch them, but they evaded him. The only other person in the room was a coolie boy, asleep. Fortunately, there was no police station handy or this might also have been explained away, Mr. Fort writes.

FROM "Annals of Electricity" and the London Times Mr. Fort plucks stories of clothes having been mysteriously taken from the clothesline and led off into space, with, in one case, only a light wind blowing and in the other "not a breath of air." So much for the whirlwind theory, writes Mr. Fort.

A reversal of the fall of stones is found in the London Daily Mail, May 6, 1910, which tells of stones rising abruptly in the air with loud noises. More hair-raising is the account contained in the Niles Weekly Register, Nov. 4, 1815, which tells of stones in Ulster County, New York, rising a few feet vertically and then taking a horizontal course.

Coming down to modern times, Mr. Fort recalls the lethal fog which killed a number of people in Belgium last year.

And now it is nails. They fell on the woman lighthouse keeper at Point Isabel, Texas, Oct. 16, 1888. Mrs. Schieber was caught in the rain and injured. The next night clods of earth and oyster shells fell. Copper coins fell intermittently for three days in Trafalgar Square a few years ago and caused traffic to jam while the crowds pushed for the negotiable manna

Mr. Fort lists several instances of oil spurting and dripping within houses in England, for long periods.

Prof. J. Brun of the University of Geneva, hearing rumors of a supposed fall of blood in Morocco, went to investigate, and, to his surprise, found the rocks and vegetation covered with scales of red, shining material. With a microscope he identified them as Protococcus fluvialis, a micro-organism, and all young ones.

"The identification," writes Mr. Fort, in typical skeptic vein, "may be doubted. I don't like it." He adds: "The ease with which any writer can pick to pieces any statement made by anybody who is not present to bandy delusions with him is becoming tiresome, but if I will write a book, I will write it triumphantly." So he wonders aloud if it isn't queer that millions of little Protococci, without a parent, should suddenly be plumped down in the middle of Morocco, with no mother to guide them.

A case of a statue bleeding at the joints in a house in Tipperary, in August, 1920, is cited. Mr. Fort "accepts" it. He doesn't see why it is impossible. Merely a case of teleportation of blood by someone who had the secret. He has even heard of red rains, which were identified as blood by local scientists. Maybe true, maybe not.

In 1826, according to the Gentleman's Magazine, and in 1856, crocodiles were killed at Over-Norton, Oxfordshire, England. "It looks," writes Mr. Fort, "as if, for about 30 years there had been a translatory current . . between somewhere, say in Egypt, and an appearing point near Over-Norton."

Impossible, in a well-directed world, for animals to be lifted out of natural surroundings and placed in strange ones? Not so. "It seems to me," writes the author, "that an existence capable of sending young butchers to medical schools and young boilermakers to studios would be capable of sending young crocodiles to Over-Norton, Oxfordshire, England."

In May, 1832, according to the Magazine of Natural History, hordes of mice appeared in the fields of Inverness-shire, Scotland. They were brown, had white rings around their necks and white-tipped tails, a type never before seen in Scotland.

SPECKLED snakes have fallen at Hawthorne, Massachusetts. Venomous Egyptian snakes have been found in London streets. A man dug a ditch near Cambridge, Maryland, relates the American Journal of Science, and quit when rain fell. When the rain stopped a week later the man found his ditch swimming with full-developed perch. Hundreds of dead perch lay all around the field.

Several instances of flesh and blood having fallen from the sky in California were recorded in the San Francisco Bulletin, in August, 1869. One shower lasted three minutes and covered several acres. Or was a reporter seeing things?

A cow gave birth to a calf and two lambs, a direct snub to biology. Stock breeders viewed the litter and were quoted in the Toronto Globe and Quebec Daily Mercury as admitting the cow had fooled them. Biologists will snort, says Mr. Fort. Easier to tell them the cow had two bicycles and a baby elephant.

Strange, unearthlike animals have been caught. The Adelaide (Australia) Observer tells of one that sent the dogs cowering with their tails between their legs. It was a pig-like animal, with a tail like a lobster's. There are others of wild and hideous contours, some small, some large, some on land, some in water, some hissing through the air, all of which suggests strong liquor. In almost every case someone took one shot, or one look, and ran to the nearests newspaper.

We teleport ourselves back to the flat in the Bronx. Mr. Fort is explaining that perhaps teleported things fall slowly because of a counter-gravitational force. He thinks this would be valuable to aviators if someone could discover how to create it artificially. He explains his skepticism. It would have made Descartes turn in his union card.

"YOU can't convince me that you are sitting right there," he says, smiling. "You see, I doubt my own existence and yours, too. If you could tell me who 'you' are and where 'there' is, I would believe you."

The writer was unable to oblige and Mr. Fort continued:

"Science, if not hostile to phenomena such as these, is inhospitable. It is easy to believe or be convinced if you want to be. There is a feeling of superiority in the conviction that the system you represent has solved the major problems of existence. The glory is reflected on you. For my part, I don't waste my time asking science to help. Some of my friends have done it and have been rebuked.

"The few explanations science has offered are funny. These frog showers it blames on a whirlwind which is supposed to lift all the little frogs out of a frog pond and drop them a hundred miles away. Well, if a whirlwind scoops out a lake, how is it that only frogs and water fall, without a trace of rotting vegetation, or fish, or pebbles? They reply that these were segregated by wind action and dropped on the way. I have investigated about 50 of these cases and in none was the fall of the other items recorded. Nor even a whirlwind.

"How do toads live for centuries without food? Oh, why go on?"

Mr. Fort smiles his calm, deprecating smile, which says, by way of paradox, who cares?

He is asked about his super-checkerboard, with 7000 squares. The smile broadens and he leaves the room, to return with a large checkered piece of cardboard.

"THIS one," he explains apologetically, "has only 500 squares. The other one has been lost. It's just a whim of mine. You play it as if the men were soldiers. Almost everyone likes to command armies. It's lots of fun."

Super-checkers opponents do not move one man at a time. They agree beforehand that they will move in series of 25 or 50 moves. This makes sorties, ambushes and flank movements possible. The trouble is Mr. Fort can get no one to tackle it with him. So he operates both armies. Such occupations keep people out of mischief, Mr. Fort thinks.

"We humans have too much energy. It makes us take it out on our fellow man and exploit him," Mr. Fort said. "I sometimes think if we would live on one egg a day, like Louis Cornaro, the fifteenth century philosopher, we would eliminate much crime and solve the major problems of existence. Our overweening ambitions cause no end of misery. It has been often said that the necessity of obtaining three meals a day is the cause of our troubles. My view is that they arise from the fact that we get three meals a day and build up excess energy.

"But don't quote me as practicing this theory," Mr. Fort said, laughing. His ample frame would have given him the lie.

Edith Mason's Off-Again, On-Again Romance

another from a guest at their suburban home. Dr. Bernstein was quoted as saying he visited his wife often and was "very much in love with her." When Miss Mason went to Reno, she denied it was to obtain a divorce.

There was another trip, however, of more significance. The opera star went to Dallas, Texas, and left her daughter there with a nurse, thus establishing a technical residence.

In April of this year Miss Mason received a divorce from Dr. Bernstein in a Dallas court. The proceeding was secret; it did not become known until early in May.

Cruelty again was the charge on which Miss Mason won her freedom. She alleged in her petition that the Chicago surgeon married her for the purpose of "living in grand style at her expense."

The singer declared that the doctor boasted to her of his conquests among the ladies, and that he hurt her feelings by slighting remarks concerning the fact that the father of her daughter was a native of Italy. She said she left Dr. Bernstein less than three months after their marriage.

The physician filed a long answer, in which he pictured Polacco as the villain of their domestic drama. He said the musical director demanded that he make Miss Mason stop eating pie and smoking cigarettes, for the sake of her voice, and persuade her to give him (Polacco) $100,000; that when he refused the last demand the ex-husband flew into a rage and threatened to kill all three of them. He alleged Polacco called frequently at the Bernstein home. Polacco and Miss Mason, the physician stated, telephoned to each other at least three times a day.

Dr. Bernstein denied his wife had supported him, and charged her with extravagance; he said she had 100 pairs of shoes.

Out of the web of charges and counter-charges came the divorce decree. That achieved, Miss Mason hastened to board a ship for Europe.

Before the steamer reached Genoa, Italy, a wireless message was delivered to the opera singer. It was from Polacco, inviting her to a "family dinner" with him and their daughter, in Milan. Polacco was on the pier when the boat docked at Genoa. He and his former wife shook hands. Her automobile was unloaded from the steamer, and in it the reunited pair drove to Milan for the family dinner.

That night, with a small party of friends, the singer and her ex-husband went to Zurich, Switzerland. After spending three days completing the formalities required by law, they were married at the Zurich City Hall. After the ceremony Miss Mason and the husband who is both No. 3 and No. 5 in her marital series, returned to Milan for their honeymoon. Hhe is now 38 years old and her husband is 56.

Friends who hope that this reunion of the two stars of the opera world will be permanent find encouragement in a remark Miss Mason made as she landed at Genoa. Commenting on the fact that she was registered on the ship's passenger list as Edith Mason Polacco, she said: "That is still my name, and always will be."

IF THERE is any one character in the world today who outshines every racketeer in history it is none other than your old sniffy pal, the house cat. Wallingfords pass, Blackie Daws die and are forgotten, men manage to forget Cleos and Chloes, Captain Kidds and Jean Lafittes lose all but a fictional identity—but the cat hangs on.

What is more, he does it without working. No swinging of cutlasses for this pirate, no laborious compiling of colored booklets and whispering of high-powered sales talks for this promotor, no honied promises for this gigolo. He sleeps on man's softest cushion, washes himself in the clearest sunlight, laps up man's choicest milk with not a word of thanks, tilts his rubbery nose in the air and walks off when he feels like it without so much as a glance in the direction of the giver. If there is any vocal expression it is a whine which says, "Are you sure this milk is real fresh?"

For centuries this racket has gone on and no one has arisen to say it nay. For ages, without turning a hand, the cat has openly insulted the human race and been rewarded with its best gifts. It doesn't seem right, and isn't. How long will man tolerate this social parasite who patronizes him while living off him? How long will he sit there while the world's cats pad gloriously by, wearing a simper which obviously means to convey the idea that human beings are all right, but not quite up to cats? My guess is that it will go on indefinitely.

This somewhat dark view of the matter is justified, I think, by the facts of history which I have taken the trouble to look up. It is plain from a hurried perusal of these (which is just what I gave them) that the cat is, at least, a smarter politician than man, and it has been by playing politics that the cat has maintained his racket. The cat, saw, as did some of our own politicians of the smarter sort, that the power in the human home is in its women. This has been, and is, the keystone of his system. I do not, like some earlier commentators, suspect the existence of a secret pact between the two, a tacit agreement to make a sap out of man. Each, I am virtually certain, pursues its own course in this matter; and each, I hardly need add, has attained gratifying success. No, it is quite evident that the researches of Schiller and Aufderheide ("Katzen und der Menschen," Berlin, 1840) led them far astray in the matter of the supposedly concealed plot, a regretable outcome to years of excellent work. A more likely explanation of the inevitable hand-in-glove relation between the pair is to be found, it seems to me, in the feminine obeisance to smugness and its weakness for someone who will get up and walk off while the choicest affections are being bestowed. Thus, we see that woman, being in the center of the arrangement, gets an even break; the cat, being on the front, gets all, gives nothing; man, being on the rear, gives all, gets nix.

BUT that is neither here nor there. Let us go back a few parasangs into history and see how it all started. We don't have to go far, just to the ancient Egyptians. No prehistoric caves for the cat. He didn't cut in on the profits until man had got the room temperature up to 70.

The books of reference say that the Egyptians were the first to take the cat out of the tree, cut his claws and domesticate him. This is pretty naive. If the cat hadn't wanted domestication man could never have forced it upon him. What actually happened was that when man gave up sleeping in the open and built houses, the cat decided he had to get into those houses. Up to then he had supported himself by crouching in trees and springing down upon man by dead of night. Man used to build fires to scare him away, but sometimes he overslept and let the fire die down. That was the cat's chance.

All right. We see the cat, a trifle worn and hungry, sitting in the forest. He is pondering. He rubs his abdomen thoughtfully. He peers enviously through the trees at the newly made houses, at the smoke curling cozily from the chimneys. He is struck with an idea. It is daring and may get him only a spear in the hide, but it is worth a try.

"Columbus took a chance," says the cat, "why not I?"

Man, I have no doubt, was in his slippers and reading a darned good book when his mate interrupted him. Very likely he said: "Well, what if there is a sick cat in the back yard? What is that to us?" Very likely when he got tired of being interrupted he stamped into the kitchen to explain his mate's notions away. It didn't work. She said, all right, then, she would go herself. He carried the cat indoors. The cat groaned, and while the wife ministered to him he gave her the wink. She intuitively understood, and from that time on the cat was pampered.

THAT is how he muscled into the hearth. At first he went even further. He snooted and insulted the Egyptians until they thought there was something other-worldish about him. They built him temples and brought him dainties. He lolled back, eyes half-cocked, and didn't say a word. Had he opened his trap his doom would have been sealed. But he was smart enough not to. It was a swell, luxurious life. Why be piggish and ask for more?

When this graft ran out the cat fell back upon his drag with woman. He has maintained this course into our own times and, unless signs fail, the cycle of adoration is beginning another upward rise.

There is a Red Tabby Society of America, a Royal Cat Club of Kansas City, similar cat clubs in other large centers, several magazines devoted to their doings and I find on skimming the latter that we are threatened with a National Cat Week.

Who will lead the opposition to it? I can't say as my voice is still badly cracked from the 1930 football season and I am threatened with glanders. But if somebody wants to start the counter movement I will supply a reliable throat spray—with a full tank—and a pair of cool duck pants, not too badly worn, for street meetings.

Runner-Up In Ugliest Baby Contest, 1902 Complains He Was Cheated Out of First Place

IF THE time ever comes—and Wall street will give you 100 to 1 that it never will—when the editors of Who's Who in America ask me to submit an autobiographical note, it will contain only one line in addition to the bare vital statistics.

No college degrees, earned or honorary, will be listed in the space allotted to me. No orders, foreign or domestic, for bravery or other merit, will add luster to my obscure paragraph. This one distinction alone will I claim:

"Runner-up in the national Ugliest Baby Contest, August, 1902."

Many of my followers say I should have won first prize, and undoubtedly I would have if the affair had been on the level.

The contest was staged by a Mr. Jake Zeiss, mention of whose name even now causes certain mothers of this city to clutch grown children to their bosoms. Mr. Zeiss was a tipsy genius whose activities ranged from promoting cock fights to instigating riots.

Reposing on a park bench one lazy afternoon, swatting amiably at occasional aberrant flies attracted by his rich lager breath, Mr. Zeiss was suddenly struck by the unmitigated homeliness of the children playing around him. The observation acted upon him in the nature of the proverbial Newtonian apple. In a trice, or at least in not much more than a trice, he conceived the idea of another typical Zeiss promotional event.

There had been, he reflected, hundreds of shows for healthy babies and for beautiful babies. These by their very nature were exclusive affairs, limited to the infantile possessors of glowing health or cherubic pans. A contest for ugly babies, on the other hand, would be democratic and would open the gates to the vast majority of youngsters who took after their fathers, the little fellows destined to carry on the sterner work of the world.

WITHIN a fortnight the city was covered with posters announcing the event. Slogans, catchphrases poured endlessly from the fecund brain of Mr. Zeiss, and at his persuasion the Mayor proclaimed an "Ugly Duckling Week."

Manufacturers of infants' wares fought one another for the privilege of donating prizes. Cod liver oil, patented foods, bands, flannel shirts, appliances to prevent thumb-sucking, bottles and rattles flooded in from all parts of the country. There were enough safety pins to allow every baby in town to swallow three, thus putting Dr. Chevalier Jackson on a day-and-night basis for at least a year.

Mr. Zeiss himself put up $10,000 for first prize.

The judging was scheduled to start at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of August 12. Hours earlier every seat in the house was taken. Special trains brought thousands of spectators to the city, and by noon the streets near the exposition building were thronged with late-comers clamoring for admission.

At 2:45 p. m. the judging stand was cleared and the band struck up the national anthem. Mr. Zeiss, who was to be the sole judge, donned a mackintosh and ordered his assistants to roll in the contestants.

They were gone for some time and the mob grew restless. "Bring on the brats!" they roared. "Where are the little monsters? Booo-ooo!"

Mr. Zeiss held up a placating hand. Ordering the band to render another selection, he strode toward the dressing rooms to speed things up. The assistant manager met him at the door. "We're sunk," he whispered. "Not a single entry. The boys say there ain't a kid within blocks of here. Looks like they're being purposely kept indoors."

The assistant manager was wrong. At that very moment Eliza and I were speeding to Mr. Zeiss' rescue.

Cutting corners on two wheels, threading through traffic at perilous speed, risking death at cross streets, my perambulator was hurtling onward, with Eliza at the controls. I sat straight up, grasping my safety belt and urging her on with shrill yips of encouragement. "All day Thursday off, if you get me there on time, driver," I shouted. Eliza buttoned her lips and sprinted gamely to the finish line.

Mr. Zeiss was overcome. He covered the perspiring and trembling Eliza with a floral blanket and carried me to the stand.

The crowd was with me from the start. "Take off that false-face," they yelled. "No young kid could be that ugly!" "O mamma, ain't he a little beauty, though!" "What have they been feeding you on, son?" "Looky, his head's pointed!" and so on.

Mr. Zeiss appeared a little dubious. He called Eliza.

"Madame, is this the way your son really looks, or have you touched him up a trifle? The rules of the contest, you know, say that"——

"My son?" Eliza interrupted. "Who said he was my son? I'm his nursemaid. Don't get smart with me, mister."

Mr. Zeiss hastened to apologize.

IF THE decision had been left with the spectators I should have left there $10,000 richer, but Mr. Zeiss was judge and jury and the verdict was already framed. At a nod from him a side door opened and a baby buggy was trundled in.

The occupant was an unsightly cub, freckled and blobber-lipped, with a head several times too large for him, but, even if I do say it, I don't think he was in my class for downright unprepossessiveness.

They placed him on a bench next to me. Mr. Zeiss circled around, studying us closely. Then he asked us to smile, and we complied, gummily, horribly.

This appeared to decide him. He placed his hand upon my head and announced: "Beyond any question this little man is the winner of the fifth, fourth, third and second prizes."

Turning to my competitor, he said: "And this forbidding mite I declare the winner of the first prize—$10,000 in gold."

The crowd rose to my defense as one man. "Robber!" they screamed. "Cheat. Boooo-oo. Throw him out! Kill him! The little guy has the other one skinned a mile! Booooooo!"

Sobbing with rage, I permitted my supporters to carry me out of the place on their shoulders.

We stopped a moment at the door to grant reporters an interview.

"Don't take on so, son," they consoled me. "We'll give you the newspaper decision! You know who the winner is, don't you?"

"No, I said. "Whom?"

"You mean who," Eliza corrected me.

"Master Jacob Zeiss Jr," they said.

Speaking of Just Desserts:

let THE KROGER FOOD FOUNDATION help you achieve the happy ending for every luncheon and dinner and supper

WHEN you selected your Spring ensemble . . . do you remember how you achieved that light, enlivening note of color, that vivacious variance of shade that made your costume? Perhaps you didn't realize that you were following certain instinctive rules of harmony and contrast. But it was no accident that your ensemble was wholly attractive—perfectly related. And you modern housewives are allowing this same intuitive sense of the fitness of things to help you plan your menu ensembles as well as your apparel ensembles. Consciously or not, you follow the "rules".

Let's consider the what and the when of desserts, and see how they should be related to the whole meal. Who hasn't been a guest at a heavy, full-course dinner and been served with a brave dessert that could only be nibbled at, or politely refused. Why? Simply because it didn't conform to the rule: a light dessert for a heavy meal and a heavier dessert for a lighter meal. The dessert must be related in food value and color value to the other courses. Now, suppose you apply the "rule" to an actual meal—

You're having a dinner of tomato-juice cocktail, roast chicken (or broiled sirloin steak), buttered rice, ring mold of peas and carrots, rolls and butter, cabbage salad with Roquefort dressing and coffee. What shall be this dinner's just dessert? Why, you would select strawberry ice in meringues, or grape-juice sherbet. And your selection is in admirable good sense and good taste, for your dinner needs just the color-touch and the taste-thrill your fruit dessert gives it.

Let us say you are having a light luncheon — broiled lamb-chops, parsley potatoes, lettuce and dressing and tea or coffee. What dessert will balance it? What dessert could balance this luncheon better than deep rhubarb pie? Pie is a palatable dessert when served with a light meal, and pastry that is really tender—crispily, flakily tender—is delicious to eat, easy to digest.

Now, let's consider the children. They won't take their quart of milk a day, as such? Then give them the needed food values in dessert form. Custards — plenty of them — for they're almost endless in variety and they're all good for children. Eggs, you know, are rich in vitamins that every growing child needs. And you won't have to coax the children (big ones or little ones) to take their milk when it's "hidden" in a cup of tempting yellow custard.

Desserts need not be complex or difficult to prepare. Very often the simplest ones are the best. You can almost achieve miracles with canned fruits, a refrigerator or freezer, a flick of cocoanut, and a dash of whipped cream. You can make ices and sherbets with practically nothing and a bit of gelatine. And you can buy or bake all manners of pastries and cakes—white or yellow or pistachio or deep, chocolaty brown.

So, have your pantry and your ice-box always ready to help you prepare desserts to fit the meal, for color, for food value, for taste. The Kroger Food Foundation is ready to help you, too. For it has prepared a special bulletin on desserts, which will guide you in achieving the happy ending for every luncheon, dinner and supper . . . deliciously and "nutritiously." Write for your copy to The Kroger Food Foundation, Cincinnati, Ohio.

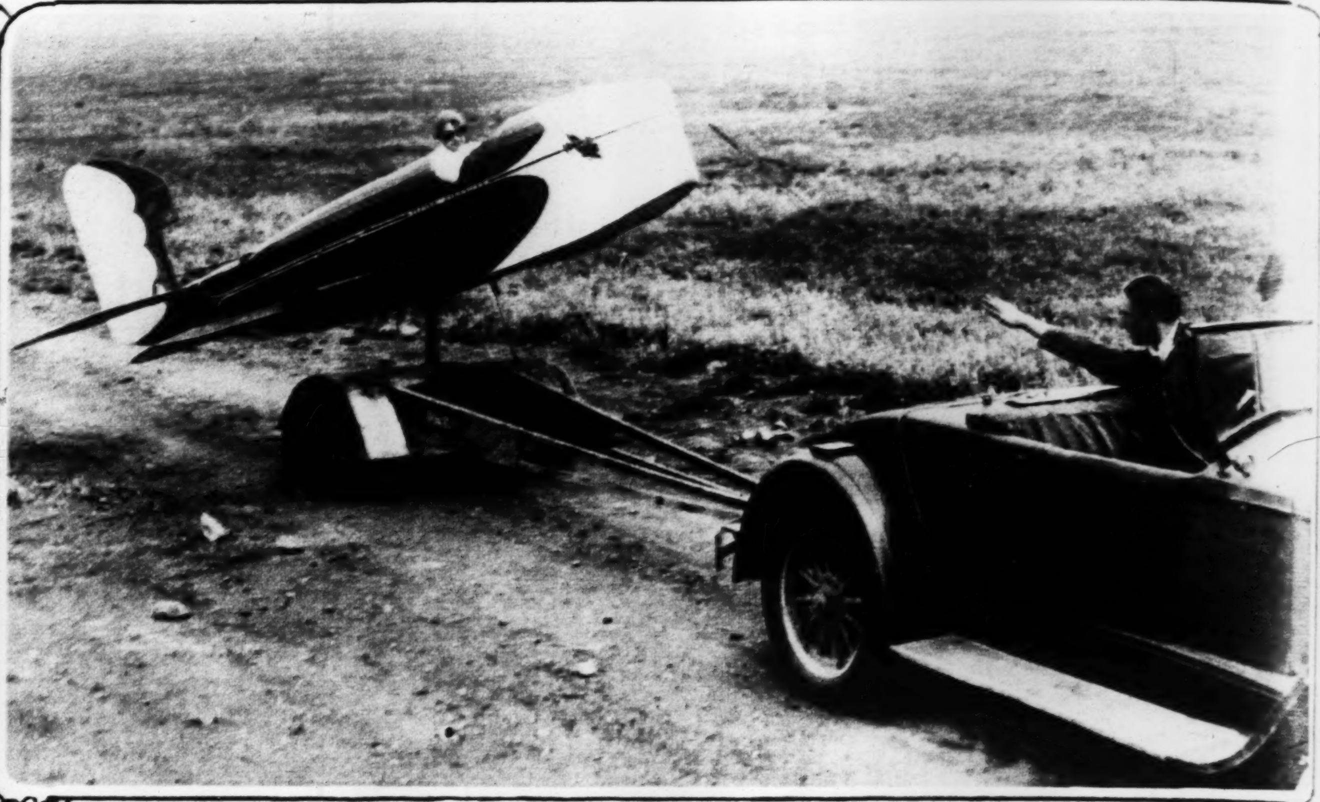
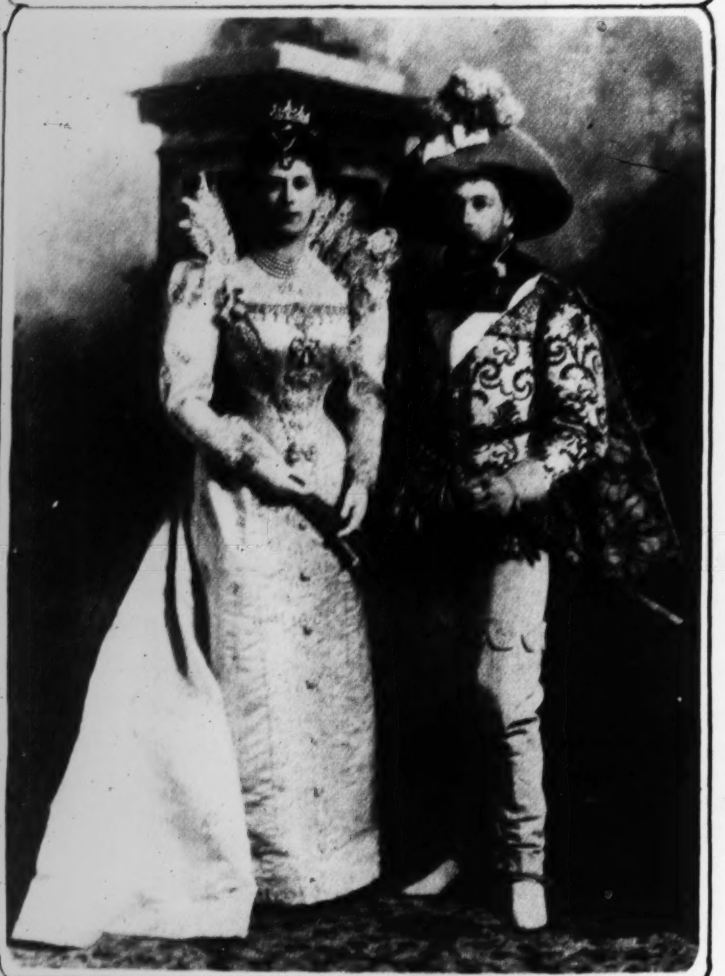
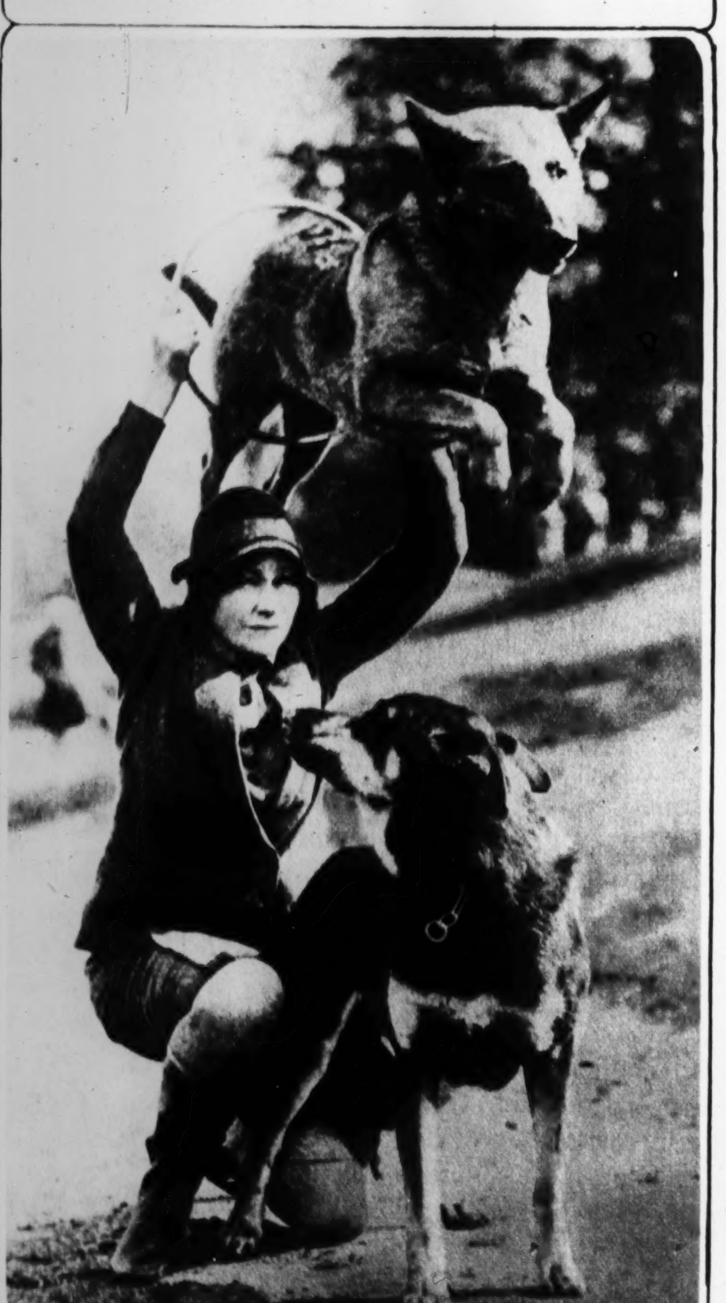
BRIDGE BUILT TO ENDURE—Numerous in New Hampshire, a State with enormous deposits of fine granite, are beautiful bridges constructed of that material. Engineers say they should last more than 20 centuries.



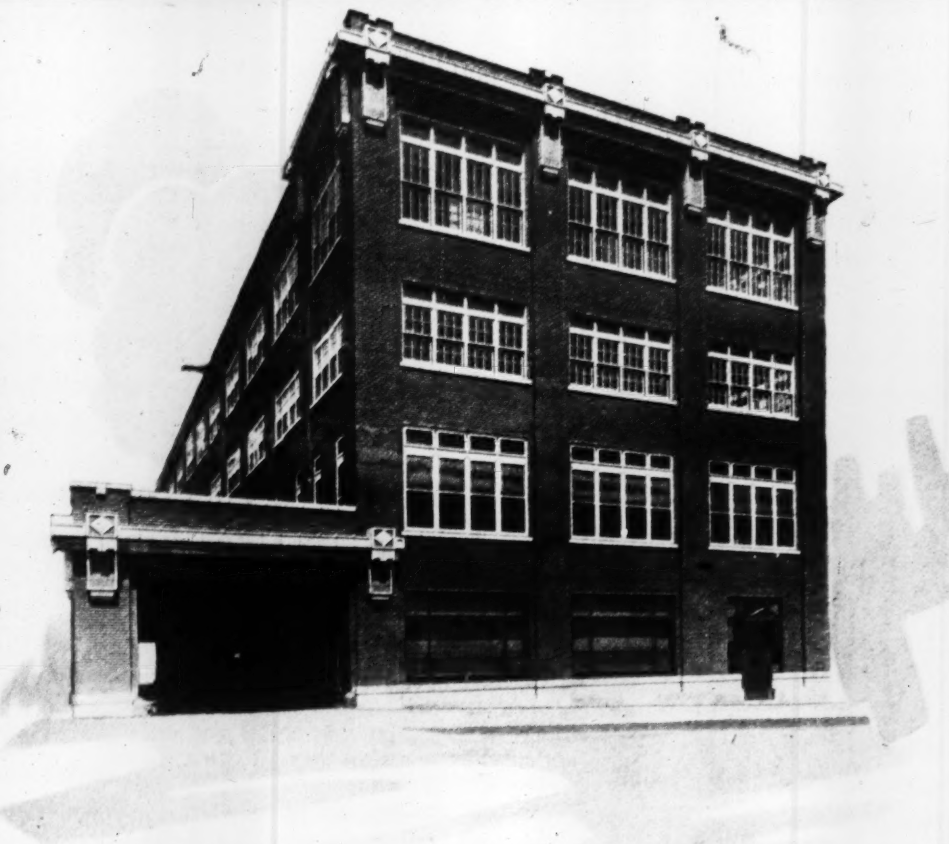
A TEACHER AND HIS TEXT BOOK—Apparatus used in glider school in California to enable the student to learn just how such a craft is guided and maneuvered when actually in the air.



GUESS WHO?—The present King George and Queen Mary of England when they were the Duke and Duchess of York, photographed back in 1897—34 years ago—dressed to attend a brilliant ball in Devonshire House.



CLEVER, JUST CLEVER—Police dog making leap through hoop at London trial of blue blooded canines.



Deliciously Different
SELECT ICE CREAM

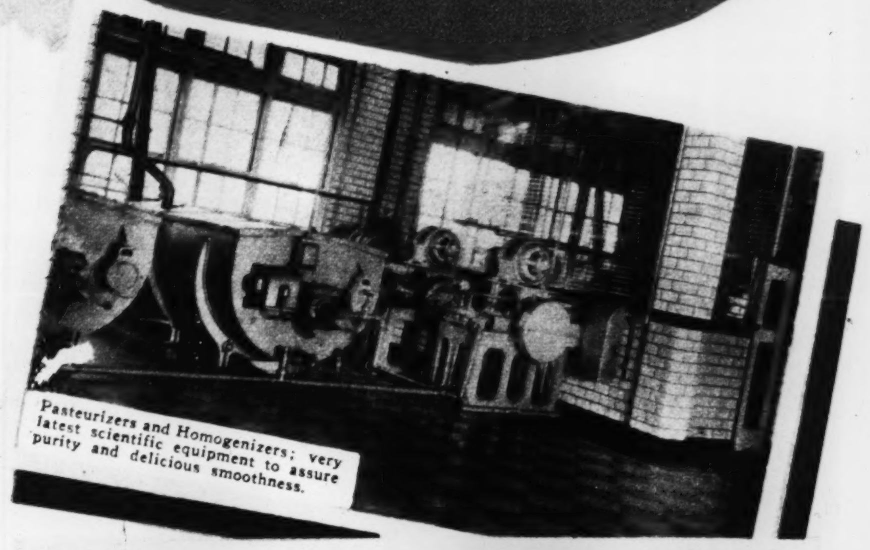
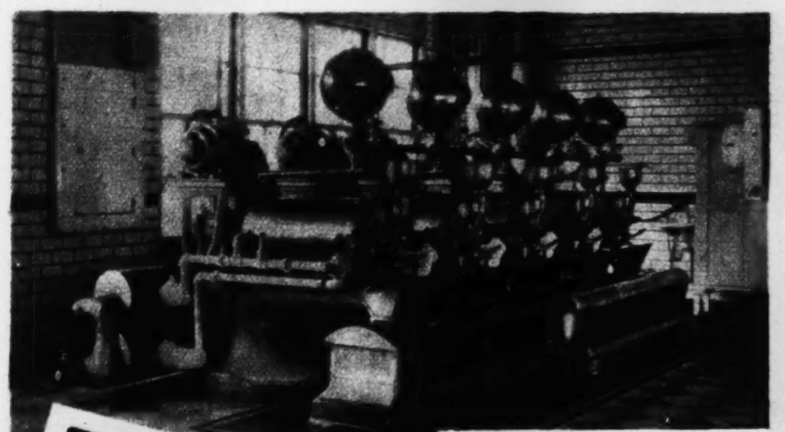
If you visit the Pevely Plant
You'll like
PEVELY ICE CREAM
Even better than ever before

Pevely Select Ice Cream, deliciously different, is so wondrously smooth, so marvelously luscious, that you simply cannot imagine yourself enjoying it more than you already do. But it is a fact: If you visit the Pevely Ice Cream plant, step into big rooms of gleaming white tile, equipment flashing like silver in the sunlight; see the immaculate workers in white; the sweet, rich cream, the cane sugar syrups, the fresh fruits . . . then you'll enjoy Pevely Ice Cream even better than ever before.

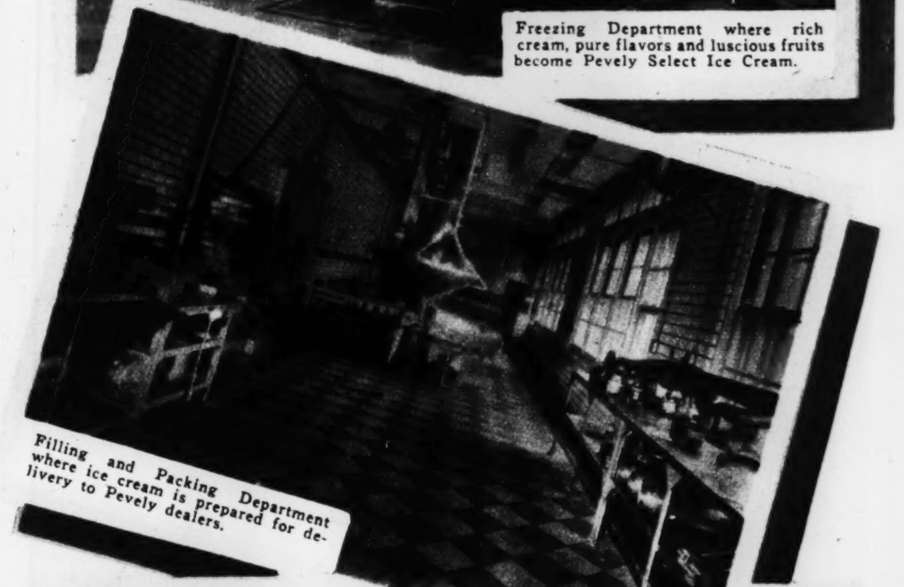
Look for the Pevely Ice Cream sign near your home and you will find a dealer who believes that only the products of highest quality are good enough for his customers. Get the healthy, happy habit of calling on or phoning your nearby Pevely dealer. Eat a lot of Pevely Select ice cream this summer; it's a luxury that is an ideal summer food.



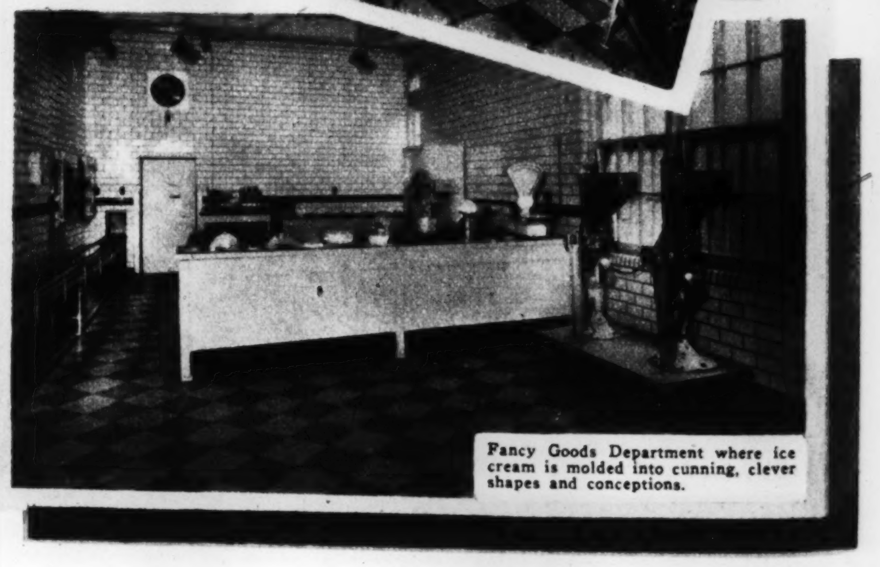
Pasteurizers and Homogenizers; very latest scientific equipment to assure purity and delicious smoothness.



Freezing Department where rich cream, pure flavors and luscious fruits become Pevely Select Ice Cream.



Filling and Packing Department where ice cream is prepared for delivery to Pevely dealers.



Fancy Goods Department where ice cream is molded into cunning, clever shapes and conceptions.

NOW.... ONE.... TWO.... THREE. ALL BOUN' DROWN WITHA WOO-LAN STRING.... HIGHER BARNEGAT.
AWL BOUN DROWN... YOU'RE TOO LOW KATTY.
ROW-ZAS ROW-ZAS! BEE-YOU-TIFF FULL.... YOU'RE TWO OCTAVES TOO LOW BARNEGAT.
GEORGE, STOP FIDGETING.
SO MANY PEOPLE ADVISE BARNEGAT TO GET HIS VOICE TRAINED. EVERY NIGHT WE HEAR PERSONS ON THE RADIO WHO CAN'T SING HALF AS LOUD AS BARNEGAT.
YEAH YOU'VE SURE GOT A STRONG VOICE BARNEY.
THANKS. AND I'M SORT OF WORKING UNDER WRAPS THIS EVENING. COME OUT IN THE NEXT ROOM AND I'LL EXPLAIN.
YOU SAY YOU WANT TO SPEAK ABOUT SOME DELICATE SUBJECT?
YES, I SAID I WASN'T MYSELF IN SINGING. WHAT I MEAN IS THAT I'VE GOT A NEW SET OF TEETH. ARE YOU INTERESTED IN SCIENCE? WAIT UNTIL I SHOW YOU A SET OF TEETH THAT'LL KNOCK YOUR EYES OUT. SOLID 24 CARAT GOLD.
TEETH? YES. THEY'RE SURE PRETTY. VERY SHINY AND SO FORTH.
EEZ HEETH AH HERFECK. HERFECT.....HEEL THE HAIT HOU'EM. HEEL 'EM. HOLE LEM IN HOOR HAN.
I GET YOU BARNEY FEEL THE WEIGHT OF 'EM, EH. WELL THAT'S ALL RIGHT. I'LL TAKE YOUR WORD FOR— HEY! DON'T GRAB MY HAND OR—HEEL 'EM HIXXY HOUR HARAT HOLD. HERE. HOLE LEM.
LISTEN BARNEY. THE TEETH ARE VERY NICE. BEAUTIFUL. BUT, I DON'T NEED TO HOLD THEM IN MY HAND. KINDLY DO NOT INSIST OR — OOPS... THERE THEY GO! LOTS OF BOUNCE IN 'EM TOO.
HEH! HEH! WHOO HROPP HEM!
HEETH HIKE HISS HOULDN'T HEE BO-HOUNCED HON EE SLOOR
OH WELL ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN BARNEY...

BENT ALL OUT OF SHAPE, EH? TOUGH.....WELL LETS GO BACK WITH THE LADIES.
THE VERY IDEA! EVER SINCE YOU HEARD OF THAT OPERA SINGER INJURING HIS VOICE YOU'RE AFRAID YOU MIGHT STRAIN YOURS. I KNOW VERY WELL BARNEGAT THAT YOU BENT YOUR TEETH OUT OF SHAPE SO YOU'D GET OUT OF SINGING AGAIN.
HALL HRITE HI'LL HING!
YES, DO SING BARNEGAT. PLEASE.
NO SIR! YOU NEEDN'T EXPLAIN ANYTHING TO ME BECAUSE I KNOW VERY WELL THAT YOU DROPPED THOSE TEETH SO BARNEGAT COULDN'T SING AGAIN.
I POSITIVELY DID NOT THROW HIS TEETH ON THE FLOOR. HE DID. AND I'M NOT WORRIED ABOUT YOU INSISTING UPON HIM SINGING ALL EVENING. BECAUSE I KNOW THAT STUFF PUT BOTH OF OUR NERVES ON THE FRITZ ABSOLUTELY!

WHAT A DAY THIS WAS_ EVERYTHING WENT WRONG AT THE OFFICE _ I'M SO NERVOUS IF MY SHOES WERE UNTIED, I'D JUMP OUT OF THEM SAY, MRS. NEBB! IS THIS THE PLACE FOR YOUR SEWING?_ I SUPPOSE YOU'D LIKE TO HAVE ME SIT DOWN ON A FLOCK OF NEEDLES!
I'M SORRY_ I WAS CALLED TO THE TELEPHONE AND I FORGOT I'D LEFT MY SEWING BASKET IN YOUR CHAIR
HEY, YOUNG MAN! I WANT YOU TO STOP RACING THROUGH HERE_ YOU'VE GOT THE WHOLE WIDE WORLD TO DO YOUR RUNNING IN__ DON'T DO IT IN THIS HOUSE!!
SAY, WHAT ARE YOU DOING_ COOKING RAGS OR BRANDING A COW? I'VE NEVER SMELLED ANYTHING LIKE IT!!
I'M COOKING CAULIFLOWER_ YOU LIKE IT AND I CAN'T COOK IT WITHOUT AN ODOR SAY, YOUNG MAN, PUT MY HAT AND CANE AWAY!! WHAT ARE YOU DOING_ SENDING OUT INVITATIONS FOR A WHIPPING?
GEE, I CAN MAKE A FUNNY FACE _ I COULD BE A CLOWN, I COULD SAY, WHAT ARE YOU DOING WITH THAT FACE? AREN'T YOU SATISFIED WITH IT?_ LEAVE IT ALONE_ YOU CAN'T IMPROVE IT ANY!
OUCH! MY POOR FOOT! ALWAYS LEAVING THINGS LAY RIGHT IN THE MIDDLE OF THE FLOOR!
NOW YOU GO PICK UP YOUR TOYS_ AND IF I CATCH YOU LETTING THEM LAY AROUND AGAIN, I'LL GIVE YOU A TANNING THAT WILL LIVE LONG IN YOUR MEMORY!

OH, ROD! LARRY MITCHELL IS BACK IN TOWN AND I'VE HAD A WONDERFUL IDEA! I'VE 'PHONED THE WHOLE GANG AND WE'RE GOING ON A MOONLIGHT PICNIC IN HIS HONOR!
GEE, DORA! WHAT A SLICK IDEA!
BUT DON'T FORGET, DORA! YOU'RE GOING WITH ME! I REMEMBER YOU USED TO BE KINDA SWEET ON LARRY!
DON'T BE RIDIC, ROD-- WE'RE MEETING AT MY HOUSE AT 7 O'CLOCK AND YOU MIGHT BRING A FEW GROCERIES
HOT DAWG! THE FIRST MOONLIGHT PICNIC OF THE SEASON! ME AND DORA STROLLING HAND IN HAND THROUGH THE SWEET-SCENTED WOODS BATHED IN THE GOLDEN MAGIC OF THE MOONLIGHT! HOT DAWG!
WE THOUGHT YOU'D NEVER COME!
RODNEY RUCKETT, WHERE HAVE YOU BEEN? WE WERE JUST ABOUT TO LEAVE.
WELL, YOU TOLD ME TO BUY SOME GRUB!
SAY, IF IT'S GONNA BE ONE OF THEM THINGS!
DID YOU MISS ME, LARRY?
MISS YOU, HONEY? WHY, MY EVERY THOUGHT WAS OF YOU, BABY!
LET ME TELL YOU, DORA BELL, I'M RIDING WITH YOU!
OF COURSE. LARRY'S GOT HIS OWN CAR AND IS GOING TO FOLLOW US
RODNEY PODNEY IS "JELLY."
WE'LL GET TO "GRASSY GROVE" JUST AFTER SUNSET! WHOOPEE!!
CAN YOU SEE LARRY'S CAR, ROD?
YES, DOGGONE IT, HE'S RIGHT BEHIND US!
WELL, HERE WE ARE... BUT GOSH IT'S GETTING DARK..... WHERE'S THE MOON?
WELL FOR GOODNESS SAKES! DID ANYONE LOOK UP A CALENDAR TO SEE IF THERE WAS A MOON TONIGHT?
HEY, DORA! WHERE ARE YA?
I SAW HER AND LARRY LEAVE JUST A MINUTE AGO, ROD! THEY SAID THEY WERE GOIN' FOR A WALK!
OH, YEAH?
HEY, DORA! WHERE ARE YA? THIS IS ROD! WHERE ARE YA? YOO-HOO, DORA!
CAN YOU IMAGINE ANYBODY BEING AS DUMB AS DORA BELL? INVITING US ON A MOONLIGHT PICNIC AND THERE'S NO MOON! NO FOOLIN', SHE'S A HOT SKETCH!
SAYS YOU!
